Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)—Two ancient and yellowed pieces of correspondence—letters exchanged by two men in the historic old Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada—have been brought together after a separation of more than a century.

So old that the ink is faded and the paper cracked, the letters bear the remote date of 1818. One was written by Francis L. Walsh of the Upper Canadian town of Charlotteville and addressed to E. C. Tuttle, an early Montreal stationer and bookbinder; the other letter is Tuttle's reply to Walsh.

Thus, one of the letters went to the budding metropolis of Montreal and the other travelled back along the dusty stage coach road by the shores of Lake Ontario and on into the thinly-settled Upper Canadian district now known as Western Ontario.

Separated these 128 years, the letters came together unexpectedly the other night when this reporter, a collector of early Canadian letters and postage stamps, was visiting the Ottawa Philatelic Society and was examining the collection of W. E. D. Halliday, an authority on Canadian postal history and correspondence.

Spotting a letter addressed to Walsh from Montreal, I remarked casually that I had in my collection a letter written by Walsh to Montreal in that same year—1818 —to a man named Tuttle. A quick check disclosed that the two letters actually constituted an exchange of correspondence those many years ago.

Written in the precise penmanship of the early 1800s, the letters in themselves tell a story. They tell of a dispute over three blank books which Walsh, as registrar for the district of Norfolk, had ordered from the Montreal bookbinder.

Writing on March 28, 1818, Walsh remarked that Tuttle's charge for the books—"no less than sixty-two dollars, first cost" —would result in their being returned, and added:

"The charge for them has been submitted to several of the officers of this government acquainted with their value who have assured me that the amount is much greater than what it ought to have been."

He assured Tuttle that the person who returned the books would "not in the least be blamable if the books find their way to your place" and, with that parting shot, signed himself "your most obedient, humble servant."

Tuttle, replying April 25, said the prices charged for the books were "as modest as they could be" and were "as low as" any bookbinder would make them for in Montreal.

He spoke of his ""surprise" at receiving Walsh's letter "more than 11 months" after the books were delivered and almost nine months after they should have been paid for."

"You will have my assurance with this information," he concluded, "that I do not allow the officers of your government, nor any other person, to make prices for my labor."

With further letters in the correspondence lost or destroyed years ago, the outcome of the dispute remains a mystery of the past.

Walsh dated his letter from "harlotteville, District of London, Upper Canada." While Charlotteville no longer is listed in references of Canadian towns and villages, the letter was postmarked at Victoria, still a thriving town in Western Ontario.

Tuttle's letter was merely dated Montreal.

Crown Expects To Complete Case Against Benning

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP) — The Crown expects to complete its case early today against James Scotland Benning, 33, former munitions department official charged with communicating information to Russia.

Seven witnesses have testified since the third in a series of espionage trials began Tuesday in Ontario Supreme Court before Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, but the majority of them have given no evidence. In the two previous cases, Harold Samuel Gerson was convicted of conspiracy and sentenced to five years and Eric George Adams was acquitted of conspiring.

Crown Counsel John R. Cartwright cited numerous extracts from Benning's evidence before the Royal Commission on espionage in building up his case. One showed that he could give no satisfactory explanation for having both the office and house phone numbers of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of parliament who has appealed a six-year sentence for espionage.

Benning said Rose was only a casual acquaintance. He admitted knowing a number of other espionage accused and said some of them used to go to his home for radio "listening group" meetings.

The small bespectacled native of Montreal had admitted before the commission that it appeared "to be more than coincidental" that a number of items of information credited by the Russian Embassy to the Canadian agent Foster were available to him in his work. But he said those items had a wide circulation and denied that he had ever given confidential facts to anyone but an authorized official.

One new bit of evidence was an excerpt from commission testimony by Igor Gouzenko, former embassy cipher clerk and again the star crown witness in this case. At that time Gouzenko had said that the secretary of a foreign military mission in Ottawa worked for the Russians and was given the code name of Jan or Ian.

1,600 Attended National Film Board Showings

The first four weeks of the Hastings County circuit of the National Film Board terminated on October 4th., after making 21 showings in the nine townships of South Hastings. The total attendance for the circuit was over 1,600 which would suggest that a great deal of interest has been aroused by the National Film Board in rural school sections.

The nine townships have been divided into four districts, each district having its own operator, the projector and films being passed from one operator to the other at the termination of his circuit.

District Number 1 comprises Frankford, Centenary, Shannonville, Melrose, Read, Plainfield, Foxboro and Cannifton with Douglas Ketcheson of Wallbridge the operator. Number 2 has showings at Allen's School, Carmel, Minto, Harold and Marmora. R. G. Paul and W. A. Sutherland of Stirling are the operators in this district. District Number 3 covers Madoc and Elzevir townships with showings at Queensboro, Cooper, Rigg's School, Hazzard's Corners Hall, O'Hara's School and Eldorado. Allan Ketcheson and Elliott Burris operate the machine in this section. The fourth district, where T. S. Keilty of Thomasburg is the operator, has showings at Sulphide on October 29th., Marlbank on October 30th., Thomasburg and Stoco on October 31st and Ivanhoe November 1st.

The policy of the National Film Board is to show educational films in the rural schools during the afternoon and have similar films shown to the adults in the evening. The cost of the showings is borne by the National Film Board, Hastings County Federation of Agriculture, and the school sections attending the afternoon showings.

The community in which the showing is held provides the accommodation. All National Film Board showings are free. The attendance so far at the October showings has been considerably higher than September.

Chinese Communist Resistance Along Railway Collapses

By TOM MASTERSON

Peiping, Oct. 25 (AP)—Collapse of Chinese Communist resistance along the Peiping-Hankow railway front today was reported by government military sources, who said the main Red force was in retreat to the hills.

As the Communist offensive, aimed at the government lifeline to embattled North China, apparently fell apart the armed forces of Chiang Kai-Shek redoubled their efforts on a new seaboard from the east.

Government dispatches said Chinese warships standing out in the Gulf of Chihli bombarded the Communist port of Chefoo for the second straight day, braving the fire of Communist shore batteries.

This port, across the gulf from Dairen and Port Arthur, has been a jumping off point for Communist forces raiding government-held areas of Southern Manchuria and is strongly defended by an estimated 100,000 troops.

There was no further word from the land fighting around Chefoo where Chinese fought Chinese in the suburbs, but it seemed the government was bent on serving this link between Communists in Manchuria and their redoubt in mountainous Shantung Province.

By government accounts, the fighting inland along the Peiping-Hankow railway had reached the mop-up stage.

The 94th army was assaulting Hsushui, last town still in Communist hands on the north section of the railway. The town is 23 miles north of Paoting, Hopeh Province capital 90 miles southwest of Peiping.

The Communist siege of Paoting, encircled since early October, was lifted and government troops swinging southward were about to join the north-bound third army at Wantu, 23 miles south of the capital.

The junction will restore the government control of 170 miles of railway from Peiping to Shihkiachwang, the sector which the Communists cut at many points in an attempt to lift government pressure on Kalgan, the Communist stronghold seized by the government Oct. 11.

Story of Handicrafts Told to W.A. Members By Mrs. L. Ballantyne

Addressing about one hundred members and visitors at a meeting of the Woman's Association of Bridge Street United Church, Friday afternoon, Mrs. L. Ballantyne of Toronto, said—"The Story of Handicrafts" which goes back as far as the early Egyptians, will continue through the years, and the more arts which we develop in our homes the more will we help to make happy people in Canada, which is a very patriotic objective and eminently worthwhile."

Mrs. H. Rollins, president of the W.A., when introducing Mrs. Ballantyne, reminded the ladies that she is an experienced traveller, lecturer and a writer of some note, being the authoress of two books.

Mrs. Ballantyne said: "Anyone interested in handicrafts will either make things, collect them or only admire them."

Lifts Above Routine

"The making of handicrafts is beneficial mentally, physically and spiritually, by lifting us above the sordid routine of every day existence; by helping us relax and by drawing us closer to our Creator for, when we make something beautiful we make life richer and develop friendships with others with whom we have a common interest."

"It seems to me," continued the speaker, "that it is about time to develop handicrafts more seriously as an expression of the spirit of our times in Canada, and especially in Ontario. The earliest Canadian crafts were the beautiful embroidery, (but not with threads) and bead work of the Indian women of this land, when they used split bone for needles and sinews from animals in place of silks, to make their traditional wampum belts.

Among the prairie and coastal tribes today the mothers embroider beautifully beaded coats or shirts to present to each son when he enters the tribe as a man at the age of fifteen or sixteen years.

The pioneer women, who were our grandmothers or great grandmothers, learned the art of weaving from necessity, but became proficient in producing blankets and cloth for the family; later weaving rugs for floor coverings and making needlepoint wall mottoes in wools, many of which are now being rescued from attics where they have long been hidden from view.

Restlessness of Youth

"People of today are everywhere discussing the restlessness of youth. It is time the adults began providing youth with materials for various crafts. Quebec province is noted for its homely winter scenes depicted in rugs, many of which are made by the younger women, and which we see for sale in our Ontario shops. This province should be represented in craft designs of fruit and flowers, as being representative of our provincial products. People who have come to us from European countries have brought to Canada their embroidery and other arts."

Mrs. Ballantyne cited the Hungarian women who produce beautiful individual designs in gay color combinations, no two of which are ever exactly alike, as no patterns are used. "Every piece is a product of self expression of the woman producing it."

Choose Great Variety

Continuing she said: "If Canadian women had the courage of self expression, we too could leave the stamp of our age and times upon the arts of this country. Collectors of handicrafts choose a great variety of articles —for example, glass, china and buttons. Many American women are collecting buttons today. The idea originated in early France, when a man wore a button on his cap as a sign of his rank in society. One French King had a large collection.

Collectors of china become interested in the history of the different kinds, which goes back through the ages when each village had its own small pottery, the product becoming known by the name of the potter—as that made by Isaiah Wedgwood, which followed a certain pattern.

Another craft which has been handed down from the ancients is the making of cottons, which were woven in Egypt fifteen hundred years B.C. Connected closely with these two craft were the experiments producing various dyes and the patterns made for them. Staffordshire china was recognized by its beautiful dark blue color, produced nowhere else; and Lincolnshire for its Lincoln green, which was the color used by Robinhood for all his clothes.

There are many other crafts being developed in Canada, and several books have been written giving full details concerning them.

Live in Mechanical Age

Yes, our young people are restless, because they live in a mechanical age. We need to get back to doing things with our hands, for no matter what we make, if it is beautiful, we stand akin to God who created the world, and saw His Work that it was very good."

Introducing some new recipes developed by Rita Martin for the use of Robin Hood all purpose flour and tea time flour, Mrs. Ballantyne called attention to a recipe for a sugarless cake; to one for orange tea biscuits and to one for a double boiler steamed pudding. She said: "Brides of today are rapidly learning that "baking" too is an art, and not something acquired with the wedding ring. Its story was one of importance even in the days of Joseph when the chief baker was hanged because his bread displeased the taste of the King.

And in Old England, when loaves were over-sized hot cross buns, if a baker wanted to feel certain he would not be punished for giving short weight he added an extra bun, thus originating the term "baker's dozen".

No matter what the craft, you are certain to become more interested and get more pleasure, if you learn the story of its origin and then proceed to perfect and develop it as a means of self expression. Specialized, it may become lucrative as well as interesting."

Mrs. K. Bird expressed the appreciation of the audience for the very interesting and informative address, and for the splendid suggestions made regarding the development of representative crafts and recipes for Ontario.

Mrs. Rollins conducted a short business period. Mrs. Price had charge of the Worship Service, and as a fitting close to an enjoyable afternoon the committee in charge served delicious refreshments accompanied by "the cup that cheers".

V.O.N. News

One of the most extensive of the Victorian Order services, is general maternity work. This begins with instructions to the expectant mothers and regular visits to her before the baby arrives. Often the V.O.N. is called to assist at the birth of babies in the home and then after the baby is born the nurse is again required for care of the mother and the baby when the services of a trained nurse are only required for part time.

Until the baby is six weeks old the nurse visits it each week to advise and instruct the mother. A special service that has been greatly in demand is the demonstration bath when the nurse visits the home after the mother returns from the hospital to show her the proper method of bathing the baby and also the preparation of formulae.

Anyone requiring such services in their home need only contact a nurse at the Kiwanis Centre and a prompt visit will be made.

Public School Home Economics And Manual Training Classrooms Will be Completed in Near Future

Belleville is approaching the completion of a program to provide educational opportunity for pupils attending its elementary schools. For the twenty years between 1922 and 1942 space demanded, and, apparently, public opinion approved, a very limited course in the three R's, with no provision for pupils who had no interest or ability to progress under such circumstances.

Before 1922, accommodation was provided at the Home Economics Centre in the high school for senior pupils of the public schools, and a short time before this, a special Opportunity Class was organized for boys at the Queen Alexandra School. This special class has been continued, and now operates as a special boys' handicraft class taught by Mr. M. L. Fowler. It provides a very interesting and valuable instruction for boys over thirteen years of age whose special interests are in handicraft.

Early in 1930 the first Home and School Association was formed in the city, and this movement has developed until four active organizations now serve three of the public schools and the high school. People who are interested in Home and School movement are also interested in educational progress, and these associations have been promoting, quietly, a movement for improvement of educational opportunity in the city.

Proposal Turned Down

In 1939, Mr. Hiram Fetterly, moved in the Board of Education for the provision of classes in home economics and manual training for public school pupils. The feeling at that time, however, that each school district should be complete and should live unto itself, defeated Mr. Fetterly's effort. Space was not available, and the cost of separate units and equipment in each building could not find support from the Department of Education, nor enthusiasm in the Board of Education.

A 1942 survey of accommodation in the Collegiate-Vocational school showed that there was ample time in the time-tables of teachers concerned to provide a satisfactory course of instruction for all grade VIII pupils of the public schools in home economics and wood and metal work. Special permission to carry out this part-time program (regulations require that the program be carried out for both Grades VII and VIII) was secured from the Department of Education and instruction started in September.

Inspectors of the Department of Education reported very favorably on the classes offered to public school pupils, and secondary school teachers commented that the introduction to special work showed valuable results in the first year of the secondary school course. The pupils were enthusiastic; so enthusiastic that more and more of them chose shop classes and home economics when they passed the high school entrance examination, until in the spring of 1946 the the Board of Education was advised that the vocational classes were now filled, and public school pupils could no longer be admitted.

Co-operative Organization

During the period 1942 to 1946 co-operative organization had been practised among the public schools of the city by school principals in the effort to make present accommodation serve a city sweeled by wartime industry, further to accommodate a kindergarten population of over two hundred. When co-operation was suggested to provide the opportunity of home economics and manual training for all pupils in Grades VII and VIII, the adjustment required was just another step in a path already quite well worn. An application to the Department of Education for the introduction of such a program received almost immediate approval; but with the stipulation that more suitable location, probably in the form of a new building, would be provided as soon as circumstances permitted.

The two centres are now nearing completion; the Home Economics Centre at the Queen Mary Public School, and the manual Training Centre at the Queen Victoria Public School. Grades VII from all of the Public Schools will go to these centres for one-quarter day each week, and Grades VIII will spend there a full half day per week. Also, the boys' handicraft class at the Queen Alexandra School, and the very recently instituted Girls' special class at the Queen Victoria School will have the opportunity of spending a full day each week under the instructors Mrs. E. E. Emery, with the Home Economics classes, and Mr. Geo. E. Elliott with the manual training classes.

Instances Cited

Two other instances of co-operative organization need to be mentioned; the classroom of about 40 Grade VIII pupils, formerly of the Queen Mary School now attending the King George School, found necessary because of an enrolment at the Queen Mary School that had grown beyond the capacity of building; and a group of about 17 Grade VIII pupils, formerly of the Queen Victoria Public School, now attending the Queen Alexandra School to make possible the accommodation of the girls' special class under the instruction of Miss Hilda Burley.

It will appear to some people who have not given full consideration to the difficulties being faced in providing suitable classrooms and teachers for all pupils, nor to the benefits that will be derived from a more varied and extensive program of instruction, that it is an injustice to ask children to attend more than one school building, or, in some cases attend some building other than the one closest to home. It should be apparent, however, that even if plenty of classroom space permitted attending the building closest to home, a fully developed and well -organized public school system of education would not provide all of that education in one building.

No Space to Spare

At present there is practically no space to spare in the public school building, and what little exists is in the wrong place to make everyone feel happy. Some provision will have to be made to supply accommodation, for pupils which the recent survey showed would be entering the public schools in the next few years. In the meantime, some schools and some departments are so overcrowded that it is necessary to transfer some pupils from time to time. It is the intention, when additional accommodation can be provided, not to add to provideall of that education in one existing buildings, as this is costly as results in still having all old buildings but to erect a central building that will provide for higher grade pupils from all the city, and which will also provide classrooms for home economics, manual training and special classes in handicraft.

MADE BANDIT NERVOUS

Chicago, Oct. 26 —(AP)— Mrs. Anna Payne, 50, a clerk in a candy store, confided to a customer that a young man in the shop made her nervous and her intuition told her that he was going to rob her. The customer walked up to the youth, drew a gun and searched him. Mrs. Payne fainted but she was revived by the customer — Detective John Finn. The youth, who was carrying a revolver, told Finn he planned to hold up Mrs. Payne but she was so nervous that she made him nervous.

PLAYOFF HOPES WILL BE MADE OR BROKEN TODAY

Hamilton Tigers Only Club Counted Out of Race in the Big Four

(By The Canadian Press)

On eight Canadian gridirons, Canada's senior football teams cast their dice today with the fervent hope that if they don't turn up with sevens, at least they would come up with good points.

Here in the closing stages of their schedules, only five teams of the 17 starters could be definitely counted out of the post-season fun. All the others in the four major leagues still were shooting for playoff numbers.

The closest race was in the east's Interprovincial Union, where Hamilton Tigers are the only club counted out and the other three in hot contest. Probably the decisive game will be the invasion of Toronto Argonauts on Ottawa to meet the Rough Riders, two points behind Argos and Montreal Alouettes in the standings.

With Alouettes conceded a victory over the winless Tigers at Montreal Sunday and each club with only two more games to play after this weekend, both Argos and Riders need victory sorely to catch one of the two playoff spots.

In the Ontario Union, both Toronto Indians and Hamilton Wildcats have clinched two of the four playoff positions and their game at Hamilton will be merely a clash for first place between two teams that tied 14-14 in their last outing.

The loop's big playoff battle comes at Windsor, where the hometown Rockets need a victory over Sarnia Imperials, the team they still may catch for a playoff spot. Balmy Beach should make sure of the fourth berth at Toronto against Ottawa Trojans, the loop's only team definitely counted out.

The east's Intercollegiate Union doesn't take part in these Grey Cup preliminaries but may stage a playoff all of their own. Today, Queen's meet University of Toronto at Toronto and University of Western Ontario Mustangs clash with McGill in Montreal.

If both Western and Varsity win, the Toronto team can force a first-place tie by defeating the unbeaten Mustangs in Toronto the following Saturday.

Full Schedule Planned For American Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

A full schedule of games in the American Hockey League Saturday night may result in some juggling of the western division leadership, currently held by Cleveland. Hershey maintains a safe lead at the top of the eastern half.

Indianapolis Capitals, who set a league record last year when they scored 286 goals, are crowding Cleveland for western honors. The Caps go to St. Louis tonight while Cleveland entertains New Haven.

Hershey will be at home to Buffalo, Providence goes to Pittsburgh and Springfield entertains Philadelphia in the other contests on tonight's card. Hershey has won all five of its games to date.

Tomorrow night Hershey battles the Reds at Providence while Cleveland is idle. Indianapolis will be host to Pittsburgh, New Haven entertains Philadelphia and St. Louis goes to Boston. Springfield is the only other idle member of the circuit.

Seven Canadians Draw Horses In Irish Sweepstakes

Holder of the Ticket on the Winning Horse Will Collect $125,000

Dublin, Oct. 26 (CP Cable) — Seven Canadians drew horses yesterday in the first day's draw for tickets valued at $5,250,000 in the Irish sweepstakes on the Cambridgeshire, one of Britain's major autumn horse races on the flat, to be run at Newmarket, England, next Wednesday.

The draw continues today.

The holder of the ticket on the winning horse will collect $125,000. The second place ticket holder will receive $50,000 and the third $25,000.

Canadian ticket holders with the number of their ticket and the horse's names follow:

C. R. Hemsley, CT 20641, Scotch Reel.

Squawman Alaska, DA 21704, Chanter.

Here's Hoping, CC 33251, Signalman.

Lester Shields, JA 65270, Lord Nelson.

Rock Springs, CR 34363, Prince Val.

Mister A. Bialous, AL 10377, Le Bose Giard.

Flora, KD 10796, Honeyway.

Two in Field

London, Oct. 26 (CP Cable) — At least two Canadians are in the field for "cleaning up" on the $5,250,000 Irish sweepstakes on the Cambridgeshire to be run next Wednesday at Newmarket. They drew probable starters in the draw which began at Dublin yesterday.

The Canadian ticket holder with the Nom De Plume "Here's Hoping" might have that hope fulfilled. He or she drew four-year-old Signalman, to be ridden by Harry Wagg. Signalman romped home the winner in two of his last three times out.

The other lucky ticket holder, "Mister A. Bialous," has drawn Le Bose Giard, who won his last race and is ridden by K. Gethin.

The names of the horses drawn by the five other Canadians in the first day's draw are not included in the latest list of "probable starters" issued last Wednesday. It is expected that 38 horses will break the barrier in next week's race, one of the biggets in the history of the event.

Wragg Plans to Retire

Wragg, one of the greatest jockeys in British racing who piloted the 33-to-1 French outsider, Monsieur L'Amiral, to an upset victory in the Cesarewitch this year, plans to retire at the end of the season.

Jockey to Lord Derby this season, Wragg announced in July he would retire and aply for a trainer's licence. His race-winning tactics of waiting until the last moment before making his final spurt have earned for him the nickname of the "head waiter."

The Cambridgeshire may be one of his last mounts this year and he might "dish up" a fortune to a lucky Canadian.

Bucky Harris Being Considered For Yankee Post

(By The Canadian Press)

Conjecture over the prospective manager of New York Yankees continued unabated yesterday although it developed that the president, Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers had refused the resignation of coach Charlie Dressen "unless he were offered a major-league manager's post." Both Dressen and manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers were said to be strong candidates for the Yankee job.

President Larry MacPhail of the Yankees went so far as to say that Bucky Harris, his administrative assistant, was being given strong consideration as club manager.

Two old Frenchmen, Jean Borotra, 48, and Jacques Brugnon, 52, made a show of British players in yesterday's events of an international tennis tournament at London. Borotra defeated Donald Butler in two sets and later the French pair beat Butler and H. Billington in the doubles match in three sets.

Club owners of the Pacific Coast Baseball League decided at Los Angeles yesterday to seek a playoff series with the winner of the Little World Series next season. The subject will be dealt with at the winter meeting of the National Association of Minors.

The twice-postponed welterweight bout at Detroit between Ray Robinson and Cecil Hudson of Milwaukee has again been scheduled, this time for Nov. 1 at Olympia Stadium, Detroit. Robinson, No. 1 contender for the N. B. A. title, previously had a cold.

Toronto Staffords outplayed Oshawa Generals at Oshawa last night to take a 10-3 decision in a senior exhibition hockey game.

Racing officials at Toronto last night said horses valued at more than $100,000 will battle for two of the richest stakes ever held in Canada during the Dufferin Park fall and winter trots opening Saturday Nov. 2. The stakes are the $2,000 free-for-all pace and the $1,500 Open trot to be run Nov. 9 and 16 respectively. On opening day there will be a $400 2:18 trot; $400 2:14 pace, a division of the 2:17 pace for $400 and a 2:29 pace of two dashes for $200.

Jules Huot of Montreal yesterday compiled a 152 total of the half-way mark to continue in the Richmond, Va., Open golf tournament. Tied for first position at 141, however, were Ben Hogan, Jim Ferrier, Ellsworth Vines and Herman Keiser.

Coach Mal Stevens resigned yesterday as coach of Brooklyn Dodgers in the all-America pro football conference. The team's record: victories, 1; losses, 4; tied 1. Stevens said he was quitting "in the best interests of all concerned."

Boston Olympics of the Eastern Hockey League took a 6-4 fall out of the Valleyfield, Que., Braves last night at Boston Garden in the first game of an international series for the Hamilton B. Wills trophy.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Approximately 120,000 football fans are due to see two games at the Polo Grounds this weekend. Today's Army-Duke tussle is a sell-out of more than 59,000 seats and the Giants and Bears expect to beat 60,000 tomorrow if the fire department will let them sell enough standing room.

One Minute Sports Page

One of the season's prize baseball stories concerns the North Atlantic League manager who traded a player for three dozen baseballs—and probably got the best of the deal...John (Greek) Maskas, V.P.I. guard who specializes in blocking punts, played with Army's Barney Poole at North Carolina a couple of years ago...Manny Seamon, who trains Joe Louis, has signed up heavyweight Che Szymanski, who fought as Chet Simms before the war.

Statement by Ned Irish: "There will be eight more nights of college basketball in the Garden this winter because of increased student enrollment."

Weak End Items

Ray Peterson, Utah, U., fullback, has placekicked 15 consecutive conversions this season and when Pete has been out of the lineups his subs also have had a perfect record...Yale is worried about Eli Jackson's left shoulder, which keeps giving him trouble despite the strong brace he wears. It's the same sort of injury that bothered Clint Frank when he was starring for Old Eli.

LARGE SUM TURNED OVER

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Someone with $109.85 worth of troubled conscience can sleep more easily now since a man who described himself as "a second party" acting for "a third party" turned the sum over to Canadian Steamships.

The company said it was the largest sum it had ever received in such a manner.

McGill University Wins Track Meet

Toronto, Oct. 26. (CP)—McGill University, by a two-point total margin yesterday won the 39th annual track and field meet of the East Intercollegiate Athletic Union University of Toronto, 1945 winner, finished in second place.

McGill's margin of victory came through a second place finish in the relay event. Going into the final event, McGill and Varsity were tied 66-66. University of Western Ontario won the relay, McGill was second, Queen's University third, and Varsity last.

McGill finished the day with 69 points, Varsity with 67, Western 22 and Queen's 8. Attempts at new records failed, largely because of rain, which fell almost continuously.

Short in manpower, Queen's and Western were unable to enter in each of the 15 events and meet was largely a battle between Varsity and McGill.

Results included:

100 Yard Dash—1. Robinson (McGill); 2. D. MacFarlane, (Western); Munro (McGill); 4. Garber (Queen's); Time 10:1 secs.

Half Mile —Q. M. Gillespie, McGill; 2 .Taylor, Toronto; 3. Nevin, Toronto; 4. Donnelly, Queen's; Time 2:00:5 mins.

Mile —1. Douall, Toronto; 2. Graham, Montreal; 3. Watts, Queen's; 4. Taylor, Toronto; Time 4:41:3 mins.

Three Miles—1. Preston, Toronto; 2. Douall, Toronto; 3. Ballon, McGill; 4. Becking, Queen's; Time 15:43.4 mins.

SPORTS FALLACIES

By MARGERY MILLER

The hockey player — not the football player — is the most heavily-dressed person in sports.

Impressed by the heavy padding that goes under the grid star's uniform, fans may assume that he is bigger or fleshier than any other athlete. It isn't so.

Consider the poor hockey goalie, most heavily burdened man on the ice. The goalie's sartorial effects weigh 30 pounds. Included in his outfit are such items as shoulder pads, heavy bicep pads, heavy chest guard, shin guards weighing six pounds each, and heavily padded pants. And he needs every pound of it.

CONSTABLE SPOTS CAR MARKERS

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP)—Alwyn Collard, 28, of Windsor was arrested late yesterday on three charges of car theft after a traffic officer spotted an auto bearing markers from a car owned by Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey of Windsor, reported stolen Cept. 3. Police said they believed the markers were transferred from Mr. Awrey's car which was wrecked near Woodstock. Collard also was charged with theft of cars at Woodstock and West Lorne.

Mounties' Dog Joins in Chase For Two Robbers

Bala, Ont., Oct. 26 — (CP) — The famed German Shepherd dog "Duke" of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police station at Ohsweken, Ont., was inserted into the search for two men who Thursday robbed Samuel Devlin, Dominion government Indian agent, of $1,214 in treaty money being taken to Gibson Iroquois Reservation.

Three R.C.M.P. constables and three provincial policemen are supervising the search of the bush country near the road where the holdup occurred. Two men, one armed with a brown automatic pistol, took the money after the Indian agent stepped his car at a tree felled across the road.

Heavy rain has hampered the search and wiped out tracks left by the men.

Devlin said the men detached the ignition from his car and fled into the bush after taking the money. He then walked 4 miles to Bala and called provincial police from Parry Sound and Gravenhurst.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 26—Four persons were killed last night and three injured, two of them critically, in a five-automobile collision on the Fort Lewis highway. Police said one car swung out of its lane, colliding head-on with another and the others piled onto them.

Whipper Billy Watson Retains British Empire Wrestling Crown Defeating Badui in Two Falls

Champion Did Not Take Long to Dispose of Opponent in Third Fall

The British Empire wrestling crown will not adorn, for the present at least, the dusky brow of an Iraqian sheik, nor disport itself among the trophy decoration of tapestried tents beneath the sun-kissed palm trees of Arabian oases.

For the Sheik Emir Badui, colorful challenger for the pachydermic diadem forgot to duck in the third fall of his main bout with champion Whipper Billy Watson at the Hume Arena last night, and before he could recite "Abou Ben Adam" in that heat was pinned solidly to the mat, the victim of a furious attack by the champion after three minutes of action, and with the fall his hopes of toting the crown of Empire wrestledom back to his native Iraq went aglimmering.

Unleashed All His Power

Watson unleashed all his power, hidden and otherwise in that slashing attack in the brief but exciting few minutes of the final chukker. Subjected to heavy punishment to one of the Whipper's ears in a new form of headlock, plus a few applications of the "crab" hold, the champion, apparently infuriated when Badui attempted to repeat his tactics suddenly uncorked a vicious offensive that brought victory before a cheering, yelling capacity house realized it was over.

The champion wasn't fooling. He slithered from under the flailing arms of the wiry Iraqian, let loose a few solid elbow smashes then in a flurry of arms and legs applied his famous "Canadian Avalanche" and whirled his opponent into submission. And the faithful howled its appreciation as the two combatants shook hands after the fall.

First Fall Full of Speed

The first fall which went to the Whipper after twenty-eight minutes of fast, furious but clean wrestling caught the fancy of the pewholders. Both men served up a lightning fast exhibtion that was speed and agility all through.

The second heat saw the Sheik in a series of sweeping attacks concentrate his offensive on the Westonian noggin with particular attention paid to one of the Whipper's ears. He had the champion in a bad way early in the fall and had him practically out with his concerted offensive when Referee Ernie Powers called a halt and awarded the fall to the challenger.

Prior to the match a telegraphed challenge to the winner from Karl Davis was announced over the public address system.

Another "bad man" of wrestledom heaved himself into the spotlight in the delayed preliminary which was staged after the main bout. He is Natie Brown, former pugilist who held Joe Louis to a ten-round decision in 1935 and a couple of years later went down before the lethal fists of the Sepia Slugger in two rounds.

Awarded The Fall

In his bout with Jim Dobie last night, Brown who came out shadow-boxing with the gong, used all his wrestling knowledge plus a lot of boxing tactics. He heaved and slugged his opponent willy-nilly regardless of what happened and bids fair to become one of the worst-liked wrestlers to appear here. He was awarded the fall by Referee Fox after he had battered Dobie into submission with his fists and an irate faithful crowded about the ring at the finis. One excited lady connected with a sweeping right hook from a sturdy umbrella while male fans crowded around Brown and for a moment a donegal threatened.

Kola Kwarianni, Russian Cossack earned a draw with Frank Taylor dashing young wrestler from Hollywood, and likewise the ire of the fans. The Russian a big solid hunk of pachydemity, was not fussy about using clean tactics altogether and proved that he is a crafty wrestler. Taylor, a southpaw slugged it out with the Don from the Steppes on numerous occasions and the two after a somewhat sluggish start wound up in a blaze of punching glory as the gong sounded the end of the conventional thirty minutes.

ARMY SEEKING 24TH VICTORY

New York, Oct. 26. (AP) — The United States celebrates Navy Day today but the eyes of football followers will be on the army as the No. 1 team seeks its 24th straight victory with the 1946 college grid season at the halfway mark.

Topped by the Army-Duke clash at the Polo grounds, big games and sell-out crowds are the rule in virtually every sector. And like Army, the rest of the unbeaten 11's face some formidable competition.

Despite losses to Tennessee and North Carolina State, Wallace Wade's Blue Devils present an imposing challenge to the Cadets. A powerful Duke line averaging 205 pounds is the obstacle cadets Blanchard and Davis and their teammates have to hurdle.

Notre Dame goes to Iowa City for a real test with Iowa's Hawkeyes.

"Y" BASKETBALL PLANS SET UP FOR COMING YEAR

Eight Teams Will be Formed to Play in Different Series

Plans for the basketball program of the local Y.M.C.A. were set up at a meeting last night, when the basketball committee, elected by the interested groups met with Physical Director Ed Shortt to survey the outlook.

Gerry Hyde is acting as general chairman for the time being at least and has on his committee with him such basketball enthusiasts as Ben Ritchie, Don Mason, George Miller, Jean Wannamaker, Leola Burkholder, and Shirley Bunnett.

It has been decided to enter teams in the Intermediate "B", Junior, Juvenile, Midget, and Bantam Divisions for men and boys, and Intermediate "B" and Junior Ladies teams, hoping that some of them may cop a Provincial title.

Dr. Faulkner Coach

The committee is now on the lookout for managers and coaches for these teams in addition to those already lined up. Dr. George Faulkner, former star of McGill University Senior Intercollegiate team, and three years playing captain, will coach the Intermediate men, and probably do a considerable amount of playing as well. The Juniors are hopeful of having Jack Dickens, who took them over in mid season last year, to handle them again. Gord Bankier, now above junior age, will take on the juvenile squad, training them in the style of play used by the Juniors, and Ben Ritchie, who has been doing coaching of Intermediate squads in Toronto the past few years will take over the Midgets. No coach is yet found for the Bantams. Coaches for the girls' squads are still uncertain, but Ed Shortt will continue to work with these teams until coaches are found. Managers are available for only the Intermediate girls, Jean Wannamaker taking on this chore.

Teams Want Sponsors

The Committee is also hopeful of finding sponsors for all the teams in local business and industrial concerns.

Monday night will be basketball night in Belleville under present plans, although there is a possibility that the Armouries will be made available with its larger floor, in which case, it is hoped that Albert College, the Collegiate and the "Y" will cooperate on a larger basketball development there, playing all their home games where more spectators can be accommodated and outside teams brought in for exhibitions as well.

The committee also plans House Leagues for members, the first series to include all players and run from now until the end of the year. Separate leagues will be run for men over 18, boys under 18, and girls. These leagues will set up their own management committees. After the first of the year, when the representative teams swing into action in their leagues, modified House Leagues, barring players who play on "Y" Intermediate, and Junior, and Collegiate Senior squads will be barred.

It looks like a good year for basketball in Belleville, and some good evenings of competition should be regularly available for fans who like to watch the fastest indoor game of them all.

Batawa-Chatham Will Play at 2.15 This Afternoon

The second game of the two-of-three series for the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" finals between the Batawa Shoemen and Chatham, will be played on the Batawa diamond this afternoon at 2:15, Batawa manager Bill Easton announced this morning.

The heavy rain of yesterday and last night converted the diamond into a muddy mess, but with today's fine weather and the application of gasoline, the Batawa management was of the opinion the playing surface can be made playable.

This morning men were at work early, with the promise of fine weather, getting the diamond into shape.

The Chatham team arrived in Batawa last night and are ready to go out and snatch that all-important second game.

Gordon Muffitt, Batawa righthander is Manager Easton's pitching choice for today's battle, he stated this morning. "Smoky" Smith and other Shoemen hurlers will be held in reserve and if Muffitt comes through with a "world series" win, Smith will go to the mound for the payoff joust.

The game is officially scheduled for 2:30 this afternoon, but Manager Easton stated today that efforts will be made to get it started at 2:15. The event will be broadcast over the local radio station.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

By the time this is being read, the Bata Shoemen, weather permitting, will have their backs to the baseball wall, batting the crack Chatham squad in an effort to pull the championship series out of the fire.

• • •

Manager Bill Easton this morning was undecided as to whom his pitching choice would be for this afternoon's classic, but it will likely be Muffitt, with Smith in reserve for emergency, or as it is hoped, for that all-important third game.

• • •

The Shoemen were loud in their praises of the fine reception accorded them by the people of Chatham and they are prepared to give the Chatham squad a taste of real Batawa hospitality, both off the diamond as well as on it.

• • •

Basketball is in for a big season at the YMCA this winter according to Ed. Shortt. Both boys' and girls' teams are completely organized and plans are being laid for a banner season in all phases of the popular indoor sport.

• • •

Heading the men's organization is Gerry Hyde with Ben Ritchie representing the older boys' group and George Miller the juniors. Jean Wannamaker heads the girl's division with Leola Burkholder representing the Intermediates and Shirley Bunnett the junior gals. A combined committee composed of members of both boys' and girls' divisions will act as an overall governing body.

The boys' division will have teams in the intermediate, junior, juvenile, midget and bantam classes while the girls will field squads in intermediate "B", junior and juvenile. Junior boys' age limit is under 20 to January 1 and juvenile under 18. Junior girls must be under 18 on January 1 and juvenile under 17. Midget boys must be under 17 on Sept. 1 and bantam under 15 on the same date.

Albert College hoopsters are looking forward to a good season this year as well. Johnny Hayman will coach the basketeers and should round out a smart team. Reports from the school of learning locker rooms has it that Don Huycke, star halfback of the University of Western Ontario football squad will join the staff of the college next year and will take the gridders under his coaching wing.

• • •

Speaking of Western, Johnny Metras' Galloping Mustangs trek to Montreal this afternoon where they will take on the Big Red team in a gridiron classic. The Mustangs should beat the McGill team by at least three touchdowns. Up in Toronto, the scoreless wonders from Queen's University will attempt to lower the colors of the strong Varsity squad. The Golden Gaels will need to show a lot better form than they did in the last three starts if they want to grind the hated Blue and White into the gridiron dust. Varsity by four touchdowns.

• • •

Robert Millsaps, now a high school teacher in Chattanooga, Tennessee, likes to tell this story about his football days. During his first year at college he wrote home to tell his parents of his elevation to the varsity football squad. So they came to see his play. It was the first game they'd ever seen. The game went on and on but Millsaps didn't get into action.

• • •

In the dying seconds of the contest the coach finally sent him out on the field. In his eagerness to give his all for his Alma Mater, he stumbled and fell flat on his face just as the timer's gun went off to signal the end of the game. "Oh-h-h-!" his mother shouted, "they've shot him!"

• • •

Executive members of the Belleville Junior Hockey club held a special meeting in the Hume Arena last night anent the activities of the coming season. They decided to definitely operate a junior squad here this winter and sent the same slate of officials back into office by acclamation. Bill Dennis was renamed president, Tom Fleury, vice; secretary treasurer, Wally Berry and directors, Bill Cook, Jack Yanover, "Toots" Holway, Dr. Austin Walters and Fred Reid. Dr. "Nig" Ross will continue in the job of team physician.

• • •

The executive appointed President Bill Dennis and Secretary Berry a committee of two to attend the meeting of the Intermediate squad scheduled for the YMCA on Monday night, when the "big brothers" will seek administrative help from the junior organization. Several businessmen have been contacted and the meeting should be productive of some definite action insofar as the intermediates are concerned.

• • •

The Junior execs meeting ran off smoothly as usual and the foundation laid for another entry into junior hockey circles.

• • •

There is also a strong possibility that a juvenile team, or possibly two or three will operate in the city this winter. It has been mooted that service clubs will be asked to sponsor the young fellas and it was intimated that already one club is seriously considering taking a juvenile squad under its financial wing.

• • •

Interest in boys' organizations by business and industrial interests here has been sadly lacking for the past decade. The Y and similar organizations have been doing a good job—but they are financially unable to carry teams through a stiff schedule and subsequent playdowns. And as far as hockey is concerned, with the possibilities of an artificial ice plant being installed here, looking brighter than ever, the hockey players of the future should be given a chance to play in organized sport.

• • •

There are too many people here only too willing to criticize efforts of those who have the guts to attempt to organize sport, and who are the last to come forward with a helping hand. Give Belleville a winning team and the fans will pack the house. But let those in authority who have given of their time, money and efforts in an attempt to bring sport here, make anything that looks like an error, then the wrath of the rinkside, ringside, and armchair experts descends in a torrent.

• • •

Belleville had a banner season this year in baseball. Fans turned out in numbers not anticipated by even the most optimistic fan. The game is definitely on the upsurge. But baseball and hockey teams must have "feedboxes." Midget, bantam and juvenile squads should be organized and given every opportunity to develop into players who will carry the banner of the senior squads in the future. This city is good hockey town. And if the fans and others want to see the town back in its rightful place on the sports map then some sort of community spirit should be shown, from the top down.

• • •

And this winter is a good time to start.

EARLY INJURIES WRACKING TEAMS IN HOCKEY LOOP

Montreal Canadiens, Winners of Stanley Cup, Seem to be the Hardest Hit

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The number of early injuries wracking National Hockey League clubs indicated today the league may have declared a "survival of the fittest" marathon when it extended its 50 - game schedule an extra 10.

The 10-day old season finds hardly a team with its starting lineup intact for this four-game weekend — three tonight and one tomorrow.

The Stanley Cup Montreal Canadiens, whose start has been slower than in the last few seasons, seem about the hardest hit. Already, they have dipped into Buffalo Bisons, their American League farm team, to bring up centre Johnny Quilty for tonight's clash at home against Detroit Red Wings and the return engagement in Detroit tomorrow.

There will be missing men in tonight's other clashes, when Toronto Maple Leafs play host to Chicago Black Hawks and the surprising New York Rangers tackle the Bruins at Boston.

The matches, incidentally, should shake up the standings considerably as three teams now are tied for second place a single point behind the front - running Rangers and Maple Leafs, with Detroit two points further back in the cellar as a result of their lone tie.

One of the luckiest teams so far as injuries are concerned, Chicago suffered a heavy shock when starry forward Max Bentley went to bed with a throat ailment shortly after they checked into Toronto yesterday. The Leaf team they meet lost captain Syl Apps with a hand fracture in the opening game and may be without rookies Gus Mortson and Garth Boesch, both injured in Wednesday night's 3-3 tie with Boston.

Doubtful and non-starters for Canadiens include centres Elmer Lach, Buddy O'Connor and Murphy Chamberlain, all on the injured list, and big Butch Bouchard. Quilty, back for his first season since 1940-41 after RCAF service, was brought from Buffalo to centre captain Toe Blake and Joe Benoit.

At Boston, the Bruins had centre Don Gallinger and Bobby Bauer, winger of the Kitchener line, out for their last meeting with Leafs and both are doubtful starters.

Many Artificial Rinks Proposed In Canada Being Hampered By Materials, Labor Shortages

Most of the Organizations Supported by Civic and Private Subscriptions

By The Canadian Press

Spurred by civic and private organizations, blueprints for new or improved artificial ice rinks or rink-community centres are beginning to take shape on drawing boards across the country and, in some cases, the propects have progressed beyond the blueprint stage.

Generally the plans, conceived during the war by citizens and public officials whose enthusiasm for winter sports was supplemented by the belief that the centres would play an important part in community life and help curb juvenile delinquency, are still being hampered by material and labor shortages.

A Canadian Press survey indicates that the new projects range from a $2,500,000 centre in Winnipeg that will include a stadium, arena and facilities for industrial and agricultural exhibitions, to a $18,000 hockey rink soon to be under construction at Gore Bay, Ont., on Manitoulin Island.

The cost of the projects, not undertaken by private organizations is being met by public subscriptions supplemented by civic grants. Because of the shortage of building materials, it will be at least a year before many of the larger projects will be completed.

Most Ambitious

Winnipeg's plans are by far the most ambitious, with the cost of the arena expected to exceed $500,000. The arena and the stadium, costing $100,000, both will have a seating capacity of 10,000. The project still is in the planning stage but it is hoped to have it financed by public subscriptions and grants from the Provincial and Federal governments.

The survey showed the projects are mostly being undertaken in Ontario and Nova Scotia. Both lakehead cities, Fort William and Port Arthur, have plans for civic community centres but Port Arthur is not contemplating building a rink since it already has an adequate one. Fort William's project will cost $300,000 to $400,000.

In Sudbury enthusiasm is high for the contemplated new civic auditorium and arena costing more than $500,000. A committee recently visited Buffalo and several cities in Ontario to study arenas already constructed or their proposed plans.

Residents in North Bay, will vote Dec. 9 to approve the city purchasing the North Bay arena and making improvements at a cost of $60,000 while in Sault Ste. Marie construction already is underway on a $400,000 rink and community building, cost of which was approved at the municipal election last January.

City Council Votes Sum

A drive for funds for a community centre in Sarnia, netted $120,000 and another $30,000 in pledges was obtained. Two years ago Peterborough citizens contributed $200,000 for its proposed project and city council voted an additional $75,000. Another $150,000 will be necessary before work can be started.

Similar plans have been drawn up in Kitchener, Kingston, Simcoe, with the cost for Kitchener's project set at $450,000, Kingston's at more than $300,000 and Simcoe's at $150,000.

At Wolfville, N.S., Acadia University is planning to install artificial ice in its hockey and curling rink but, as in most other cases, building and labor shortages are holding up any start on the work.

Staffords Beat Oshawa Generals

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Ten Clubs have teams in the Ontario Junior "A" Hockey League which starts its season Nov. 1 at Barrie with Stratford the visiting team.

The other teams are: Toronto St. Michael's College, Canadian Junior finalists last season, Windsor, Toronto Young Rangers, St. Catharines Falcons, Toronto Marlboros, Oshawa Generals, Hamilton and Galt.

Coach Charlie Conacher, former Toronto Maple Leaf Star, gave his Oshawa Generals a chance to work out in faster company last night when they met Toronto Staffords, Senior League team, in an exhibition game. Staffords, eliminated from Allan Cup play last season by the Eastern Canadian Champion Hamilton Tigers, won the game 10-3.

Playing on the Oshawa team was Chick Gamble, former Moncton Junior. Used on the Oshawa defence, Gamble failed to break into the scoring but showed to advantage on several occasions.

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP) — Whether to credit United States imports or Canada's own returned servicemen finds arguments on both sides but there seems no doubt that a combination of the two has added up to some of the best football seen in the east for many years.

For that, you have the word of coaches of two of the top teams in the east's playoff hunt, Ted Morris of Toronto Argonauts and George Fraser of Ottawa Rough Riders. Both graduates of the hard-knocks school, they declare this post-war season as tough as any they played in.

"Those American boys are out there hustling all the time and that helps make it plenty tough," said Morris who, despite his determination to maintain an all-Canadian team, has a healthy respect for the imports.

"It used to be that they came up here and turned out to be a detriment to your team — all they thought they had to do was throw a few passes and they'd earned their salary. But this year they're getting paid good dough and they're working for it."

He found no argument there from Fraser, approached last Saturday just after his Rough Riders had trounced Argos, 12-3, with such Americans as Fred Facciolla, Bernie Millham, Hank Christman and Make Franco playing major roles. Fraser also had a word for our own.

"If you want any one star of this game, there he is," said Ottawa's onetime all-star inside, pointing to where Tony Golab happily accepted team-mates plaudits as he changed. "That boy still carries shrapnel in his leg. See the scar on his left calf. I rest him often because it hurts him but when he's on, he mixes it with the toughest."

Golab, the pre-war golden boy of great Sarnia and Ottawa teams, was jut one among the returned servicemen predominating on all teams, most of them better football players for their war years, Fraser added.

Both Fraser and Morris put the start of this year's import business on Lew Hayman, who served notice early he intended to power his Montreal Alouettes with such Americans as Johnny Moody, Herb Trawyck, Wally Spencer, Rafe Nabors and Virgil Wagner. Ottawa followed suit but Morris stoutly maintained Argos would retain their Grey Cup title with Canadians.

"We still will and it wouldn't even have been close if we did not have bad luck in losing our quarterbacks," said Ted. "Our boys are just as good as the best they can send us from the States.

"But don't say the Canadians are better. It'll make the Americans up here mad and that'll make them all the tougher to beat."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If a chronic finesser would count what he spends, he would quit as a guesser and learn strip-and-ends. For an endplay will lead to a winning digress from the unwelcome need of a losing finesse.

A strip-and-endplay is the clever operation used to avoid the taking of a finesse. To learn how to execute such a play is not too big a chore. The main thing is to understand how it works.

To get the hang of such a play, look first at the final result. See what happens in the end. Get a picture of what you expect to find after you have done what you set out to accomplish.

This will help you realize that certain steps must be taken in preparation of your final acts. Also why these steps must be timed exactly in order to reach the desired climax.

See the final three cards in each hand of a deal shown here:

South is the declarer. He has led up to this spot. His purpose was to make sure of taking two of these remaining three tricks.

Still in the lead, suppose south now leads one of the diamonds. Whether or not the dummy is finessed east is bound to take two of the three tricks. He will get a diamond and his club ace.

Instead of a diamond, suppose south leads his lone club. East wins with the ace and must return a diamond. It drops straight into the jaws of the dummy A Q for dummy to take two diamond tricks.

Thus, it is evident that the taking of the finesse is a bad play. Throwing east into the lead for an endplay return from there is a lead that saves a trick.

This is the result of an endplay situation. But what a player needs to know also is how to reach such a situation. Also how to recognize it is there. That's another story.

Hollywood Column

Hollywood, Oct. 26 (AP)—If current negotiations follow through, Phil Baker will assume a position with MGM similar to George Jessell's at 20th-Fox. The accordionist-comedian would act as goodwill ambassador for the studio, as well as assuming production chores.

Winnipeg-born Deanna Durbin is another who is anxious to have a radio show of her own. Even after all her experience she is mike-shy, so she's taking a few guest appearances to overcome the phobia.

Turhan Bey's mother received a letter back from her soldier son marked "discharged." So apparently the talented Turk is on his way back to Hollywood. He always was an enlivening factor in the social scene, not that it isn't hectic enough now.

When Joan Crawford finishes "Possessed", she is packing children, secretary and dogs and heading for a New York vacation. When I asked her if she planned any dates in New York, Joan said: "I don't care. This may sound bitter, but I'm really not interested." The gal is anti-romance. For a while, anyway.

Jane Wyman soon starts "Magic Town," following up her other loan-out hits, "Lost Week-End" and "The Wearling." Jane has been 11 years at Warners, and, says husband Ronald Reagan, her home lot is the only studio that hasn't discovered her.

In Manhattan

By FRANK HINDS

New York, Oct. 26—(CP)—As dated as the stereoscope and the family album, "Lady Windermere's Fan" settled in for a prosperous run on Broadway last week as the sixth and most resplendent of a season of revivals.

The Oscar Wilde period piece with its preposterous plot and waxworks situations was turned into brilliant theatre by a cast headed by Cornelia Otis Skinner, Henry Daniell and Estelle Winwood. But Wilde shared the honors of the evening with Cecil Beaton, the British designer who embellished the production with settings and costumes as rococo as a wedding cake and as mannered and witty as the epigrams in the mouths of the actors.

Lacy and Barque as a Victorian valentine, Beaton's costumes and sets are charming, tasteful satires on the mode of the 19th century.

This was the third Beaton-designed production to awe Broadway this season. The other two were ballets.

Penelope Ward, an English actress, is the grave Lady Windermere who so carelessly left her fan in a bachelor's apartment.

She speaks Wilde's lines as though they were regulation in her private life.

The play was last seen on Broadway in 1914 when Margaret Anglin of Ottawa and Toronto headed a cast which included Sydney Greenstreet — the fat menace of Hollywood thrillers of today.

Ghosts: There is no better commentary on the state of modern American playwrighting than the current list of revivals. Another last week was John Webster's 17th century scenery-chewer, "The Duchess of Malfi," starring Elizabeth Bergner. Negro Actor Canada Lee appeared in "Whiteface" in this production, getting even as it were with all the white actors who have appeared in burnt cork. The consensus was that it was a dreary, blood-and-thunder affair which didn't frighten anybody except the producers. British poet W. H. Auden did the adaptation of the awful classic.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Kid Millions"

The $200,000 finale in "Kid Millions" is the ice cream sequence in the Eddie Cantor musical filmed in Technicolor.

As a magnificent gesture of confidence in the American public's appreciation of novelty in screen entertainment, Samuel Goldwyn expended $210,000 on the production of a unique Technicolor fantasy ending for "Kid Millions." The musical opening next at the Capitol Theatre.

Nothing quite like the sequence has been filmed before. It may best be described as a "Silly Symphony," done with human beings and with exaggerated settings and properties instead of animated cartoons.

It is a Brooklyn street urchin's wish come true — a fantasy of what a poor boy wants to do when he gets rich.

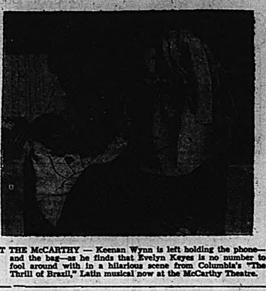
Among the amazing settings are a fantastic ice cream factory, three huge "contented cows" which moo and nod and swish their tails while lovely Goldwyn Girls as milk maids sing and dance for them; a gigantic ice cream freezer on the top of which an ice skating ballet of thirty beautiful girls is staged; a free ice cream counter where 500 youngsters are served ice cream to the rhythm of a Kahn and Donaldson song hit, and a row of truly colossal ice cream sodas, each of which is thirty feet high. The technical ingenuity which made these settings possible in a splendid tribute to the imaginative genius of studio artisans.

"Arrowsmith"
On the Same Program

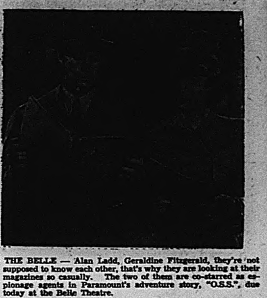
Never has the screen offered such a compelling motion picture as the samuel Goldwyn presentation of Sinclair Lewis' prize winning novel, "Arrowsmith," starring Ronald Colman with Helen Hayes and Myrna Loy. No expense was spared in bringing this story to the screen. It is a gripping, vitally dramatic production ...a great picture, inspiring, brilliant and breathlessly real. Due to the length of this sensational double feature program the first show opens at 6.45 p.m. Monday evening.

STOLDOLA DIES

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 24 — (Reuters) — The death of Kornel Stoldola, 80, Czech industrialist who before the war frequently attended international economic conferences on behalf of his country, was announced today.



AT THE McCARTHY — Keenan Wynn is left holding the phone—and the bag—as he finds that Evelyn Keyes is no number to fool around with in a hilarious scene from Columbia's "The Thrill of Brazil," Latin musical now at the McCarthy Theatre.



AT THE BELLE — Alan Ladd, Geraldine Fitzgerald, they're not supposed to know each other, that's why they are looking at their magazines so casually. The two of them are co-starred as espionage agents in Paramount's adventure story, "O.S.S.", due today at the Belle Theatre.

1,765 Live Mining Companies Listed

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—A record total of 1,765 live Canadian mining companies is listed in the 1946 edition of Canadian Mines handbook. A low of 544 live companies was listed in 1946.

Altogether 7,000 companies are listed. Of the live companies 150 were revivals of companies dormant for many years. There have been casualties with 127 operations stopped during the past year.

Quebec remains the scene of the largest number of newly initiated operations. Yellowknife follows closely and British Columbia has become extremely active. This city remains ahead as the centre of mining. Of 530 new incorporations listed, 444 were organized in Ontario, 41 in British Columbia, 35 in Quebec, five in Manitoba.

MINK COAT

CHAPTER 38

"H'm," Dennis commented. He lay back, stretched in his chair, his eyes closed. The fire burned on the big logs, and rain rapped on the porch roof and gurgled in the gutters. Before the next rain Isabel would be far away, building herself a life completely removed from this halcyon life on the hilltop. None of the happy domestic miracles were to be hers any more; breakfasts on frosty mornings when the fire crackled and coffee scented the air; when sunshine dazzled over the glassy puddles in the road and the iced level that was the lawn. No more Aprils, when the hills' meadows turned green and spangled themselves with poppies and buttercups and the blue wild onion flowers. No more picnics on the ridge, when Dennis made the fire, and her arms full of pale wild lilac and the pungent tassels of mountain currant. No more of the fences and paddocks, the oaks and guardian eucalyptus of the hilltop.

And no more Dennis, lying relaxed opposite her in his old leather chair, with his dark eyes closed and his temples sunken. Well, they were all tired, after the anxious days and night-long vigils of Catherine's illness, but was that all, was that the real reason for his silence tonight, the explanation of the lines about his mouth, the faint frown etched on his forehead? Lean, brown, strong he lay there, and Isabel watched him and felt her heart sick with longing and with despair.

"You'll probably go to England after the war, Dennis?"

He opened his eyes, sent her the smile she never could see without emotion.

"Madge wants to go. I'd like to go," he answered.

"You wouldn't stay there?"

"I don't think so. I wouldn't want to leave the girls too long, nor take them away from Mother—and from their mother —" Dennis formulated it slowly, "too long, either."

Isabel felt her heart stop. She could make no reply. Neither spoke again.

The conversation went on spasmodically, and with some effort, when supper was served. Catherine came out in her blue-and-pink dressing gown, escorted by her mother and followed by her father with the indispensable plaid. All three girls were in high glee at her return to family life, and the waffles disappeared briskly. Isabel, herself manipulating the waffle irons on the supper table, cooked the last scraped spoonful of yellow batter and looked apologies.

"It's my fault; I told you that twice the recipe would be enough Mom."

"It should have been, too."

"We'll have them again," Isabel promised consolingly. "You will," she thought. "I won't be here."

After the meal Pussy and Esme raced back and forth on the business of clearing the table; Dennis replenished the fire; Isabel carried Catherine in to bed and settled her off for the night. There was a brisk session with the carpet sweeper; a flurry about the dishpan. Then Esme and Pussy dragged themselves reluctantly upstairs to bed, and the others sat awhile by the fire, still conscious of awkwardness, of a stiffness in the group that embraced Dennis's first wife, the woman he loved, and the woman who had taken her place.

"I've had a letter from my brother, up near Vancouver," Madge said presently in a silence.

Dennis pulled on his pipe; Isabel spoke.

"I didn't know you had a brother."

"My husband's brother. No, my brother was killed in the first few weeks of the war," Madge explained. "This is John's brother, Arthur Somers-Cox. I told you of him today. He wants us to come up there."

"Anything wrong?" Dennis said, taking his pipe out of his mouth.

"No," Madge said. "But I think Esme and I will be on our way very shortly."

"How do you mean, Madge?" Mrs. Hardisty asked quickly.

"Well, they want us, and I think we will go any day now," Madge said, by way of answer.

Isabel saw Dennis glance over at her sharply.

"When do you want to go, dear?" he asked.

"You're not in this, Dennis," Madge said. She was half smiling; her eyes were on the fire.

"I am," Isabel said, "and I ask you, Madge—I beg you, not to decide anything now. I asked you that today!"

"I know you did," Madge agreed, and was silent, her own eyes fixed on the leaping flames. "Arthur's farm," she presently resumed, "is quite jolly. We stopped there, on our way here, and Esme loved it. He has boys — three boys, and there are other children within a few miles, and no private school. I thought I might start all over again. I seem to know how to do it."

"Why are you saying this, Madge?" Dennis asked in a hard, disapproving voice that Isabel never had heard.

"I think—I have to say it," she answered, with a smile for him.

"And I ask that we give all this time—only time," Isabel begged.

"Isabel is right," Mrs. Hardisty said. "We must not decide anything now. It can only lead to more unhappiness, to more—mistakes. Madge, my dear, believe me. Dennis, you know I am right."

"I know," he said quietly, glancing from his mother to his wife, "that Madge isn't going to make any plans that don't include me. I can take a few weeks' holiday, Madge, when the girls are with Isabel. Then you and I and Esme will go up to Vancouver and visit the farm."

Madge was silent for a moment, an odd expression on her face. Presently she laughed briefly.

"Isn't a little knowledge a strange thing, one may be so honest—so earnest—when one doesn't know," she said. "You see, there's something I have to tell you good people, and it may as well be now. It's this. John wasn't killed —he's living. He's coming here.

"That won't make the slightest difference," Mrs. Hardisty began sharply. She stopped in mid-sentence. "Your husband!" she whispered.

"My husband," Madge confirmed it.

"I don't know what you mean," Dennis said, his brows knitted as he looked across at her.

"I mean just that," Madge said lightly, in a hard voice. "I wasn't going to tell you. I was going away without telling you. Out of meanness, Dennis."

"Living?" Isabel whispered incredulously.

"Yes, it's not such an unusual story—except perhaps not so common for the airmen as the others," Madge went on. She looked at the fire, her expression a little baffled, as if she were explaining in spite of herself. "He was in a German camp for a long while," she said. "When he came out a few months ago I gather that he thought he was dying — he'd gone down to something like eight stone—and John's a big man. His eyes were gone — all But. He managed to get to an old aunt, in Scotland, and she's been taking care of him."

"He's written you!" This was Dennis's mother.

"He's well enough to travel?" Dennis asked.

"He's quite all right, eyes and all," Madge said. "Except that he says he's thin. He says he looks like Banquo's ghost."

"But you didn't tell us?" Mrs. Hardisty said, puzzled and troubled.

"No, I couldn't somehow. I suppose I hoped—idiotically enough—that something might happen, that he might have found someone, too, that he mightn't want me back. I don't know what I hoped."

"Your husband is alive?" Isabel whispered, staring.

"Very much alive. He's coming here. I think I thought I might keep it from you, Mary," Madge said to Dennis's mother. "That I might go away and never let you know that he had come back. Never give you your full happiness, Isabel." She laughed a mirthless little laugh.

"He?" Isabel stammered, turning scarlet.

"I suppose I thought something like that," Madge said, her eyes narrowed and fixed on space. She spoke as if it was hard to say the words.

"I don't think you did, somehow." Dennis spoke slowly. He smiled at her.

"At all events, I didn't tell,' she said. "I was trying to, and then Catherine had her accident, and Isabel came, and I saw that I didn't belong here—I wanted so to belong!"

Isabel leaned back in her chair, weak with the shock, and the new light—the new certainties— that were flooding her heart.

"That's that, then," Madge was saying, "and you know it now. While I thought John would stay in England, or at least in Canada, I could say what I liked here. But when I went over to the other house, before dinner, there was a telegram there from him saying he's on his way here. I'd had a letter, from Glasgow, almost a week ago."

"But Madge," Isabel said, "surely you're glad—surely you're glad? I mean——"

"Very glad, of course," Madge said lifelessly, as Isabel paused.

"It's a terrific thing," Dennis mused, as if to himself, "a man back from the dead."

"Well, exactly," Madge agreed, with a philosophical shrug.

"I can't believe it," Mrs. Hardisty exclaimed. "I really cannot. It seems too extraordinary."

"No, I don't quite believe it." Madge stared into the fire for a long minute. "Three years ago," she presently began, "they told me he was dead. They said the plane that he was in had been blown to pieces before the eyes of the other men, and went down in the Channel. The notice that I got was the regulation one from the War Office—they felt there was no question about it. Naturally I felt so, too. My father and mother were gone, my boy had been killed by a bursting bomb in our little town in Surrey, my brother was lost in the very first weeks of the air war. There was nobody left. Nobody."

"He escaped from the plane?" This was Dennis. He had left his chair and now sat beside her on the couch, holding her hand. Madge turned her colorless face and darkened eyes to him. Isabel saw how her fingers gripped his.

"He wasn't in that plane. I don't know the details, Dennis. He and some other officer had changed planes for some reason, just before the flight. That plane—and whoever was in it—was blown to pieces, I suppose. John only wrote me that his plane had come down in enemy territory. 'Rickey took my boat, poor chap,' he said. I don't know who Rickey was."

"And you got this news last week?"

"Yes. I've known for six days."

"For six days!" Mrs. Hardisty said it wonderingly, sadly.

"Yes. That's the hard part of having to tell you. His letter reached me six days ago. He's here by this time—in Canada. He's coming here for Esme and me. I suppose I hoped"—an apologetic note had come into Madge's voice; she looked about the little circle appealingly— "I suppose perhaps I hoped that something—that he might not come—that this might go on a little longer. I've been so happy here—I need so much to find just this, to get away from so much else!" she said.

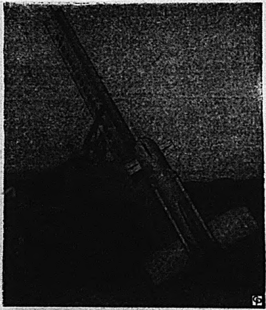
On its way—This is the KDD-1, a radio-controlled target drone. This guided missile is shown taking off from its launching platform at a California navy rocket test centre. The KDD-1 was the first target aircraft to be powered by a jet engine. It was developed for use as a high-speed gunnery training target.

NAVY STEPS UP ITS PILOTLESS AIRCRAFT, GUIDED MISSILE PROGRAM AT TEST CENTER

By HAROLD KEEN
(Central Press Canadian)



This is "Little Joe"—Lieut.-Comdr. inspects "Little Joe," a short-range, radio-controlled anti-aircraft developed late in the war against the Japanese. "Joe" is designed for launching from a shipboard catapult.

Point Mugu, Cal., Oct. 26—Weird, radio-controlled pilotless aircraft and guided by missles are shattering the isolation of this southern California area as the United States Navy seeks to penetrate the veil of the future.

Admittedly belated are the efforts to overtake and surpass the scientific progress in robot weapons attained during the war by the Germans, whom time barely edged out in the race to unleash weapons with power, range and accuracy terrifying to the imagitation.

Officers in charge of the United State Naval Air Missles Test Centre here, Capt. A. B. Scoles, commander, and Cmdr. Grayson Merrill, technical director, do not hesitate to admit that the United States would still be far behind in the development of guided missiles if not for captured Nazi information and assistance of German scientists now in this country.

During the war, while Germany devoted a great portion of her resources to experiments with supersonic wind tunnels and manufacture of V-1 and V-2 robot bombs, The United States neglected such research. But, the Navy now is determined to make up for lost time, according to Scoles and Merrill.

Among the missiles are such fantastic weapons as "Little Joe," "Gorgon," "Gargoyle," "Loon" and other "birds" some of which already have become obsolete by the swift progress of science.

Here at Point Mugu is the proving ground for rocket-launched, jet-propelled bombs guided to targets by radio; for winged missiles equipped to follow a target relentlessly until it is shattered, and for jet-propelled "drone" plane that can be put through intricate aerial manoeuvres by radio control from the ground.

There is "little Joe," for example, which is built to be launched from shipboard by rocket and guided by radio to destroy attacking planes.

"Gorgon" can be launched from another plane and steered by remote control by a pilot who can watch the bomb's progress through a television device in its nose.

"Gargoyle" is a jet-propelled bomb which can follow the most evasive manoeuverings of a target and "Loon" is the Navy's version of the Nazi's V-1.

Merrill by the way, admits that even today certain characteristics of the German V-2 and its successor, the X-4, which had not yet been put to use but might well have wrecked the Allied air force's capacity for saturation bombing of Europe, have not yet been equalled by technicians of this country.

However military thinking now is far ahead of these realities in guided missiles. Project supervisors at Mojave already are casually speaking of "homing" weapons, which would be so made as to search out their own targets after radio control takes them to the general vicinity.

A hint of what such weapons might do is seen in the war-time torpedoes which homed to the noise from a ship's propellers, and the bombs which followed infra-red rays from the heat of hidden furnaces to seek out camouflaged factories.

Big Research Program

President Truman has approved a greatly expanded organization for research in pilotless aircraft and guided missiles. Headquarters and the nucleus staff were moved down from Mojave to Point Mugu, which is on the southern California coast between Santa Monica and Santa Barbara. Here a 150-mile sea test range is available, and total installation on the 4,000-acre tract will cost nearly $40,000,000.

Observation stations were to be built on lonely islands off the southern California coast to track by radar the flights of screaming eerie projectiles travelling at supersonic speeds.

"It is important to realize that the navy must go ahead in this field because of the nature of the weapons which will likely be employed in any future war," Captain Scoles says.

"It has not been demonstrated that aircraft alone can produce an adequate defence of offense for this country, and it is therefore vital that the navy remain foremost among the navies of the world.

"The navy's work is centred around the types of pilotless aircraft and guided missiles that can be launched from ships or submarines, or can be launched from carrier-based aircraft or seaplanes.

"Looking to the future with rocket and jet-propelled radio-controlled pilotless aircraft or guided missiles, it can be presumed that surprise initial attacks will occur from long range aircraft. But at the same time there must be in the foreseeable future, means whereby these devices can be carried closer to their objective prior to launching.

"The navy, through the medium of submarines and surface craft, particularly aircraft carriers, provides the only means to accomplish this purpose."

If the next war is to be a "push-button" affair, the navy intends to be at the control board, pushing the buttons before it is too late. This at least, is the determined attitude of the still-small group of men here in the desert.

Truman Wants Entry For More Jews in Palestine

No Inconsistency in U.S. Position Stated in Letter

Washington, Oct. 28 — (AP) — President Truman has sent a message to King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia reiterating his belief that steps should be taken to ensure the immediate substantial immigration of refugee Jews into Palestine.

He told the Arab leader that he could not agree with the latter's statement that there were inconsistency in the American position.

Replying to a letter received from Ibn Saud Oct. 15, the president wrote:

"With regard to the possibility envisaged by Your Majesty that force and violence may be used by Jews in aggressive schemes against the neighboring Arab countries, I can assure you that this government stands opposed to aggression of any kind or to the employment of terrorism for political purposes. I may add, moreover, that I am convinced that responsible Jewish leaders do not contemplate a policy of aggression against the Arab countries adjacent to Palestine".

The president said he still adhered to the belief, "widely shared by the people of this country," that nothing would contribute more effectively to the alleviation of the plight of homeless Jews "than the authorization of the immediate entry of at least 100,000 of them in Palestine".

In a letter released by the White House today he reminded the Arab leader that no decision has been made on this proposal which he submitted originally to Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain more than a year ago.

In the interim, he said, "it is only natural" that the United States government should favor "at this time the entry into Palestine of considerable numbers of displaced Jews in Europe."

The president reiterated a previous view that a concerted effort should be made "to open the gates of other lands, including the United States, to those unfortunate persons."

He added that he is prepared to ask Congress for special legislation "admitting to this country additional numbers of these persons, over and above the immigration quotas fixed by our laws."

Finding of 200 Mutilated Bodies Testifies to Activity of Leopard Men

By R. F. S. DEWDNEY

Johannesburg, South Africa, Oct. 28 — (AP)—The leopard men of Nigeria are on the prowl again. Recent reports state that upward of 200 clawed and mutilated bodies, victims of the leopard men, have been found in the jungle fastnesses.

Nobody knows the exact origin of the leopard men, or "anyotos," but they have given more trouble to white administrators than any other secret society in the history of African colonization. They spread terror among various tribes from Mozambique, across the Congo to the West African coast.

The Anyoto wears a leopard skin over his head and down to his waist, with holes cut for his eyes. On each wrist is an ingenious iron bracelet with four sharp prongs which lie flat against the hand when open but project forward like claws when the fist is clenched. They often carry a stick with a replica of a leopard's paw on one end. By jabbing this into damp oil they give the impression of a leopard stalking a victim.

On the warpath, the leopard men wait beside a jungle trail until an unsuspecting villager comes along. Then, shrieking like the animals they emulate, they spring on his back and claw out his jugular vein with their iron hooks. The body is dragged into a convenient clearing and mutilated amid a frenzy of fanatical mumbo-jumbo.

The witch doctor takes what he needs for his "medicines," and then the bag of charms called the "bofima" is produced for the ceremony of keeping it "alive." The black bag of human skin about the size of a large sausage is kept "alive" by periodically painting with human blood. Finally, the leopard men eat parts of their victims to protect them from sickness and endow them with certain mystic virtues.

WILLIAM E. LAMA CAPTURED AFTER 71-DAY SEARCH

Sought for Questioning In Connection With Stabbing of His Wife And Daughter

Cornwall, Oct. 28 — (CP) — William Earl (Bowser) Lama, 49-year-old Harrison's Corners farmer who for 71 days eluded police and residents of Eastern Ontario who sought him for questioning in connection with the stabbing of his wife and daughter, today is behind bars in Stormont county jail.

A citizens' posse captured him Saturday night in a cellar in nearby Moulinette after an alert county constable, William Seymour, heard him foraging for food. Lama offered no resistance and told police he had never been more than five miles from the Moulinette district since two days after the slaying.

Remanded until Nov. 1 for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder, he denied having any part in the brutal killing with a pig-sticking knife of his wife and nine-year-old daughter at their farm shack last Aug. 16.

Nothing to Eat for Day

Hunger drove Lama to tiny Moulinette where once before he had found refuge in a vacant house from which he fled upon discovery. He told police he had not eaten for an entire day.

He found the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis empty — its owners had gone to Cornwall for the day—and started to forage in the basement for food. The noise of his movements attracted the attention of Constable Seymour, who lives next door to the Ellis home.

Constable Seymour went out with his flashlight and in the gathering darkness saw that the screen and window had been pulled off at the rear of the basement.

Surrounded House

"I saw Lama lighting matches in the cellar," he related. "I went to my own home and told my wife to call the police. Then I got hold of Stanley Bisbee, a neighbor, and we went back to the house while my wife got other neighbors to help. We surrounded the house.

"In the meantime, my wife brought me my gun and while I was loading it at the cellar window, Lama was watching me, as cool as could be."

In a few minutes, Sgt. H. Poirier and Constable Gerald Belanger of the Cornwall township police arrived and Sgt. Poirier shouted:

"Come on out, we've got you covered."

Lama scrambled out of the cellar window. Police took him to Cornwall township police office where he gave a voluntary statement to Chief R. H. Hawkshaw.

The capture drew hundreds of people to the township police office in the hope of catching a glimpse of the man whose long flight from pursuing law officers had given rise to the saying in these parts of 'Lama was here' — a saying which was the source of much chagrin to police.

Heavy Guard Maintained

Police kept heavy guard around the police office during the four hours they questioned Lama.

"We are certainly glad this part of the business is finished now," said Chief Hawkshaw. "It has meant more work than residents realize."

The police made many fruitless expeditions to run down residents' tips concerning Lama's whereabouts. He was reported everywhere in the Cornwall district and hundreds of miles away. He was tracked once by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police dog "Duke" but still eluded pursuers, reportedly because he knew like a book the bushlands in the Moulinette area.

Lama told police he had stolen food on several occasions but denied that he had been given help by friends in the Moulinette area. Police at one time held the theory friends were harboring and feeding Lama and issued a stiff warning against assisting him.

CONVERSATIONS NOT BINDING

London, Oct. 28 (CP)—Prime Minister Attlee said today that last week's conversations between Foreign Secretary Bevin and Prime Minister Ismail Sidky Pasha of Egypt were not binding on either government.

Earlier a high source in Cairo said Mr. Bevin had agreed in treaty negotiations to recognize Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan, long a stumbling block in negotiations for revision of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of 1936, and to withdraw British troops from Egypt within three years.

Powerful Issues Underlie Press Debate in Commons

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Oct. 28 —(Reuters)— Powerful issues underlie the parliamentary press debats opening Tuesday in which the House of Commons will decide whether there should be a royal commission of inquiry into the control, management and ownership of Britain's newspaper press.

The government, standing aloof, has said that the question must be decided by a free vote of members regardless of party. Critics, however, have charged that the government apparently is assuming that there will be an inquiry.

Terms of reference of the commission appear to have been settled, and the type of person who will sit on the commission seems also to have been considered. It apparently is intended to invest the commission with wide powers in calling evidence and insuring the production documents.

Some observers describe the situation as a clash between government supporters, resentful of the character of Conservative press criticism of the Socialist regime, and opposition supporters who hold the criticism justified.

The motion, in the name of Labor Member Hayden Davies and other journalist members of parliament, demands the inquiry on the grounds of "increasing public concern at the growth of monopolistic tendencies" and in the interests of "furthering free expression of opinion and the greatest practicable accuracy in the presentation of news."

The controversy, however, is much older than the motion. It recalls an opposition move early this year to promote an inquiry into the working of the BBC, which is a public corporation and a monopoly.

The National Union of Journalists last spring passed a resolution asking for a press inquiry.

The Lord President of the Council, Herbert Morrison, himself launched an attack recently upon the Conservative opposition press.

Conservatives are expected to oppose an inquiry as being unnecessary, to describe it as an attempt to muzzle criticism and an attack upon one of the fundamental freedoms—liberty of the press.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, Deputy British prosecutor in the Nuernberg trials, and former Conservative cabinet member, will be chief opposition spokesman. He is expected to criticize the government for what the opposition regards as its sensitiveness to criticism.

Mr. Morrison will be the sole cabinet speaker, summing up before the vote is taken.

If the demand for an inquiry is carried, it probably will be announced immediately. The commission if appointed, is expected to be vested with the power of a select committee — Britain's strongest constitutional probe. It will have power to call in evidence anyone from a newspaper peer to a country weekly paper proprietor or the editor of a countrywide syndicate.

ORDERLY VOTING MARKS ELECTION IN BULGARIA

First Report Shows Workers' Communist Party Leading All the Rest

Sofia, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The Communist - dominated Fatherland Front was reported by the Bulgarian government today to have won 296 assembly seats to 83 for the united opposition parties in returns from 99 districts in the Sunday elections.

The assembly will have 465 members and thus the Fatherland Front already is assured a working majority.

The announcement said most of the candidates elected were of the Workers' party (Communists).

In Sofia, complete returns gave the Fatherland Front parties 277,323 votes to 95,535 for the united opposition, election officials said.

Of the parties in the Fatherland Front, the Communists (Workers) were said to have polled 141,942 votes.

The election marked the first outright opposition challenge of the Fatherland Front's two-year rule.

60 Per Cent Vote.

Sixty per cent of the eligible voters were reported to have cast ballots in the Pleven region, 75 per cent each in the Varna and Gorna Djourmaia regions and 95 per cent in the Svoge region.

Previsional President Vassil Kolarov, a Workers' party leader, told correspondents: "I personally visited some polling stations and witnessed complete order."

Newspapermen who visited a number of polling stations found ballots of all parties, both of the Fatherland Front and the opposition, at the disposal of electors.

Voters — about 4,000,000 were eligible — cast secret ballots for 465 members of the National Assembly of the new republic, proclaimed Sept. 15 after a plebiscite deposed King Simeon II. Twice in the weeks preceding the election, the American representative on the Allied control commission for Bulgaria—representing the United States, Britain and Russia—had proposed and the Russian had rejected measures to guarantee a free and fair election. Diplomatic correspondence on the matter passed between the United States and Bulgarian governments.

Faced Challenge.

In yesterday's balloting, which was for party list rather than individuals, the Fatherland Front faced a clearcut challenge for the first time.

The Front took over the government two years ago and switched Bulgaria from the Axis to the Allied side in the war. Last Nov. 18, the opposition boycotted an election in which only one slate was ordered. This year oppositionists put up a fight.

CHINESE TROOPS MOVING ON FREE PORT OF DARIEN

Seeking to Cut Funnel of Supply for Chinese Communists

By TOM MASTERSON

Peiping, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Chinese Government troops in Manchuria today were reported by official sources to be moving along two routes toward the big Soviet-occupied free port of Darien, apparently seeking to cut a suspected major funnel of supply for Chinese Communist armies in Manchuria.

There was no indication that Dairen itself was the goal of the drives south from captured Anshan, along the Mukden-Dairen railroad, and southeast from Antung, the Manchuria- Korea border city seized two days ago.

The move might be designed to sever any overline supply shipments from Dairen. The port has been described by government sources as one of the Chinese Communists' chief pipelines to the south—an interference the Russians were helping.

(There has been no indication of Soviet withdrawal as yet from Dairen, a sore point in Chinese-Russian relations. The Soviets agreed under the 1945 Sino-Soviet treaty to joint control of the port by the two powers, but the Russians have maintained a large garrison there and have forbidden intrusion by the Chinese Government and a United States naval Party.)

Government capture of Chefoo, the main Communist port on the Shantung Penninsula of North China, appeared imminent. Fighting was reported inside the city itself.

'DEAD' MATE RETURNS

Deanne Monroe, 24-year-old Montreal entertainer, has had her troubles recently. Her husband, Edward Margolese, was reported dead after he was "burned beyond recognition" in a plane crash while on military duty with the Canadian army during the war. Deanne then married William Ginter, 26, of Baltimore. Now her first husband is back "very much alive" and her marriage with Ginter has been annulled.

DEFAMATORY LIBEL CHARGED AGAINST ENGLISH OFFICER

Says He Wrote Letter To Paper Criticizing 6th Airborne Division And British Troops

Cairo, Oct. 28 — (Reuters) — Lieut. Kenneth A. Gourlay, 27-year-old Royal Army Ordnance Corps officer, was accused before a court martial today of defamatory libel against the British 6th Airborne Division in Palestine and against Sir John Shaw, former chief secretary in the Palestine government.

The first charge against Lieut. Gourlay alleged that Jan. 18, 1945, he published a defamatory libel about the 6th British Airborne Division in Palestine in the form of a letter to the editor of the Citadel Courier, army newspaper, which contained the following alleged defamatory phrases:

"Remove the 6th Airborne Division and other recently arrived British troops from the country at once, preferably to the United Kingdom, where if they go on behaving as they are allowed to behave at the moment, there will be such an outcry as will get it stopped immediately."

The letter to the editor added:

"If they must be replaced by troops and police, then let them be there solely to maintain order — not a body that has had it drilled into it before it arrived that its duty is to protect the poor Arabs from their enemies the Jews."

Criticizes Shaw

The second charge was that while on active service Lieut. Gourlay committed the civil offence of libel by publishing defamatory libel about Sir John Shaw and members of the Palestine government in the same letter, which contained the following alleged defamatory matters:

"Let the entire British administration in Palestine, from the chief secretary Sir John Shaw downwards, be recalled and an inquiry made into their trusteeship. The results will no doubt be even more revealing than the Nuernberg trials."

Edward Haim, defence counsel, said the article was written on the invitation of Capt. Brown, then officer in charge of the newspaper. Capt. Brown when questioned about the article had said:

"It is all right, it has received the sanction of headquarters."

Unsuccessful efforts had been made to bring Capt. Brown to Egypt, said the defence counsel but another witness from England would relate the objectives of the newspaper and its democratic approach.

The court gave leave to the defence to call witnesses on the condonation issue.

U. S. Officials Discount Report Gold Revaluation

Washington, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross replied, "I don't know anything about it," when asked by newspapermen today about a report that the United States government might change the $35-an-ounce gold valuation.

A treasury official also threw cold water on the idea, noting to reporters that Secretary Snyder recently notified the international monetary fund that the the United States' value for the gold is $35 to the ounce and that the United States sees no reason even to discuss a change. The price has been in effect since 1934.

These comments were made in response to queries concerning a broadcasting report that gold would be revalued at $52 an ounce

Prices of gold mining stocks rose at the opening of the New York Stock Market today in the wake of the broadcast report. Advances were also scored in the Toronto market.

In connection with the report, it was noted in official quarters here that Britain has just drawn upon her $3,750,000,000 loan credit for another $200,000,000.

Some analysts expressed belief that Britain would not be drawing out dollars if her information indicated there was any possibility of the cheapening of the dollar in the near future.

Specially Constructed Automobile is Stolen

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—Police today sought a thief who stole a specially constructed automobile the government had bestowed only 24 hours before on Walter Floch, 26, who lost his right leg fighting in France.

Fighting, Stabbings Acid Throwing Kill Twelve in India

57 Home-made Bombs Found In Raid in North Calcutta

Calcutta, Oct. 28 —(CP)— At least 12 persons were killed today in hand-to-hand fighting, stabbing and acid throwing during continued Hindu-Moslem clashes here. Twenty -two others suffered knife wounds.

Government authorities said 57 home-made bombs were discovered in a raid in north Calcutta. Buses and taxi cabs remained idle as workers refused to resume their duties until assured adequate protection.

Today's casualties, together with Sunday's 11 killings, brought the death toll to more than 60 since the latest outbreak of communal disorders began Tuesday. Thirty cases of arson were reported.

Additional British troops have been called in to patrol the city and police have extended the curfew hours in troubled areas in an effort to stem the disorders.

Bus and tram transportation remained stalled with drivers refusing to work unless guaranteed sufficient protection against rioters.

Meanwhile members of the Central Legislative Parliament met in New Delhi for their first session under the new interim government, in which ministers from both the All-India Congress Party and the Moslem League are participating.

Terrorists Explode Bomb at Esslingen, Ten Arrested

Frankfurt, Oct. 28 — (AP) — The American military government announced today that terrorists, striking for the second time in eight days, exploded a bomb on a windowsill of the denazification board office at Esslingen last night.

By noon today 10 persons had been taken into custody for questioning, including one person who was said to have been seen running away from the building a few minutes after the explosion.

Security troops cordoned off the area and bloodhounds were called into action in an attempt to lead the investigators to the terrorists.

Last night's bombing damaged only the outside of the building at Esslingen, the announcement said. No one was hurt. The bomb was believed to be of the same type used in the Stuttgart explosions.

The explosion occurred just after an American patrol had passed the building near the centre of town.

Army agents said they believed the bomb was planted by the same man or group responsible for the previous triple bombing in and near Stuttgart, which is only six miles northwest of Esslingen.

Goering Had Vial of Poison When Captured

Nuernberg, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Hermann Goering had the vial of poison with which he committed suicide from the time he was captured, and may have hidden it in his navel, a report by the Four-Power Commission investigating his death has reported.

At some time the vial was in his alimentary tract, and it could have been hidden for a time in the toilet of his cell, the report added.

Prison authorities have said the cartridge-like container for the glass poison capsule, found in Goering's cell after he committed suicide less than two hours before he was to have faced the hangman, Oct. 16, was about two inches long and half an inch thick.

Still leaving hazy many details as to how Goering cheated the gallows to which he had been condemned by the International Military Tribunal, the report said:

"The quadripartite commission for the detention of major war criminals having reviewed a report of the board of officers appointed to investigate circumstances of the death of Hermann Goering and having conducted their own further inquiries, have formed the following conclusion:

"First, Goering had the poison in his possession when he was apprehended and retained it until he employed it the night of Oct. 15.

"Second, there is evidence to support the view that at one time Goering could have carried the poison secreted in the cavity of his unbilical.

"Third, there is evidence to prove conclusively it was not there throughout his imprisonment and at some stage it was in his alimentary tract.

"Fourth, an obscure recess in the inside of a toilet, under the overhanging rim, could have concealed the container for a time without detection except by extraordinary search.

"Fifth, security measures taken were proper in the peculiar conditions of the trial and were satisfactorily carried out.

"Sixth, in particular:

"A. No blame for dereliction of duty is ascribed to the sentry on duty at the time of Goering's death.

"B. No blameworthy action or negligence is ascribed to other prison guards of the United States Army.

"C. There is no evidence tending to involve German workers in the special prison.

"The board of officers had at their disposal evidence of medical and other experts, as well as laboratory research."

Russia's Attitude Raises Hopes For Smoother Progress in U.N.

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Russia's conciliatory attitude has raised hopes for smoother progress in the United Nations, but veteran diplomats warned today against excessive optimism.

Their caution apparently was predicated in part on the fact that last week, when Russia dropped her fight to bar discussion of the veto in the United Nations Assembly, she still held the ace despite what was generally acclaimed as a conciliatory gesture.

The Soviet Union really had nothing to lose in permitting the veto issue to go before the assembly, because the Russians still can let the issue be discussed thoroughly by all members of the United Nations in open forum and then block with a simple "no" assembly action to abolish the veto power given the five major powers.

Under the United Nations charter, the Big Five must agree unanimously in order to change the charter.

Thus, Russia could invoke the veto to prevent abolution of the veto.

The American delegation, while determined to follow State Secretary Byrnes' firm policy toward Russia, nevertheless is determined to bridge any differences with the Soviet Union to enable the United Nations to operate as it was intended.

This new determination was expressed during the weekend by Adlai Stevenson, a member of the United States delegation. He said:

"We are determined to break down barriers to agreement on all issues, and particularly on the over-riding issue of our differences with the Russians."

He emphasized, however, that "insofar as those differences arise in the General Assembly, we will not duck or dodge them."

Most of the differences that exist between the East and West are confined to the peace treaties with Italy and the Axis satellites.

MONTREAL'S FIRST SQUATTERS' MOVEMENT

Truman Wants Entry For More Jews in Palestine

No Inconsistency in U.S. Position Stated in Letter

Washington, Oct. 28 — (AP) — President Truman has sent a message to King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia reiterating his belief that steps should be taken to ensure the immediate substantial immigration of refugee Jews into Palestine.

He told the Arab leader that he could not agree with the latter's statement that there were inconsistency in the American position.

Replying to a letter received from Ibn Saud Oct. 15, the president wrote:

"With regard to the possibility envisaged by Your Majesty that force and violence may be used by Jews in aggressive schemes against the neighboring Arab countries, I can assure you that this government stands opposed to aggression of any kind or to the employment of terrorism for political purposes. I may add, moreover, that I am convinced that responsible Jewish leaders do not contemplate a policy of aggression against the Arab countries adjacent to Palestine".

The president said he still adhered to the belief, "widely shared by the people of this country," that nothing would contribute more effectively to the alleviation of the plight of homeless Jews "than the authorization of the immediate entry of at least 100,000 of them in Palestine".

In a letter released by the White House today he reminded the Arab leader that no decision has been made on this proposal which he submitted originally to Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain more than a year ago.

In the interim, he said, "it is only natural" that the United States government should favor "at this time the entry into Palestine of considerable numbers of displaced Jews in Europe."

The president reiterated a previous view that a concerted effort should be made "to open the gates of other lands, including the United States, to those unfortunate persons."

He added that he is prepared to ask Congress for special legislation "admitting to this country additional numbers of these persons, over and above the immigration quotas fixed by our laws."

Finding of 200 Mutilated Bodies Testifies to Activity of Leopard Men

By R. F. S. DEWDNEY

Johannesburg, South Africa, Oct. 28 — (AP)—The leopard men of Nigeria are on the prowl again. Recent reports state that upward of 200 clawed and mutilated bodies, victims of the leopard men, have been found in the jungle fastnesses.

Nobody knows the exact origin of the leopard men, or "anyotos," but they have given more trouble to white administrators than any other secret society in the history of African colonization. They spread terror among various tribes from Mozambique, across the Congo to the West African coast.

The Anyoto wears a leopard skin over his head and down to his waist, with holes cut for his eyes. On each wrist is an ingenious iron bracelet with four sharp prongs which lie flat against the hand when open but project forward like claws when the fist is clenched. They often carry a stick with a replica of a leopard's paw on one end. By jabbing this into damp oil they give the impression of a leopard stalking a victim.

On the warpath, the leopard men wait beside a jungle trail until an unsuspecting villager comes along. Then, shrieking like the animals they emulate, they spring on his back and claw out his jugular vein with their iron hooks. The body is dragged into a convenient clearing and mutilated amid a frenzy of fanatical mumbo-jumbo.

The witch doctor takes what he needs for his "medicines," and then the bag of charms called the "bofima" is produced for the ceremony of keeping it "alive." The black bag of human skin about the size of a large sausage is kept "alive" by periodically painting with human blood. Finally, the leopard men eat parts of their victims to protect them from sickness and endow them with certain mystic virtues.

WILLIAM E. LAMA CAPTURED AFTER 71-DAY SEARCH

Sought for Questioning In Connection With Stabbing of His Wife And Daughter

Cornwall, Oct. 28 — (CP) — William Earl (Bowser) Lama, 49-year-old Harrison's Corners farmer who for 71 days eluded police and residents of Eastern Ontario who sought him for questioning in connection with the stabbing of his wife and daughter, today is behind bars in Stormont county jail.

A citizens' posse captured him Saturday night in a cellar in nearby Moulinette after an alert county constable, William Seymour, heard him foraging for food. Lama offered no resistance and told police he had never been more than five miles from the Moulinette district since two days after the slaying.

Remanded until Nov. 1 for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder, he denied having any part in the brutal killing with a pig-sticking knife of his wife and nine-year-old daughter at their farm shack last Aug. 16.

Nothing to Eat for Day

Hunger drove Lama to tiny Moulinette where once before he had found refuge in a vacant house from which he fled upon discovery. He told police he had not eaten for an entire day.

He found the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis empty — its owners had gone to Cornwall for the day—and started to forage in the basement for food. The noise of his movements attracted the attention of Constable Seymour, who lives next door to the Ellis home.

Constable Seymour went out with his flashlight and in the gathering darkness saw that the screen and window had been pulled off at the rear of the basement.

Surrounded House

"I saw Lama lighting matches in the cellar," he related. "I went to my own home and told my wife to call the police. Then I got hold of Stanley Bisbee, a neighbor, and we went back to the house while my wife got other neighbors to help. We surrounded the house.

"In the meantime, my wife brought me my gun and while I was loading it at the cellar window, Lama was watching me, as cool as could be."

In a few minutes, Sgt. H. Poirier and Constable Gerald Belanger of the Cornwall township police arrived and Sgt. Poirier shouted:

"Come on out, we've got you covered."

Lama scrambled out of the cellar window. Police took him to Cornwall township police office where he gave a voluntary statement to Chief R. H. Hawkshaw.

The capture drew hundreds of people to the township police office in the hope of catching a glimpse of the man whose long flight from pursuing law officers had given rise to the saying in these parts of 'Lama was here' — a saying which was the source of much chagrin to police.

Heavy Guard Maintained

Police kept heavy guard around the police office during the four hours they questioned Lama.

"We are certainly glad this part of the business is finished now," said Chief Hawkshaw. "It has meant more work than residents realize."

The police made many fruitless expeditions to run down residents' tips concerning Lama's whereabouts. He was reported everywhere in the Cornwall district and hundreds of miles away. He was tracked once by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police dog "Duke" but still eluded pursuers, reportedly because he knew like a book the bushlands in the Moulinette area.

Lama told police he had stolen food on several occasions but denied that he had been given help by friends in the Moulinette area. Police at one time held the theory friends were harboring and feeding Lama and issued a stiff warning against assisting him.

CONVERSATIONS NOT BINDING

London, Oct. 28 (CP)—Prime Minister Attlee said today that last week's conversations between Foreign Secretary Bevin and Prime Minister Ismail Sidky Pasha of Egypt were not binding on either government.

Earlier a high source in Cairo said Mr. Bevin had agreed in treaty negotiations to recognize Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan, long a stumbling block in negotiations for revision of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of 1936, and to withdraw British troops from Egypt within three years.

Powerful Issues Underlie Press Debate in Commons

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Oct. 28 —(Reuters)— Powerful issues underlie the parliamentary press debate opening Tuesday in which the House of Commons will decide whether there should be a royal commission of inquiry into the control, management and ownership of Britain's newspaper press.

The government, standing aloof, has said that the question must be decided by a free vote of members regardless of party. Critics, however, have charged that the government apparently is assuming that there will be an inquiry.

Terms of reference of the commission appear to have been settled, and the type of person who will sit on the commission seems also to have been considered. It apparently is intended to invest the commission with wide powers in calling evidence and insuring the production documents.

Some observers describe the situation as a clash between government supporters, resentful of the character of Conservative press criticism of the Socialist regime, and opposition supporters who hold the criticism justified.

The motion, in the name of Labor Member Hayden Davies and other journalist members of parliament, demands the inquiry on the grounds of "increasing public concern at the growth of monopolistic tendencies" and in the interests of "furthering free expression of opinion and the greatest practicable accuracy in the presentation of news."

The controversy, however, is much older than the motion. It recalls an opposition move early this year to promote an inquiry into the working of the BBC, which is a public corporation and a monopoly.

The National Union of Journalists last spring passed a resolution asking for a press inquiry.

The Lord President of the Council, Herbert Morrison, himself launched an attack recently upon the Conservative opposition press.

Conservatives are expected to oppose an inquiry as being unnecessary, to describe it as an attempt to muzzle criticism and an attack upon one of the fundamental freedoms—liberty of the press.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, Deputy British prosecutor in the Nuernberg trials, and former Conservative cabinet member, will be chief opposition spokesman. He is expected to criticize the government for what the opposition regards as its sensitiveness to criticism.

Mr. Morrison will be the sole cabinet speaker, summing up before the vote is taken.

If the demand for an inquiry is carried, it probably will be announced immediately. The commission if appointed, is expected to be vested with the power of a select committee — Britain's strongest constitutional probe. It will have power to call in evidence anyone from a newspaper peer to a country weekly paper proprietor or the editor of a countrywide syndicate.

ORDERLY VOTING MARKS ELECTION IN BULGARIA

First Report Shows Workers' Communist Party Leading All the Rest

Sofia, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The Communist - dominated Fatherland Front was reported by the Bulgarian government today to have won 296 assembly seats to 83 for the united opposition parties in returns from 99 districts in the Sunday elections.

The assembly will have 465 members and thus the Fatherland Front already is assured a working majority.

The announcement said most of the candidates elected were of the Workers' party (Communists).

In Sofia, complete returns gave the Fatherland Front parties 277,523 votes to 95,535 for the united opposition, election officials said.

Of the parties in the Fatherland Front, the Communists (Workers) were said to have polled 141,942 votes.

The election marked the first outright opposition challenge of the Fatherland Front's two-year rule.

60 Per Cent Vote.

Sixty per cent of the eligible voters were reported to have cast ballots in the Pleven region, 75 per cent each in the Varna and Gorna Djourmaia regions and 95 per cent in the Svoge region.

Previsional President Vassil Kolarov, a Workers' party leader, told correspondents: "I personally visited some polling stations and witnessed complete order."

Newspapermen who visited a number of polling stations found ballots of all parties, both of the Fatherland Front and the opposition, at the disposal of electors.

Voters — about 4,000,000 were eligible — cast secret ballots for 465 members of the National Assembly of the new republic, proclaimed Sept. 15 after a plebiscite deposed King Simeon II. Twice in the weeks preceding the election, the American representative on the Allied control commission for Bulgaria—representing the United States, Britain and Russia—had proposed and the Russian had rejected measures to guarantee a free and fair election. Diplomatic correspondence on the matter passed between the United States and Bulgarian governments.

Faced Challenge.

In yesterday's balloting, which was for party list rather than individuals, the Fatherland Front faced a clearcut challenge for the first time.

The Front took over the government two years ago and switched Bulgaria from the Axis to the Allied side in the war. Last Nov. 18, the opposition boycotted an election in which only one slate was ordered. This year oppositionists put up a fight.

CHINESE TROOPS MOVING ON FREE PORT OF DARIEN

Seeking to Cut Funnel of Supply for Chinese Communists

By TOM MASTERSON

Peiping, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Chinese Government troops in Manchuria today were reported by official sources to be moving along two routes toward the big Soviet-occupied free port of Darien, apparently seeking to cut a suspected major funnel of supply for Chinese Communist armies in Manchuria.

There was no indication that Dairen itself was the goal of the drives south from captured Anshan, along the Mukden-Dairen railroad, and southeast from Antung, the Manchuria- Korea border city seized two days ago.

The move might be designed to sever any overline supply shipments from Dairen. The port has been described by government sources as one of the Chinese Communists' chief pipelines to the south—an interference the Russians were helping.

(There has been no indication of Soviet withdrawal as yet from Dairen, a sore point in Chinese-Russian relations. The Soviets agreed under the 1945 Sino-Soviet treaty to joint control of the port by the two powers, but the Russians have maintained a large garrison there and have forbidden intrusion by the Chinese Government and a United States naval Party.)

Government capture of Chefoo, the main Communist port on the Shantung Peninsula of North China, appeared imminent. Fighting was reported inside the city itself.

'DEAD' MATE RETURNS

Deanne Monroe, 24-year-old Montreal entertainer, has had her troubles recently. Her husband, Edward Margolese, was reported dead after he was "burned beyond recognition" in a plane crash while on military duty with the Canadian army during the war. Deanne then married William Ginter, 26, of Baltimore. Now her first husband is back "very much alive" and her marriage with Ginter has been annulled.

DEFAMATORY LIBEL CHARGED AGAINST ENGLISH OFFICER

Says He Wrote Letter To Paper Criticizing 6th Airborne Division And British Troops

Cairo, Oct. 28 — (Reuters) — Lieut. Kenneth A. Gourlay, 27-year-old Royal Army Ordnance Corps officer, was accused before a court martial today of defamatory libel against the British 6th Airborne Division in Palestine and against Sir John Shaw, former chief secretary in the Palestine government.

The first charge against Lieut. Gourlay alleged that Jan. 18, 1945, he published a defamatory libel about the 6th British Airborne Division in Palestine in the form of a letter to the editor of the Citadel Courier, army newspaper, which contained the following alleged defamatory phrases:

"Remove the 6th Airborne Division and other recently arrived British troops from the country at once, preferably to the United Kingdom, where if they go on behaving as they are allowed to behave at the moment, there will be such an outcry as will get it stopped immediately."

The letter to the editor added:

"If they must be replaced by troops and police, then let them be there solely to maintain order — not a body that has had it drilled into it before it arrived that its duty is to protect the poor Arabs from their enemies the Jews."

Criticizes Shaw

The second charge was that while on active service Lieut. Gourlay committed the civil offence of libel by publishing defamatory libel about Sir John Shaw and members of the Palestine government in the same letter, which contained the following alleged defamatory matters:

"Let the entire British administration in Palestine, from the chief secretary Sir John Shaw downwards, be recalled and an inquiry made into their trusteeship. The results will no doubt be even more revealing than the Nuernberg trials."

Edward Haim, defence counsel, said the article was written on the invitation of Capt. Brown, then officer in charge of the newspaper. Capt. Brown when questioned about the article had said:

"It is all right, it has received the sanction of headquarters."

Unsuccessful efforts had been made to bring Capt. Brown to Egypt, said the defence counsel but another witness from England would relate the objectives of the newspaper and its democratic approach.

The court gave leave to the defence to call witnesses on the condonation issue.

U. S. Officials Discount Report Gold Revaluation

Washington, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross replied, "I don't know anything about it," when asked by newspapermen today about a report that the United States government might change the $35-an-ounce gold valuation.

A treasury official also threw cold water on the idea, noting to reporters that Secretary Snyder recently notified the international monetary fund that the the United States' value for the gold is $35 to the ounce and that the United States sees no reason even to discuss a change. The price has been in effect since 1934.

These comments were made in response to queries concerning a broadcasting report that gold would be revalued at $52 an ounce

Prices of gold mining stocks rose at the opening of the New York Stock Market today in the wake of the broadcast report. Advances were also scored in the Toronto market.

In connection with the report, it was noted in official quarters here that Britain has just drawn upon her $3,750,000,000 loan credit for another $200,000,000.

Some analysts expressed belief that Britain would not be drawing out dollars if her information indicated there was any possibility of the cheapening of the dollar in the near future.

Specially Constructed Automobile is Stolen

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—Police today sought a thief who stole a specially constructed automobile the government had bestowed only 24 hours before on Walter Floch, 26, who lost his right leg fighting in France.

Fighting, Stabbings Acid Throwing Kill Twelve in India

57 Home-made Bombs Found In Raid in North Calcutta

Calcutta, Oct. 28 —(CP)— At least 12 persons were killed today in hand-to-hand fighting, stabbing and acid throwing during continued Hindu-Moslem clashes here. Twenty -two others suffered knife wounds.

Government authorities said 57 home-made bombs were discovered in a raid in north Calcutta. Buses and taxi cabs remained idle as workers refused to resume their duties until assured adequate protection.

Today's casualties, together with Sunday's 11 killings, brought the death toll to more than 60 since the latest outbreak of communal disorders began Tuesday. Thirty cases of arson were reported.

Additional British troops have been called in to patrol the city and police have extended the curfew hours in troubled areas in an effort to stem the disorders.

Bus and tram transportation remained stalled with drivers refusing to work unless guaranteed sufficient protection against rioters.

Meanwhile members of the Central Legislative Parliament met in New Delhi for their first session under the new interim government, in which ministers from both the All-India Congress Party and the Moslem League are participating.

Goering Had Vial of Poison When Captured

Nuernberg, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Hermann Goering had the vial of poison with which he committed suicide from the time he was captured, and may have hidden it in his navel, a report by the Four-Power Commission investigating his death has reported.

At some time the vial was in his alimentary tract, and it could have been hidden for a time in the toilet of his cell, the report added.

Prison authorities have said the cartridge-like container for the glass poison capsule, found in Goering's cell after he committed suicide less than two hours before he was to have faced the hangman, Oct. 16, was about two inches long and half an inch thick.

Terrorists Explode Bomb at Esslingen, Ten Arrested

Frankfurt, Oct. 28 — (AP) — The American military government announced today that terrorists, striking for the second time in eight days, exploded a bomb on a windowsill of the denazification board office at Esslingen last night.

By noon today 10 persons had been taken into custody for questioning, including one person who was said to have been seen running away from the building a few minutes after the explosion.

Security troops cordoned off the area and bloodhounds were called into action in an attempt to lead the investigators to the terrorists.

Last night's bombing damaged only the outside of the building at Esslingen, the announcement said. No one was hurt. The bomb was believed to be of the same type used in the Stuttgart explosions.

The explosion occurred just after an American patrol had passed the building near the centre of town.

Army agents said they believed the bomb was planted by the same man or group responsible for the previous triple bombing in and near Stuttgart, which is only six miles northwest of Esslingen.

ROSSMORE BOY HAS LEG BROKEN

Robert Bruce, 15-year-old Rossmore lad, had the misfortune Saturday evening to break his ankle when a pile of steel rolled onto his leg as he was riding in a box car near Port Hope. The unfortunate lad was taken to hospital by Port Hope police authorities, while the lad's father was informed of the accident through the local police department.

MERCHANTS URGED TO ATTEND MEETING

City merchants are reminded of the special meeting of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce being held in the chamber offices tonight at 8 o'clock. Members of the division or not, all merchants are urged to attend. Many important items are on the agenda.

MISAPPROPRIATION OF ARTICLES REPORTED

Reports of petty thievery from local stores continue to be received at the city police station with an incident which occurred Saturday causing officers some indecision as to wether articles were taken by intent or through mistaken identity.

Proprietor of a Front Street store complained that some party had picked up more parcels than rightfully belonged to him or her. A parcel containing a pair of knitted socks was missing from this particular store as well as another parcel containing wooden clothes pins. The parcel containing the socks was later left at a local drug store, but the unlucky housewife who was the rightful owner of the other parcel is still minus her clothes pins.

WILL PRESENT CHEQUE TO WAR AMPS CENTRE

Presentation of a cheque for over $10,000, the gift of the residents of this city in the campaign for the building fund of Canadian War Amps, Memorial Centre, Toronto, will be made at a luncheon being held at the Queen's Hotel on Thursday. Members of the Belleville Hotel Proprietors' Association who sponsored the campaign will be present at the presentation which will be made to officials of the Memorial Centre Committee.

MOTORISTS ENJOY DRIVE IN COUNTRY

There was a heavy motor exodus from the city on Sunday when almost summer-like weather prevailed. Many families took to the highway for an afternoon drive while not a few were noticed holding informal picnics in sunny spots along highways and off the beaten track.

RETIRED ENGINEERS ARE HONORED

A very pleasant supper was held by the B. of L. E. with Mr. and Mrs. Forbes MacLean, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Orne, as their honored guests in the Y.M.C.A. Belleville on October 22nd. 1946.

Mr. MacLean and Mr. Orne have recently retired, and 130 of their friends had supper with them, and wished them many years of care free pleasure. After which the evening was spent in singing and dancing.

SEA CADET CORPS ATTENDS SERVICE

Smart in their new "round rigs" members of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps paraded through city streets on Sunday morning, later attending divine services in St. Andrew's Church.

The corps, some fifty strong, drew the attention of morning church-goers as, headed by its smart bugle band, it swung through sunlit streets on its way to church.

Officers and cadets heard an inspiring sermon by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby, minister of the church, later parading to their quarters in the armouries where they were dismissed.

BLAZE STARTED BY GASOLINE TORCH DAMAGES DWELLING

Damage of approximately $200 resulted over the weekend at 8 Olive Street when a blaze catching from a gasoline torch set fire to a partition and mounted into the attic before it was brought under control.

According to firemen the gasoline torch was being used to burn paint off the wall when flame escaped through a nail hole to set fire between the partitions. Attempts were made to control the blaze but despite all efforts it quickly mounted into the attic and the fire department had to be called to bring the fire under control.

Who Is Kilroy and Where Is He Is Today's Universal Question

(With a nod to the Baroness D'Orczy)

They search him here; they search him there,
They look for him most everywhere,
Is he man or mouse, or beast or boy
This demned elusive guy, Kilroy?

Who is Kilroy? That is what a more or less screwy continent would like to know. This ubiquitous gremlin, this figment of a cartoonist's imagination is playing hob with a nation's nerves.

While the majority of queries usually written in chalk, and in some cases paint, and actually in this city in wet cement, inquire into the whereabouts of the mysterious character, no one has yet discovered a description of the elusive personality, which would set a lot of minds at rest and save a number of people from the seclusion of a padded cell, a sanatorium, or mayhap something worse.

All over the United States, and more recently Canada, the strange signs are appearing in the most outlandish places. In prison cells, taxi cabs, on Parliament Buildings the subtle humor is finding its way in scribled or crudely printed queries.

A city motorist, the recipient of a parking ticket, found the inscription "Kilroy was nere" on his windshield. In a Toronto jail cell, was the same. Here in Belleville the other day a well-known citizen swept dead leaves from his sidewalk and found "Kilroy wasn't here."

A city alderman found inscribed in wet cement and which has set, the now almost famous query.

A Boston resident, tired of seeing the question on a dozen different places, came forth with the following piece of humor, "Today my heart is filled with joy. I got here before Kilroy."

In a business place in the city employees "ducked" a job that should have been done on a certain day. The boss investigated and found a piece of paper with "Kilroy was here" on it.

So the boss added his piece of humor and added, "And didn't do a d . . . thing."

So, won't someone please, before the nation develops a semi-insane state of mind, find Kilroy.

CITY ENJOYS 65 DEGREES OF HEAT DURING SUNDAY

Belleville basked in record-breaking temperature on Sunday when the mercury climbed to a top of 65 degrees to make it the warmest Oct. 27th in more than half a century. Previous high for this district was around 1927.

Woman Worker Loses Fur Coat At Rummage Sale

Maybe somebody got a bargain —a member of the light-fingered fraternity made a neat haul, or perhaps somebody took it in error. In any event, a lady worker at a rummage sale held in Engineers' Hall, Pine Street, Saturday discovered she was coatless after the day's activities were over. The coat was hung on a wall near where the sale was going on and disappeared during the sale.

Petrillo Forces Pay Increase

Chicago, Oct. 28—A wage increase of 50 per cent for musicians engaged in making transcription records was announced Saturday by James Petrillo, President of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL). The new rates are retroactive to Oct. 20.

Mr. Petrillo said that representatives of 13 companies signed the contract in New York. He had issued an ultimatum that musicians would strike unless their demands were met by midnight tonight.

Under the new terms musicians will receive $27 for a 15-minute transcription, the recording and rehearsing of which does not exceed one hour. If 15 minutes of recording is finished and additional recording is made, each man is to receive an additional $9 for five minutes' or less work. Overtime pay for rehearsals was set at $4.50 for each quarter hour.

Concerns involved include the National Broadcasting Company, Standard Radio, Lankford Transcription Company, Capitol Recordings and Transcription Company, and the World Broadcasting Company.

Three Additional Families Housed In City Hall

Following eviction from their present homes by court order, three additional families, numbering in all seventeen persons, will be afforded temporary shelter at the city hall auditorium, it was stated today by Mayor Frank S. Follwell.

City Engineer Charles Mott has drawn plans for partitioning of the city hall auditorium into four four-room apartments and work of erecting the necessary partitions will commence immediately according to Mayor Follwell. Arrangements for housing of the three additional families in the city hall were made by the special housing committee of city council which is headed by Alderman Harold Armstrong.

"These families have been evicted from their homes by court order and had absolutely no place to go," stated Mayor Follwell. "Their need was desperate and something had to be done to provide them accommodation, and as long as I am mayor no family will go without shelter if the council can prevent it."

Thus far this season council has provided emergency shelter for six or seven families, taking into consideration the three families which will be housed in the city hall this week. More than one month ago two families were prvided accommodation, one in the city hall and the other in the police station, while another family is living in the dressing room at the West Belleville playgrounds.

One of the families which will move into the city hall this week is comprised of seven persons, while there are five persons each in the two other families.

Present Season Produces Many Freak Growths

Dame Nature, ever a fickle jade, developed a post-war frame of mind this year that was productive of a number of freakish things.

October raspberries and strawberries, outsize potatoes and other vegetables, unseasonable weather and whatnot have flowed in a periodical stream from the old girl's colorful cornucopia.

For instance, the other day a lady picked sufficient berries to "make a pie." A farmer grew a pair of squash that weighed 125 pounds. Wild fruit has been seen in abundance along fence bottoms. An ordinary mock orange seed grew into a pumpkin-like vegetable that tipped the scales at 14 pounds.

And now along comes a huge cabbage grown by J. W. Hamilton, 58 Dundas Street, that weighs fourteen pounds, enough greenery to feed twenty rabbits all winter. It measured 34 inches by 38 inches in circumference.

Topping this comes the report of a common fruit apple tree that is now bearing its second yield of the season. And to substantiate the claim, R. Heintzman, Trent Road, brought a full-blown apple blossom complete with normal-size petals and a hint of spring perfume to the offices of this newspaper this morning.

He discovered the tree in a woods near the Bay of Quinte Country Club golf course, and stated that it bore several apples as well as many blossoms. The tree had bloomed and produced earlier in the season.

But there was no evidence to the effect that Kilroy had been there.

Sneeze Causes Car Driver to Crash Into Bus

Quite frequently the common cold lands its victirs in hospital but the route taken is usually a bit more direct than the incident which Saturday evening nearly sent William Joyce of Harold to the local hospital.

After shopping in the city Saturday afternoon Mr. Joyce started on his way to his home north of Stirling. When about two miles north of the city he felt that he was going to sneeze and as a precautionary measure started to slow his auto. The involuntary action of sneezing was too quick for him, however, and when Mr. Joyce was able to again look up his car was headed directly for a bus coming in the opposite direction.

The resultant crash caused considerable damage to the Wannamaker bus which was returning to the city with passengers from a ball game at Batawa. Fortunately none of the passengers was injured but Mr. Joyce received scratches and suffered from shock. He was able later to return to his home.

SOAP SHORTAGE TO EASE

Winnipeg, Oct. 28 (CP)—Prediction that the soap scarcity would ease quickly with settlement of Eastern Canadian strikes was made by Miss Byrne Hope Sanders, director of the consumers' branch of the Prices Board. She said in an interview that oils, fats and soaps were again being supplied "and we have every hope that supplies will be satisfactory again. The only thing that can bring back the soap shortage is more strikes."

COLLEGIATE NEWS

ASSEMBLY
By ROGER WHITE

"Good things come in small packages" is an old saying that has been proved many times, and Bob Douglas proved it again by announcing today in Assembly that the "Canadian High News" —an exclusive High School newspaper — is to go on sale in BCI each Friday. Unlike most good things, the cost is moderate. It is expected that most of us will be able to scrape up 2c to buy a copy.

The "Elevator" is back in business under Boyd Upper's capable direction. The first meeting of the "Elevator" staff was held tonight and things are really getting under way.

Lois Flindall brought us up to date on the doings of the Students' Council, and Ron Button told us what is happening on the sports front.

A very timely film dealing with the prevention of Cancer was put on the screen. It had two endings — the hero died in one, and lived happily ever after in the other. I guess the director was torn between Shakespeare and Cecil B. Demille. The moral, if not the plot, was good — "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure".

The band played exceptionally well today. Their rendition of "High School Cadets" as we were leaving, was original . . . to say the least!

OVERHEARD IN ASSEMBLY

She sat on the bridge in the moonlight
And tickled his face with her toes
For she was a lovely mosquito
And the bridge was the bridge of his nose!

GIRL'S SPORTS
By RUTH MEADES

We accepted a second challenge from the girls of O. S. D. The brave ones were: Doreen Bell, Dorothy Flintoff, Betty Holway, Jeannette Ashbury, Shirley Mott, Marie Marinoff, Maribeth Miller and Jean Scott — Refereed by Joan Wright. Either by accident or purpose nobody seems able to recall the scores and so it shall remain a dark secret. I have only one thing to say, "Perhaps a bit of practice before going again might help a bit, eh girls? Better luck next time anyway.

The volleyball schedule for the past week was as follows:—

Oct. 17—XIIC vs. XIF—A score of 45-49 for XIF. The referee was Jean Flintoff. (Don't tell me they let you in!)

Oct. 18—XA vs. XB—Score 53-29 for XB. Referee Joan Scott.

Oct. 21—XC vs. XD—Score 44-37 for XC. Referee Betty Zebedee.

Oct. 23—XE vs. XF — Score 56-29 for XF. Referee Lois Batchelor.

Oct. 24 — XC vs. XF—Score 55-30 for XF. Referee Lois Batchelor (Say, you do get around).

What's your opinion on "Canadian High News," kids? I think it's a great thing. It's chuck full of humor, news and advice. Ah yes, advice. Are there any in need of love (aw shucks) advice. If so why not try "Cupid's Counsel". It's guaranteed to be "just the thing."

Well, "Hasta La Vista." That's all for tonight.

BOYS' SPORTS
(By George Ward)

On Monday our juniors defeated the Albert College juniors with a score of 16-1. The B.C.I. boys started scoring early in the game, scoring two touchdowns and a convert in the first quarter, totalling 11 points. The Albert players stiffened up and allowed only one more touchdown, while they themselves managed to get a point. In the last quarter our juniors held the Albert players on the one yard line for almost three minutes till we regained possession of the ball and kicked to safety as the game ended.

Interform Games.

XI G tangled with XII G to maul over the upper school championship in a 2 out of 3 series. XI G went all overboard to take the game from XII G, holding a creditable score of 15 to 0.

On Tuesday X B triumphed over IX H in a game of (so-called) rugby. X B looked after the score by making three touchdowns and two converts, totalling 17 points to IX H's zero.

A two out of three series started on Thursday for the lower school championship. The game ended with X B winning the first honors, carrying the score of 11 to IX G's 0.

The House League.

The house league schedule started on Friday. These games are being played at noon hours. Come out and see these games as the players are your future junior and senior teams.—G. F. W.

CUFF NOTES
(By Boyd Upper)

Since the day man overcame the dinosaur as ruler of that globe he has used pictures as a medium of expression. This inner urge to immortalize events of minor interest, has persisted to this very day. The advent of the printing press not only opened new vistas to the author of the printed word, but also immeasurably broadened the scope of the artist.

Since the beginning of this century the pictorial form of education has developed a mass following. The political caricatures of the last century have developed into the syndicated monstrosities, known today as the "comics."

A wise old gentleman once said that, "A good picture is worth a thousand words."

The large metropolitan dailies, seizing on this truth, have employed the comics as an unfailing booster of circulation. Strangely enough however, their very presentation has offered the strongest argument to the contrary. The advocates pro and con use illustrations from the same source.

The case in point involves two of the better known "strips." Those who strictly defend the picture as master of a thousand words, point with pride to a superlative example, "Lena." On the other hand those who uphold the maxim that "The pen is mightier than the sword"—(and the picture as well) point to three words as indicative of the power possessed by written matter—"Kilroy was here." I do not presume to pass judgment on the righteousness of their arguments, I merely state the case as it exists. As the newspapers have revived this long slumbering feud, it is their duty to declare a winner and settle the issue before there is bloodshed.

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE

Dashing by the auditorium the other day I was suddenly stopped by the sight of Brooze Blatherwick upon one knee before a blushing damsel, smiting his manly breast in what was obviously a formal declaration of affection. This looked interesting so I scurried backstage to be greeted by banshee wails apparently originating from Lois Flindall, while Doug Barlow in the wings whispered at her.

Well, you guessed it, Miss Merry's at it again! The school play is in progress. They are, to quote, 'sparing no expense and effort in its production'. Sounds good, eh? Well, so long. Be seeing you in an aisle seat the end of November.

Mary Lo Wishart.

THE CANADIAN JUNIOR RED CROSS CLUB

The second meeting of the Junior Red Cross was held October 21, 1946, at Miss Dwyers' apartment. There were seven members present.

The minutes were read by Marion Conklin.

It was decided that a food box be sent to a French Refugee every three weeks, and the lists of items for the box be posted on the main bulletin board, and in the classrooms. (The French class especially).

The gifts for the box for Holland were brought in at this meeting and the box will be packed this coming Monday, October 28, 1946.

The regular meeting will be held November 4th, and the box for the French Refugee packed on November 18th.

AUTUMN

Good old Autumn is here once more
With different colors all in store
Colors of red, yellow and gold
The same old colors that never grow old.

Autumn is prettiest of all the year
With days that are crisp and cool and clear
The flowers too, look fresh and new
With the morning sun and sparkling dew.

The leaves come down thick and fast
Though they're pretty they do not last
One by one they begin to fall
For once again they've heard the call.

June Reeves.

BEAUTY

Self-consciousness

Poor little shy girl! She sits on the sidelines when the more popular lassies dance. No big boys clang her telephone. An unhappy child, if ever there was one. Parents must make every effort to be patient, sympathetic, helpful. The wise mother will arrange parties, make the home attractive. She can invite her own friends, ask them to bring their sons and daughters. A pleasant social atmosphere in the home is a great help toward ridding a girl of something wrong; fear that one will make a wrong move. Of course, it is nonsense, because other people aren't aware of our behavior as much as we fancy. Bue there it is. And it is painful to the point of heartbreak.

Daughter should go to church, join a young people's society. These fellowships are the source of mucth pleasure. Amusements are planned, art often very gay and festive. They will give th eshy girl a chance to try her social wings, to mix with boys and girls of her own age. She has to make the plunge. Once made, who can tell? Some day she may awaken in full bloom, he able to chatter like the rest of them. Thousands have done that. Her world will be brighter, her life more normal.

The Wise Mother Will not Refer to Daughter's Shyness

The wise mother will not refer to daughter's shyness. She will ignore this unhappy condition, talk and act as if the child were like other girls, enjoying youth's delights.

One things for the self-conscious girl to remember: she can not be nice to people unless she has nice thoughts about them. Let her think kindly of her acquaintances, not envy them, or feel resentment. In time she will generate warmth of manner, may be able to express it. Let her make it a practice to tell her girl friends that they look sweet, that their clothes are pretty. Everyone loves attention of that kind.

When she meets a new boy, she should endeavor to find out what his interests are, what studies and sports he likes. A show of interest on her part will make hinm talk fast enough. He will soon be telling her what a great fellow he is; the two of them will be on terms of close companionship.

It won't do to harbor the idea that boys and girls have excluded her from the social circle. That may no tbe the case. She has retired into herself and nobody will take the trouble to draw her out of her self-imposed retirement. She must step forth bravely, make her own way.

Your reporter realizes that this is a tough problem. But it must be tackled early and must be overcome. There are men and women who have been afflicted all their loives long, and the affliction has interfered with their business as well as their social life.

Hand yourself a little apple sauce, Shy Girl. Cultivate a little healthy conceit.

Early Transportation

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ANYONE who gets places by plane these days is used to very youthful companions who are also travelling the skyways. Whole coveys of schoolchildren take Christmas holidays in the sun, escaped from snowbound schools for a brief recess; entire families migrate like the birds, and at about the same seasons.

Since plane temperature is manufactured to suit the passengers' comfort, most people let their outer clothes cape with the weather man's thermometer. Your child might just as well be comfortable en route and climb out in the warm country with such frocks as these sister-act blue bengaline dresses, made with square yokes above, and fullen skirts below a smooth bodice, self-sashed at the waistline. Collars, cuffs and button-down dickies are white pique, eyelet frilled.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Trying to Plan too Far Ahead Doesn't Pay, "Worried"

It's very poor business, of course, not to look ahead and plan for the future. But it's not so good, either, to try to predict the future so far ahead, and so definiely, that you find yourself out on a limb when things don't turn out as you expected.

Here's a girl who, I'm afraid, is making this second mistake. She's also, I think, beginning to sense it already, without yet realizing that she's doing so.

She's 20 years old, and has been planning to marry next year a young man of 22 who lost a leg in the war. This young man, for reasons which she does not explain, has told her friends and his own that they have already been secretly married.

They have made detailed plans for their married life as follows: "We'd live in Florida, because things are cheaper there. I'd keep my job and we could put his pension and most of my pay in the bank (he receives $127 a month from the government because of his leg) and we wouldn't have any children for about three years. In 10 years, he may not be able to walk, even on his crutches. I love him, and it doesn't matter, because in 10 years we can save $15,240 at least, and another three or four thousand from my pay and money we will receive upon being married."

She goes on to say that if she marries this lad, "I'll be giving up all my best friend and my family, who have been wonderful to me, as no one I know, neither family nor friends, can see as much as one good point about him."

And now comes the part which made her sign her letter "Worried".

"A few weeks ago," she writes, "we had an argument. He said he'd see me the next night, but never showed up. He and a married buddy of his picked up two girls who liked to hitchhike, and they went to another town. Then he stood me up a second time.

"I met him one night this week as I came out of the movies. He took me home and told me how he missed me, and said the reason he didn't show up before was that he was taken to a party by some of the boys, and I believed him. But his brother told me he was with one of those girls, and came in the next morning as drunk as he could possibly be.

"I love him so much that I'm all mixed up as to what I should do. I offered him back his ring but he said I knew the reason he gave it to me. When he's with me, he showers me with affection. But what about that other girl? Would I be doing right to tell him I'm no second fiddle and he should go to her? If he lied about the party, will he continue to be about other nights tocome? Will this other girl love him when he can't walk, or will she pity him? Will she give up her love for beautiful clothes, as I will and have done already so that we could save a few pennies here and there?"

Well, in the first place, "Worried", as I said in the beginning, we're trying to plan too far ahead. Fifteen thousand dollars on paper is one thing, and the process of getting it in the bank is something else again. Also, 10 years is a long time, during which many unpredictable things can happen to make inroads on savings.

For instance, you tell we what bad shape your boy friend is in physically, yet you haven't, apparently, included in your financial planning any provision for the very strong possibility that he may need at lot of expensive medical care during those ten years you're talking about. Also, you're talking about having children in about three years. Have you any idea how much money, it takes to food and clothes children? You haven't mentioned provision for that. You seem to think that, no matter what you do, or what happens, you can put every cent into the savings bank. But things don't work out that way in real life.

And then there's the serious problem of your growing doubt about this boy's sincerity; and, frankly, it seems to me you have real cause to worry. If he has already begun lying to you, and two-timing you, the outlook for your married happiness isn't too bright. Also, if he were the right kind of boy, he wouldn't have lied to your friends about the two of you being secretly married. There must be some reason, too, for the fact that neither your family nor your friends like him.

My advice, "Worried," would be to go over all your plans carefully before proceeding with any of them. And I honestly doubt if you'd be very sorry, in the long run, if you decided to give them up entirely.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When Wife is Husband's Office Assistant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: :

My husband, returned from overseas several months ago, has just resumed his practice as a dentist. We were married just before he went overseas, and now I am going to assist him in the office. How should we address each other in the professional routine of the office?

A.B.

It is, of course, undignified and unprofessional for him to call you by your first name in the office. Also in this circumstance (which is quite common these days) of a wife's being assistant to her dentist (or doctor) husband not to address his wife as "Mrs. Brown". The very best solution is for your husband to call you "Miss Smith" (whatever your maiden name was), and for you to call him "Dr. Brown".

Giving Her Son a Surname Not a Family Surname

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have a baby soon; and, like all prospective fathers and mothers, my husband and I are deep in deliberations as to names. There is one surname I have always been particularly fond of, and if our child is a boy, I would like to give him this name as his first name. But my husband who also likes this name, thinks it would not be correct because this name, which is obviously a surname, is one that has never been connected with either his family or mine. Would it be proper for us to use this name?

I. S.

Yes, There is no reason why you should not use as your child's first name a surname that is not a family surname. Although in the majority of cases surnames used as first names are family surnames, this is not necessarily the case However, I do think you should give this serious thought, for your son, when he is grown up, may not be as enthusiastic as you are about a name that he may consider ponderous and perhaps even somewhat of an encumbrance. How about giving him a usual boy's name for his first name, and the surname for his middle name, he to have the choice later on of which he prefers to use?

Should Wear Hat During Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman::

I have never been to a formal luncheon, but now I have been invited to one, to be given by an important woman in this town in which I have come to make my home. Will I be expected to wear my hat during luncheon? (The luncheon is to be given in her home.)

R. S.

Yes; women guests at a luncheon of any formality wear their hats.

Who Selects Movie?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman::

A group of girls would like to have you answer the following question: When a boy asks a girl to go to the movies, should he select the movie or should he leave it up to the girl?

The Five

The boy should ask the girl what she would like to see, but if he is smart he will be prepared to make a suggestion if she is not forthcoming with one. A girl likes to have a date with a boy who takes over the planning, or at least masterfully makes same suggestions as to the entertainment-plans.

Fashion Flashes

THE TEMPTATION to spend more time at home is intensified by a look at the new housecoats. White matelasse, shirred into flattering fullness, is used for an exquisite at-home costume. The rounded yoke—softly curved at the base—and the deep gauntlet cuffs are embroidered in gold sequins and heavy gold thread.

Step out in satin shoes for exciting evenings. Tiny royal blue and ruby red sequins flash on the narrow black satin bands of a smart ankle-strap sandal.

The indispensible dress for the woman who gets about is a sleek dinner dress that is not too dressy. A long, slim silhouette is used for a black crepe dinner dress, the high round neckline trimmed with radiating bands of shocking pink faille embroidered in gold sequins. Very flared peplum either side of centre front. Tailored self-belt, front-slit hemline.

Just perfect with almost everything is a loose topper of creamy beige woollen, with big roll collar, gauntlet cuffs and lining all of nutria. Wonderful over suits, with a woollen dress, or with slacks.

Ready to go anywhere are today's dressed-up wool frocks. Ribbed wool jersey in deep beige is used for a handsome afternoon frock trimmed with a very deep hipline band made of row upon row of gold braid and topped by a tailored belt of the gold braid. Long sleeves; high, round neckline.

Big time ahead for the evening coat, judging by orders already placed. A three-quarter-length coat, cut on flared-back lines, is of silver lame, lined with black velvet. Flat in front, it ripples to fullness at the back. Sleeve fullness begins at the top and tapers to the wrist. High collar, softly-tapered revers.

Might as well be cosy as well as pretty, say college girls who go all out for date frocks in wool fabrics. Black wool jersey is used for a smart date frock with skirt softly draped into a huge self bow at one side. Tiny clusters of multi-colored sequins trim the hip-bow. Boat-shaped neckline, short, extended shoulder sleeves.

COMING INTO the picture for cold weather wear are smart accessories of beaver-dyed mouton. A big side-draped beret of this fur is worn with a matching pouch handbag that is made with a flared, sling-top handle and a gold metal frame. It is furred even at the base. Grand for wear with plain coat or suit.

A winner—but only for the tall and slim of figure—is the sheath-like long dinner dress of black crepe topped by a deep square yoke and long tight sleeves of cobwebby black lace.

Still around, although not as popular as of yore, is royal blue. This color is used for a smart coat, made on fitted lines; diagonal, side closing is marked by a band of black Persian lamb edged with a small arabesque design in black braid set off by tiny jet beads. Similar detail at the one pocket.

Definitely headed for popularity is the coat of brown Persian lamb. A smart topper in this fur has borders and scrolls of silver-blue mink. Full sleeves billow into elbow-length cuffs.

Tie up your tailored suit with a neat little suit hat such as one of gold-stitched greige felt. It is made with cloche brim and bloused crown and is trimmed with three matching feather pompoms and a chenille-dotted veil.

Grandpa's Sunday Coat
...HAD A SILVER LINING

THE silver dollars and greenbacks Grandpa saved never went out of circulation completely. They went to church every Sunday, safe inside the lining of his best coat where Grandma had sewn them. But somehow that inner lining failed to grow quite thick enough to keep the two of them cosy when Grandpa grew too old to work.

Most ordinary methods of saving are like that even now. They depend too much on a strength of will greater than most humans possess.

Travel in Canada

Leo D. Dolan, head of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, suggested the other day in Montreal that Canadians by travelling on their vacations in other provinces than their own place of residence, could do a very great deal for Canadian unity and add greatly to their knowledge of Canada and its people and resources.

Canada has a variety of appeal in the great stretch of land lying between the Atlantic and Pacific and the Forty-Ninth Parallel and the hinterland. How greatly Canadians could extend their knowledge by visiting parts of this country outside their own areas and their own provinces is easy enough to understand. The Dominion has a multitude of attractions and in its natural appeal, in the variety of climate, in the lure of lakes and rivers and forests, in the variety of trades to which Canadians have access, in the great variety of industries, and so on.

Canada's older portions, the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario, have the appeal of modern day progress and also the appeal of great historical values for the history of this land and of its development is as attractive as any anywhere in the world, if not more attractive than that of many countries. The knowledge of the past and present of other parts of Canada is important to every Canadian.

In Ontario many of the residents know their own province intimately, many others know Quebec. But many could also know the stout provinces of the east, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Many Ontario folk have yet to see the great West and its hinterlands and have yet to see the great province of British Columbia. So it is with residents of other provinces, they have yet to see a great part of Canada.

Interprovincial trips and crossing of interprovincial boundaries will stimulate interest in the people and the resources of other parts of this wide country.

This knowledge of the extent and variety of Canada's endowments and advantages is worth every Canadian knowing. It will enliven greatly the interest in the country as a whole as well as in the provinces.

How much motoring could be drawn upon for this purpose can be imagined from the figures which Mr. Dolan mentioned as far as American visitors to Canada during the present year were concerned. It is expected this year 20 to 21 million will have visited Canada from the U.S. Canadians might figure out how many Canadians go on tour and can see that Canada must appeal to a large number of these. Many Canadians, thousands, will go to the United States on tour and many will no doubt, as time goes on, find their way to the Eastern and Western parts of this country.

Another point emphasized is the importance of improving the transportation, especially highways, to bring to Canada American visitors for in spite of the fact of the estimate that in 1955 some two million Americans will visit other continents by air, automobile travel will remain the favorite, he says. He stressed the importance of conserving Canada's game and fisheries resources and the forest wealth as an attraction to touring. He sees the tourist industry and the appeal of Canada to the tourist from the United States as this country's greatest export industry.

Changing Mayfair

Will Mayfair ever again be as smart and fashionable as it was? All over the world people have read novels and stories about London's dashing and gay district of Mayfair, the centre of fashion, the home of the rich and exclusive. Today in Berkeley Square the nightingale does not sing any more. If it did, its song would be drowned by the clack of typewriters in government offices. Speaking on the BBC's short-waves recently, Lester Powell described how the war has accelerated a change that was already taking place in Mayfair. As far back as the early thirties the wealthy were tiring of the great rambling town houses in which their father and grandfathers used to live in such style. Social life in London, like that in New York, was getting out of the home and into clubs and restaurants and hotels. Blocks of modern flats began to spring up among the mansions. Then came the war, and soaring income tax and the almost total disappearance of domestic help closed up houses in Mayfair by the score, many being taken over by the overflow from government departments or turned into servicemen's clubs. But the blitz made the biggest change. The destruction of thousands of offices in the city sent homeless business firms westward. The empty mansions suited them admirably. To serve the office workers quick lunch counters and cheap restaurants opened up in the ground floors of former great houses. Mayfair lost its aristocratic calm, and it looks as if it will never come back. Today in dignified Curzon Street can be seen "These business premises for sale" alongside a plaque let into the wall announcing that "Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, Prime Minister of England died here." One wonders what the elegant Dizzy would have thought of that.

Bicyclist on the Hill

The cyclist of the future will be able to freewheel up hill on the United Kingdom designed bicycle now on view at the "Britain Can Make It" exhibition. This machine which was specially built for display at the exhibition, enables the cyclist to tune in to a miniature radio while he pedals, signal his approach by pressing an electric bell button, brake with a twist of the handlebars and operate built-in lights in the mudguard by pulling a switch. "Built-in" was one of the operative words in the designing of this streamlined bicycle: it applies to every part of the machine from the instrument panel to the toolbag and pump. An anti-theft lock and concealed parking stand are part of the fittings. The most remarkable feature, however, is the unique combination of pedal and electric power. The machine employs shaft propulsion instead of a chain drive and a battery concealed in the framework gives power to the cyclist going up hill — he can freewheel a thousand yards up a one in ten gradient. The bicycle is 15 per cent lighter and will be appreciably cheaper than the present day machine. It will not be going into commercial production, however, for several years.

Blood Plasma for Dutch

In a review of Britain's blood donation scheme last year the Ministry of Health states that about four thousand bottles of dried plasma were sent to Holland after the liberation for the medical treatment of people suffering from the effects of starvation. This was in addition to many thousands of bottles of whole blood and plasma sent to the British fighting services and used in civilian hospitals in Britain, where transfusion is being used more widely than ever before, especially for surgical and maternity cases. The total number of blood donations in England and Wales last year was nearly 394,000. Before the war blood transfusion was the concern of a few voluntary associations and one or two local authorities. Now a service designed to meet the needs of wartime casualties has become an established and valuable part of the general hospital services of Britain.

It was a great story, and revealing, that Winston Churchill told on Montgomery at the Alamein dinner in London on Wednesday night.

"Monty" was being driven down to an airport to fly to Egypt to take over the command against Rommel. After a long, moody silence, he said to General Ismay gloomily: "A soldier's life is hard. He works, struggles, becomes a general, then loses a big battle, and that's the end of him." Consoled Ismay: "Oh, it's not so bad as that; I don't think you should be feeling sorry for yourself." "Sorry for myself!" snapped back "Monty"—"I'm not sorry for myself; I'm thinking of poor old Rommel."

THE YOUNGER GENERATION

Every generation wearies; tires of keeping at its best.
On the past, and all its triumphs, it sits down awhile to rest.
Then the younger and the stronger and the braver must step in,
As their fathers did before them, with the will to work and win.

Those who built the better city, in their years of strength and pride,
Come to twilight with the splendor of their past full satisfied.
Gone the days when they by visions of new conquests were inspired.
They have spent their strength for struggle; they are old and they are tired.

'Tis the sons that they have fathered, with the fire of purpose filled
And their future all before them, who the better way must build.
Since men's work is never finished, 'tis the young who must believe Opportunity awaits them, and go forward and achieve.

The apple crop throughout Prince Edward County is the poorest for many years; many farmers are buying apples for their own use. At this time last year about 10,000 barrels of apples had been shipped from Picton by rail; only a few hundred barrels have been shipped from there this season.

While returning home in his automobile on Monday evening Mr. Jack Fitzgerald of Maynooth, encountered a bear in the road. Bruin disputed the right of way and refused to move until the car was brought to a stop. Even then he was in no hurry to get away. The lights on the car probably fascinated him.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP) — A new unity move in Canadian labor circles affecting the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor appears to be gaining headway.

The idea of closer co-operation between the two major labor organizations — together they have a membership of some 350,000—gained new impetus when the T. L. C. at its Windsor, Ont., convention in September went on record favoring establishment of a Central Labor Council.

The idea won quick support from the C.C.L. and A. R. Mosher, president of that organization with Pat Conroy, secretary treasurer, now have written Percy R. Bengough, T.L.C. president, suggesting something should be done about it.

Further support has come from District 26 of the United Mine Workers, the district which includes Maritime locals of the mine union. The U.M.W. is in the peculiar position of being affiliated in Canada with the C.C.L. — which has major support from C.I.O. unions—and in the United States with the American Federation of Labor.

In general, A.F.L. unions in Canada are affiliated with the T.L.C.

ALLOWANCES: The Health Department now is drawing the people's attention through newspaper and radio advertisements to the changes in the income tax laws with respect to family allowances.

In the budget brought down June 27 it was disclosed that in the cases of taxpayers with children under 16 family allowances would be interlocked with exemptions for dependent children.

The taxpayer will be given a tax credit of $100 for each child under 16, but under the change in the law he will be considered to be in receipt of family allowances which average about $72 per child annually.

The advertisements are drawing attention to the fact it is in the taxpayers interest to register for the allowances now so that payment of them can begin January 1 when the changes in the income tax law become effective.

Moscow Radio Says "New Military Caste" Being Created in U. S.

London, Oct. 28 — (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that "a new military caste" was being created in the United States and was beginning to "set the tone in the country's economy and policy." The military caste, "filled with the spirit of militarism and imperialism, is becoming the bulwark of reaction in America . . . At the same time preparing and carrying out a broad program of expansion," radio commentator "Dr. Lan" said.

FRANCE'S TOLL

About 300,000 houses were completely destroyed and 800,000 damaged in France during the last war.

SO THIS IS N'YORK!

Obviously impressed by what he sees, the Soviet Union's foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov studies the sights of New York as he rides through mid-town Manhattan in an open car during an official parade and reception given by the city to visiting delegates to the United Nations' General Assembly. Reports state that the parade received a less than vociferous welcome from New Yorkers.

Royal Commission Forest Resources Opens Hearings

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 28—(CP)—Recommendations which may lead to a big step forward to preserve Northern Ontario's rich forest resources are to be considered at hearings of the royal commission on forest resources which start today.

After two days the commission will move on to Port Arthur, Kenora, Fort Frances and other parts of the north country. Appointed last February, it will hear briefs and public appeals on 14 subjects ranging from the welfare of lumberjacks to protests against unscrupulous cutting by timber companies.

Upon Maj.-Gen. Howard Kennedy, commission chairman, will fall the responsibility of recommending future policy to curb exploitation of the interland's valuable forests.

Several of the chief aspects of forestry with which the commission will deal are methods employed in forest operations, the relation of forest operations to other basic industries and particularly to farming, the status of woodsmen and their wages, working hours and living conditions, supervision and administration of forest lands and the conservation and improvevent of cutting and marketing.

Regina Boasts Puppet Romeo

Regina, Oct. 28 (CP) — When Punch and Judy scamper toward the wings and Romeo and Juliet glide upstage in the realm of puppetry, the change will in part be caused by the efforts of a Regina grandmother.

Mrs. Ella M. Davis, who has been at puppet making and performing for some eight years, has switched her efforts from wild western plays to the Shakespearean drama and says the latter gives her much more pleasure.

She constructed her own entire puppet theatre and does the dialogue of all characters with her own voice as well as manipulating all the puppets.

"Romeo and Juliet may not be for children but some people said serious drama could not be successful with puppets and I think I am succeeding," said Mrs. Davis who was born at Florence, Ont., and came here 25 years ago.

Scenery and characters of the "Tomb" scene from the Shakespearean classic are complete and she has memorized all the dialogue. Friends have witnessed a performance of the drama in her front parlor where her theatre is set up.

The western play she wrote and produced for children last year, soon became boring to her but she never tires of Shakespeare.

Mrs. Davis' interest in puppetry was first aroused when she was a child in Detroit. There she became acquainted with a family of professional puppeteers and the unused puppets in their attic became the child's dolls.

Built Own Stage.

But it was not until six years ago that she first constructed her own puppet stage. Since then she has given many performances for her friends at home and last year she put on a show at the local Y.M.C.A.

Her earliest performances, and still in her repertoire, are folk dances by gaily-costumed figures. One specialty is a Russian dancer who gives her performance to the accompaniment of a recorded version of a Latvian folk song, "The Poppy." Mrs. Davis finds that the music of composers such as Tschaikowsky are too intricate for puppet work. A well-punctuated rhythm is required.

Her only professional engagement was when a group of children sold tickets for seats at a local hall and Mrs. Davis received enough money to pay costs of constructing the puppet theatre.

Forms of the puppets are first modelled from plasticene and used to make a mold of clay. From the clay mould the actual papier mache puppets are made.

Work on the costumes is intricate. Detail must be exact yet the general effect is of the most importance.

Designing of scenery comes easily to Mrs. Davis, for she has been an active stage designer for many years in amateur and children's theatricals in Regina.

She will be entertaining her grandchildren with the western play this Winter but will be "delighted" to put on "Romeo and Juliet" for any group that requests it.

ANYBODY NEED A GOOD HEART TONIC?

Thanks so much for your suggestion to take vitamin B complex with each dose of digitalis —I am showing much improvement now. I wish everyone with a fluttery heart could take it as I have and improve under your advice as I have. (H.M.K.)

I advised the correspondent to take a good daily ration of vitamin B complex along with the digitalis his physician prescribed for him—that is, if his physician approved.

There is no particular reason that I can conceive why a physician should not approve of this, because it is not medicine, but merely essential food or food accessories (vitamin B complex and iron and manganese, in the preparation best suited for taking with digitalis), food or accessory food factors which most people fail to get in their over-refined daily diet.

Since I began urging vitamin B complex as a heart tonic, in this column, a good deal of practical clinical evidence has accumulated to substantiate the teaching.

Regardless of the nature of the heart trouble, any one who takes vitamin B complex as a heart tonic should get it clearly through his or her head that it is food, not medicine, and it must be taken every day the year around.

Since it is food, not medicine, there is no sense in "trying" it for a few weeks and then discontinuing. Whatever benefits one derives from this heart tonic become gradually manifest after several weeks, and thereafter one may maintain the improved heart action and improved circulation by taking just one daily ration of B complex.

Not only the function of the heart but the function of the digestive tract is generally improved by an adequate daily intake of vitamin B complex.

Vitamin B complex means all of the vitamins that naturally grows along with vitamin B, (thiamine), in more or less the proportions of the different vitamins as they occur in such foods as wheat, lean meat, liver, etc. — some of the better known components being vitamin B2, G or riboflavin, nicotinic acid or niacin, calcium ponthothenate.

A tonic is anything that improves or increases the tone of organ or tissue, or restores enfeebled function.

Most good physicians regard digitalis as a heart tonic. Keep well in mind that I'm just a one-horse-and-buggy doctor and no authority. I am so skeptical of the value of digitalis as a remedy for any sort of heart trouble that I wouldn't take it myself in any conceivable circumstance — unless a phyisician attending me ordered me to take it—I'd take anything a doctor ordered me to take, except mashed potato.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Rays

What are the names of the different light rays the sun transmits, such as ultra-violet rays and others? (S.P.A.)

Answer — The visible rays are the red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet rays of the spectrum or rainbow. Then there are important invisible rays of longer wave length than the red rays which are the longest in the visible rays, and these are called infra-red rays (heat), and other invisible rays shorter than the blue and violet which are the shortest of the visible rays, and these are called ultra-violet rays (cold.) Boy in our physics class had a name that came in handy in helping us memorize order of the colors in spectrum — Roy G. B. — so you have only to say Hi, Roy, G. Bix—to know the order, from longest to shortest wave lengths, is Heat, Infrared, Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Indigo, Violet, Ultraviolet, X-rays, etc.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is a boat race called a regatta?

"Regatta" is a Venetian term defined by early Italian dictionaries as "strife," "contention," or "a struggling for mastery."

It was the name given already in the late Middle Ages to annual boat races held on the Grand Canal in Venice between gondoliers. A valuable prize was given to the captain of the winning gondola, and as early as 1652 we find these regattas referred to as costly and ostentatious exhibitions of rowing skill. The first English regatta was held on the Thames in 1774. In time the name came to be applied to any elaborate boat or yacht race, or organized series of such races, regardless of the method of propulsion, particularly an exhibition of the kind that forms a prominent social or sporting event.

By an edict issued in 1562 by the Great Council of Venice all gondolas were required to be painted black.

Regatta Day (September 1) is a legal holiday in Hawaii.

Why is a grocer so called?

In olden times a person who dealt in spices, sugar, dried fruits, tea, coffee and such foodstuffs was called a "spicer." "Spice" is an alteration of "species," kind. A wholesale dealer in such articles was known as a "spicer en gross" or a "grosser," that is, one who dealt by the gross, bulk or unbroken packages.

"Gross" is from French "gros," great or large, and in process of time "grosser," probably due to the influence of French "merchand grossier," became simply "grocer."

The London grocers, who were incorporated in 1344, originally were wholesale dealers in spices and foodstuffs from foreign lands. In the course of time the term was extended to embrace retail as well as wholesale food dealers. One who deals in fresh vegetables and fruits used to be called a "green grocer." There seems to be no good reason for accepting the suggestion that grocers were so called because they traced to a considerable extent in "grossis," figs.

Bulgarian Voters Choosing First Republican Govt.

Sofia, Oct. 26 — (AP)—Bulgaria, one-time Axis satellite and Balkan hotspot, will elect the first Republican government in her history tomorrow in a climax to months of pulling and ruling between the powers of the east and the west.

Some 4,000,000 citizens — all men and women more than 18 years of age — are eligible to vote by secret ballot for 465 members of the National Assembly of the new republic, proclaimed Sept. 15 under a provisional constitution which the current assembly drew up after a plebiscite dethroning King Simeon II. Voting will be for party lists rather than individuals.

The election will see the first clearcut opposition challenge to the Communist-led Fatherland front, which took over the government and put Bulgaria on the Allied side two years ago. Opposition leaders, who boycotted an election the Fatherland Front won last Nov. 18, will contest tomorrow's balloting.

The Allied Control Commission for Bulgaria — representing the United States, Britain and Russia — will be watching the result closely.

Bulgaria fronts, with Russia, on the Black Sea and borders Greece, where Britain has troops, and is not far from the Dardanelles, whose defence Turkey has refused to share with Russia.

The government has told opposition parties they may have watchers at the polls. But the Russian on the Control Commission has blocked two United States plans for the commission to take a hand in conduct of the campaign and the election.

IMPROMPTU RODEO

Kitchener, Oct 28 (CP)—Telephone calls that a bull was loose on a city street led to an impromptu rodeo Saturday night. Police in a cruiser hunted the animal for three hours and when it was sighted a constable leaped from the running board and in true western style "threw the bull"—which turned out to be a seven-months-old calf. Police are still seeking the owner to present him with a bill for cleaning uniforms.

WEDDINGS

OBEY—MEYERS

At four o'clock on the afternoon of October twelfth a very pretty wedding was quietly solemnized in St. Saviour's Anglican Church, Toronto, when the altar was banked with autumn flowers for the marriage of Miss Evelyn Geraldine "Jerry" Meyers, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald H. Meyers, formerly of Trenton; and Mr. Sidney Francis Obey, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Obey of Toronto. Rev. Jamieson officiated in the presence of only the immediate families of the contracting parties.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made an attractive picture in a shrimp pink crepe dress, shoulder length veil falling from a turquoise flowered headdress, matching elbow-length mitts and wearing a corsage of Talisman roses. Miss Joan Meyers was her sister's only attendant, choosing a gown of heavenly-blue crepe with shoulder-length veil and pink flower headdress, matching lace mitts and wearing a corsage of red roses.

The groom was ably supported by his uncle, Mr. Sidney Lee.

Later a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mrs. Meyers received the guests wearing an attractive navy gown with matching hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother also received wearing a gown of printed silk jersey, with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Obey will take up residence in Toronto.

BROADBEST—MEYERS

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Manse, Marmora St., Trenton, was the scene of a quiet marriage on the afternoon of October 16th., at two o'clock when Viola Jean Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Meyers, Trenton, became the bride of Charles Francis Broadbest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Broadbest of Alberta, the officiating clergyman being Rev. R. C. MacLean.

Mr. P. Hamilton of South Porcupine, Ont., performed the duties of groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where Mrs. Meyers received in yellow flowered silk crepe with black accessories, and wearing a corsage of roses.

For a wedding trip to Western Ontario the bride wore a grey suit, topped with a fur-trimmed coat, with red accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Broadbest will later take up residence in Kapuskasing, Ont.

136th Anniversary Tabernacle Church Fittingly Observed

Choosing "Spiritual Atmosphere" as the theme of his Sunday morning address, Dr. Archer Wallace, M. A. speaking to a large and appreciative audience in Tabernacle United Church on the occasion of its 136th anniversary, said "Physical atmosphere is very important to both vegetable and animal life. The soil may be the best obtainable, but seeds will not produce plants unless the temperature of the air is also conducive to their growth.

Atmosphere is just as vital to Spiritual growth. It has been said that when Henry Drummond walked into a room the atmosphere changed without him being conscious of it." Another illustration used by Dr. Wallace was the experience of the psychologist, James, who not long before his death wrote:—"Two things stand out in my mind after fifty years of research; first,—Behind all material phenonema there is a great power, Second,—It is possible for human beings to come into touch with that power."

And Mathew Arnold once said —"There is a power in this world not ourselves which makes for righteousness."

Must Create Atmosphere

"This," said Dr. Wallace, is moral atmosphere. The function of the Christian Church is to create an atmosphere from which men go into business life to speak words which bring other men into touch with their God."

The prosperity of any nation depends upon the number of its people who will defend its unenforceable laws. You can only make people good by changing the atmosphere about them."

The floral arrangements at the altar and in the choir loft were exceptionally beautiful; standards and baskets of white, golden and bronze "mums" being used effectively against a background of potted ferns.

At evening service Rev. J. W. Houston was assisted by Rev. D. C. Amos; regret being expressed at the unavoidable absence of Rev. C. A. Perkins of Holloway St. Church.

Many at Service

At the service Dr. Wallace spoke to a capacity audience, the Tabernacle congregation being augmented by folk from Bridge St. and Holloway St. Churches as well as from churches in the nearby rural areas, and by the students of Albert College.

"But their is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding," was the text for the evening sermon, when Dr. Wallace said in part;— "Some people are so sincere they become pessimistic; others by their very attitude make us feel better." Someone once said, 'I thank you not only for what you are, but for what I am when I'm with you.' We are fundamentally and specifically spiritual beings. The secret of all evangelism is in this text.

There is a spirit in man, but it does not prevail in all men." St. Augustine once prayed:— Lord, Thou hast made us for Thyself and we are restless until we find rest in Thee."

Have To Believe In God

Dr. Wallace Concluded, "I have met so many good people during my life that I have to believe in God." and addressing the Albert College student body he continued "Look for the best; believe in the best; that is the road which will lead you to God."

The choir under the able leadership of Mrs. M.P. Duff contributed largely to the inspiration of these services; the men's chorus at the morning and the male quartette at the evening service being especially enjoyable.

Altogether the 136th Anniversary of Tabernacle's inception has been outstanding.

Following the evening service Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Houston were "at home" to a few friends in honor of Dr. Wallace.

Birthday Party Of Bridge Street W.M.S. Held

An interesting occasion on Wednesday afternoon was the birthday party of the Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge St. United Church, held at the home of Mrs. Holmes on Queen Street.

The living rooms were tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums in all the fall colors ranging from deep red to the pale golden hues. Here Mrs. Holmes and the president, Mrs. Davidson welcomed the guests and they were made "at home" by other members of the society.

Mrs. Cronk invited the guests to the dining room. Here the tea table, beautiful with table cloth of cut work and lace and resplendent with red mums and candles, was presided over by Mrs. Baker; Mrs. H. J. Clarke and Mrs. F. Adams pouring tea, while Mrs. Meyers, Mrs. Gilroy, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Howie, Mrs. Francis and Miss Georgia Pitnam served the guests.

A birthday cake covered with lighted candles added to the decorations. The two members whose birthdays fell on that day were asked to blow out the candles. These were Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Anderson. They were called to the centre of the room, before the party broke up, while the members sang "Happy Birthday to you."

The treasurer of the Society, Mrs. Dixon received the birthday donations and invited all to sign the birthday book. All declared it had been a lovely birthday party.

Trousseau Tea Held at Home Of Mrs. Twiddy

On Sunday afternoon a delightful trousseau tea was held at the home of Mrs. P. A. Twiddy, 156 W. Moira St., in honor of Miss Phyllis Twiddy, bride-to-be.

Little Miss Lorna Hinchey opened the door and Mrs. Lyle Twiddy invited the guests to sign the guests' register.

The trousseau was shown by Miss Mabel Cross, the gifts by Miss Doris Burley, the hope chest by Miss June Bloor assisted by Mrs. Bernice Moore.

The guests were invited into the tea room by Mrs. S. Salisbury.

The table was beautifully decorated with a lovely lace table cloth centred with flowers and tall pink tapers.

Princesses Attend Wedding Of Patricia Mountbatten

Romsey, Hampshire, Eng., Oct. 28 — (CP) — Lovely Patricia Mountbatten, daughter of one of Britain's foremost warriors was married Saturday to Capt. Lord Brabourne in the splendor of Romsey's Norman abbey, and afterwood king and commoner toasted the couple whose wedding gave this ancient town the finest fete in its history.

The service was conducted in the presence of 1,300 persons, ranging from farm and domestic employees of the two families to generals who had served under Viscount Mountbatten in Asia, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Manchester and two other clergymen.

The 22-year-old bride, a Wren officer during the war, was attended by Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret. Princess Alexandra, daughter of the Duchess of Kent, and her sister, Pamela. She wore a gown fashioned from Indian silver-gold brocade. The bridesmaids wore satiny blue.

The King attended in the uniform of an admiral and the Queen was in silver grey, with silver fox furs and hat trimmed with ostrich feathers. Viscount Mountbatten likewise wore his admiral's uniform.

The groom was in the garb of a Coldstream Guards Regiment.

Prince Philip of Greece was conspicuous in navy livery.

Despite cold, rainy weather, all except the bride and her father, who arrived in an automobile, walked a considerable distance to and from the church, returning with smiles and nods the cheers and handwavings of crowds who waited along the way for many hours.

The bridesmaids' trains soaked up water and mud, but there was no faltering in the procession. Inside the abbey, 9-year-old Princess Alexandra sought impulsively to straighten the folds of one soiled train, but was admonished by Lord Mountbatten with the slight lift of a finger.

After the service two receptions were held, the first at Broadlands, Mountbatten home just outside town, where the King raised a glass of champagne to the bride and groom, and the second in Romsey's community hall, in which were gathered gift-bearing tenants from the Mountbatten estates and from those of the groom's family in neighboring Kent.

Friends said the couple would honeymoon on the Continent, travelling by car, but withheld the itinerary. A report that the two would sail for the United States on the Aquitania was denied officially.

Many persons noted pointedly the absence of the Duke of Windsor, Patricia's godfather, and one of the Mountbattens' intimates before he relinquished his kingdom to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson. They interpreted this as further indication of the Royal family's unwillingness to raise embarrassing social questions, and as a re-emphasis of the duke's position that his wife must be accepted on his terms—with a title of royal highness for her and all the precedence that goes with it.

Tot and Dentist Getting Together

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

Chicago. (AP)—They're fixing things now so Junior won't fear the dentist—and the dentist won't fear Junior, either.

A new graduate course in this growing field of pedodontics—dentistry for children—psychology is being used to put youngsters at east. And specialized training is being given to put practitioners in the same happy state.

A new graduate course in tis speciality at the University of Illinois College of Dentistry, includes instruction in the fine art of child management. The proceures recommended require knowledge and finesse, but they are quite simple.

A pedodontist takes his first cue from the patient. He determines the level of the child's emotional and mental developments, and speaks the child's language. He'll talk with a four-year-old about things very close to the tot—his mother, toy trains, picture books.

But conversation with an athletic lad of 10 will turn to baseball, football or basketball. A few leading questions—such as "What position do you play on the team?"—should loosen the boy's tongue. And the more he prattles, the less timid he becomes.

A teen-ager is treated as an adult. The best approach is to ascertain his hobby—building radio sets, perhaps— and chat about that, even at the expense of reading up on the subject after office hours.

Child's Fright Overcome .. ...

There are also devices for building trust and confidence. One rule is never to do any painful work on a child during his first visit except in an emergency. This overcomes the contagious fright he picked up from playmates or parents.

The dentist never should lie. If it's going to hurt, he should say: "This will bother you for a moment." The child appreciates this honesty and has full faith in the dentist thereafter.

A soft voice inspires confidence. Subdued radio music helps, too. A habit of making suggestions, instead of giving orders, makes Operation Molar a co-operative project.

Color and equipment enter into the scheme of things, too: An office decorated in yellows and gay greens, and brightly illumined by a natural shade of light, is warm and cheerful.

That old bugbear, the drill, should be unobtrusive—set on a low stand instead of hanging overhead like a domaclean sword. A bubbling fountain, instead of a cup, pleases the younger set.

"Once you have established confidence, children make much better patients than adults," says Dr. Maury Massler, supervisor of pedodontics at Illinois.

The college recently set out to train pedodontists for the dental care of children in somewhat the same way pediotricians are trained for the medical care of children. The new course is a full-time, nine-month program for superior grade graduates of dental schools.

"The great difficulty in dental practice," comments Dr. Massler, "has been that the dentist has not been trained in the psychological aspects of dentistry with the result that the dentist has feared the child as often as the child has feared the dentist. That is why many children are not receiving the dental attention they deserve and need."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

Belleville Chapter 435, Women of the Moose, held its regular monthly meeting, with Senior Regent L. Connell presiding. All committee chairmen of the month reported on Chapter activities. Mrs. L. Connell was appointed as representative to attend the annual Ontario Conference to be held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Ont., in November. Several Co-Workers are also planning to be in attendance. Sunshine prize donated by Co-Worker M. Thrasher was won by Co-Worker N. Haslip.

At the close of business session, games were in progress and a social hour well spent.

Fashion Flashes

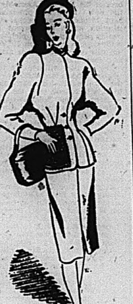
Coming up again is the fur-lined jacket-suit. White or chartreuse dyed American broadtail lamb is used for a boxy topper of black woollen worn above a slim skirt. The jacket has collar and notched revers of the fur. Silverblue muskrat lines, collars and cuffs the jacket of a green woollen suit.

A new outlook has given Alaska seal new impetus, and has taken it from the dowager class. Bronze-brown Alaska seal is used for a handsome coat, which has diagonal, side buttoning from just beneath its high, collarless neckline to the hip. Straight-tailored easy sleeves and a casual, tied self belt a la polo coat style —are other interesting details. Buttons are gilt filagree rimmed with fake amber.

The trouble lies in the complexion itself

Gold and silver touches lend interest to afternoon and evening frocks once more. Brown crepe makes a slim dinner dress with gold metal thread forming stripes that spiral around the dress from one shoulder to point low on the opposite hip. Deep, curved neckline and cap sleeves.

Focal Point Of Fashion



By VERA WINSTON

EITHER THE SLEEVE or the pocket is likely to be the focal point of interest in many of the newest designs. New trimmings, new manipulations give a definite fall 1946 look to clothes now basking in the sartorial spotlight. Soutache braid and jet beads are massed on the large pocket of an otherwise simple black wool suit. Three small jet buttons fasten at the waist. The sleeves have deep armholes and slim forearms. The straight skirt is eased by a small slit at the centre front.

MAY TAB ENNIS ROOKIE OF YEAR

Six-Foot Outfielder Cost Phils Two Street-Car Tokens

By FRANK ECK

St. Louis, Oct. 28 (AP)—Delmer Ennis, 21-year-old freshman outfielder for the Philadelphia Phillies is due to be voted baseball's "Rookie of the Year." Veteran writers and players who were on hand for the World Series believe that Ennis deserves the honor without a doubt.

The six-foot right hander's name came up several times during the longest World Series jaunt in history—the Boston Red Sox' two round trips to St. Louis netted approximately 5,080 miles.

On the Cardinal special train, a 25-hour ride from Boston, there were one or two who cast a verbal vote for Joe Garagiola, 20-year-old Red Bird catcher, and Bruce Edwards, 24-year-old Brooklyn receiver.

Both Garagiola and Edwards appear headed for stardom in the majors but their batting averages of .237 and .267, respectively were far below the mark of .313 compiled by the Philadelphian.

Ennis was one of the five leading batters in the National League. The last time the Phillies had a man in the "Big Five" was in 1939 when Morrie Arnovich hit .324 in 134 games.

Ennis, playing 141 contests this season, collected 17 home runs among his 169 blows. He batted in 72 runs, seventh best figure in the circuit.

Some say he hits like Jimmy Foxx or Joe Medwick, two great righthanded batters.

That Ennis even played ball this season is a wonder. He spent two years in the navy and was part of the invasions of Peleliu and Iwo Jima. On Iwo he was a member of a demolition crew that cleared land mines.

Lucky Break for Phils

That he finished the season in the majors is even more surprising. The Phils sought to farm him out for further seasoning but the GI Bill of Rights forced them to keep him.

It was in 1942 that Jocko Collins, a Phillie scout, went out to see a pitcher by the name of Dick MacTough. There was a husky outfielder in the Olney High team in Philadelphia and Scout Collins was anxious to see how MacTough would pitch to the big 17-year-old kid.

The batter was Del Ennis and he hit a home run. Collins thought it was just one of those things until Ennis hit another homer. On his third trip, Del walloped a double with the bases full. On his fourth time at bat, Ennis belted a homer with one aboard and Mr. Collins lost all interest in MacTough, the pitcher.

And all Ennis cost the Phillies was 15 cents for Collins' two-token round-trip trolley ride.

The Phils farmed Ennis to the Class B Trenton, N.J., team in 1943 where he hit .348, leading the league in total bases and doubles. He was runner-up in homers with 19, triples and runs batted in.

Then the navy got him and it wasn't until April 5 of this year that the young outfielder put his hands on a bat for the first time in 13 months. He even missed spring training.

In his third National League game he came up with the bases loaded against Chicago and doubled to win the game.

He has the makings of a great hitter, say veterans, and all he cost was 15 cents—and in this day of butter at a dollar a pound.

Nimrods Find Pheasants Cagey and Scarce as Shoot Opens in All-Day Rain

No records were set up yesterday as the two-day pheasant shoot in some of the townships surrounding Toronto opened, neither for bag or for the number of hunters pursuing the elusive bird. The rainy day was one deterrent, and the few hunters out found the birds "sitting tight." One lucky man was M. J. Adlam of Thornhill, seen coming from a field with one lone bird. Another fortunate pair who found some birds in the Markham township area were Fred Irvine of Weston (left) and Harold Inman, Toronto. Soaked to the skin almost, in spite of heavy waterproofs, they got their birds the hard way, flushing them from underfoot, so "tight" were the pheasants staying to the ground. Very few dogs were used in yesterday's hunt, they said.

Happy all over was Wilfred Dean of Thornhill when, after hours of scouring field and brush, he managed to get the pheasant he smilingly holds. Only thing he lacked for complete comfort, he claimed, was a pair of fisherman's waders.

Toronto Leafs Out in Front Of N.H.L. Race by Defeating Hawks, Remaining Unbeaten

Canadiens Win and Lose to Detroit, While Boston Defeats Rangers

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The National Hockey League race was as close as scrambled eggs today after the season's 2nd weekend bill, a four-game card that saw everything from scintillating goaltending at Toronto to a scoring outburst at Montreal by the embattled Canadiens.

Canadiens, perhaps inspired by rumors that the team was in for a shake-up if it didn't get cracking, unleashed a seven-goal broadside and sank Detroit Red Wings 7-2 Saturday night. Maurice Richard, ace sniper of the squad, pulled the first hat trick of the season when he personally accounted for three goals, two of them unassisted.

Mowers Replaced

That attack sent veteran goalie Johnny Mowers to the showers after a two-game stand, and when the teams played the bottom half of their weekend double bill at Detroit Sunday, young Harry Lumley was in the nets to hand Canucks a 2-1 loss. That was Detroit's first win in six starts this year, and left them tied with Chicago Black Hawks for fifth place.

Toronto Maple Leafs jumped into the league lead as they downed Chicago 2-1 in Toronto Saturday night, and maintained their unbeaten streak.

Meeker Notches Winner

Teeter Kennedy and Howie Meeker, a veteran who went thru the mill overseas, notched Leafs' two goals, while Bill Mosienko got the lone Chicago counter.

In the other Saturday game, Boston's undefeated Bruins squelched the ambitious New York Rangers 3-1 at Boston. That win, added to three previous ties, gave Boston a second-place saw-off with Canadiens, just one point behind Leafs, one ahead of Rangers, and two in front of Hawks and Wings.

Rangers looked to be on their way to another upset Saturday night when Cal Gardiner put them ahead with a first period goal. But Bruins got rolling on Woody Dumart's second period marker and Kenny Smith and Bep Guidolin sewed it up in the third.

Canadiens were without three regulars for their weekend bill.

Dressed Only 14

But with only 14 men dressed, Canadiens skated all over Wings, as Bobby Fillon and George Allen added a pair of goals each to Richard's trio. Ted Lindsay and Billy Taylor averted a whitewash late in the third period.

In Sunday's game it was a different story as Lumley was virtually unbeatable. Sid Abel and Billy Taylor gave Wings a 2 - 0 lead in the second period, before George Allen got his third weekend goal in the third.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Billy (the Kid) Taylor picked up two goals and two assists as Detroit Red Wings lost 7-2 and won 2-1 from Montreal Canadiens and moved into a commanding lead in the National Hockey League scoring race with nine points made up of two goals and seven assists. Team-mate Roy Conacher picked up an assist to move in to a second place tie with another Wing, Syd Abel, and Maurice Richard of Montreal.

UPSETS LEAVE RUGBY PICTURE STILL BECLOUDED

Toronto Argos Sure of Playoff Berth by Defeating Ottawa

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Instead of the clouds lifting from Canada's senior football scene as forecast, the playoff positions were as befogged as ever today after a weekend that featured upsets.

In the east's Interprovincial Union, Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders still had a chance for the two places although Riders' hopes were reduced to the mathematical by their 8-5 loss to Argos.

Windsor Rockets, whose loss would have settled the four Ontario Union spots, surprised with a 13-6 victory over Sarnia Imperials and still may catch the fourth-place Imps. Balmy Beach made sure of one of the other berths meanwhile by whipping the winless Trojans, 8-1, at Toronto.

In the league's big game, Hamilton Wildcats upset the unbeaten Toronto Indians 20-11, before a home crowd of 14,000 and thus moved into a leadership tie with Brian Timmis' tribe.

Prospects of Playoff

Even in the east's intercollegiate circuit, which doesn't challenge for the Dominion title, prospects of a playoff clash were seen in University of Toronto's smashing, 39-7 win over hapless Queen's University. With University of Western Ontario, who meanwhile defeated McGill, 12-7, two points ahead of Varsity, a Toronto win when the two clash next Saturday would tie it up.

The west's probable Grey Cup challenger remained a toss up after Calgary Stampeders, meeting Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the honor in a total-points series, came through with a 21-18 victory to carry a slim lead into the final clash in Winnipeg next Saturday.

Krol Leads Argos

It was Joe Krol, still the king of the East's individual scorers, who led Argonauts out of their slump before a record crowd of 13,000 at Ottawa. The big half punted all his team's points on two placements and two singles. Riders, guilty of costly fumbles, got all their points on rouges punted by Bert Haigh.

Gunning for their initial victory, Tigers took a 10-0 lead at Montreal in the only Sunday contest but fell before Alouettes' strong finish. Polly Miocinovich paced Hamilton with a touchdown and a placement, with Bob Hazel scoring the other major. For Montreal, touchdowns were scored by Matt Anthony, Virgil Wagner and Joe Richman while Ches McCance booted a placement and three converts.

Well-Drilled Team

The Wildcats, Coach Frank Gnup's well-drilled team, led Indians 7-6, at the half time in Hamilton and opened their winning margin with eight unanswered points in the third quarter. Both Toronto touchdowns were scored by stock Doug Pyzer while Don Toms bagged two for Wildcats and Gord Miller added another.

A major by Bob Wylupek and field goals by Willick and Gerry Dawson at Windsor fanned the Rockies playoff hopes at the expense of Sarnia, whose lone score was a touchdown by Butch Davey. All Balmy Beache's points came in the fourth quarter on a converted major by Bob Cunningham and a safety touch after Rocky Robillard's punt gave Ottawa a 1-0 lead.

Bumper crowds turned out for the two intercollegiate tilts, 14,500 at Montreal and nearly 18,000 at Toronto.

McGill made it a game, leading 1-0 at halftime before the McFarlane brothers — Don and Bob —ganded up on them for two Western touchdowns. It was no contest at Toronto, with the six Varsity majors going two each to Billy Meyers and Fred Doty and one apiece to Mel Lawson and Colin Cranham.

Chatham Wins Intermediate 'A' O.B.A. Title Defeating Bata Shoemen in Second Game 4-0

Batawa Team Unable to Score Run in Two Games Due to Poor Stick Work

(By G.H.C.)

Batawa, Ont., Oct. 28—Behind the stellar hurling of Bob Grant, ace lefthander, coupled with fine offensive and defensive play, the Chatham Seniors defeated the Bata Shoemen here on Saturday afternoon 4-0 to win the Ontario Intermediate "A" championship. It was the second straight win for the visitors, who defeated the Shoemen 1-0 in Chatham on Thursday.

The newly-crowned champions gave every evidence of why they represented the western part of the province against the best the intermediate "A" east had to offer. They proved to be a well-coached squad, and opportunists who took advantage of every chance that came their way. They can hit, have a pitching staff that is one of the best, and their defensive measures left nothing to be desired.

The Shoemen's disappointing performance with the willow and the inability of the flinging staff to live up to their mark, were the chief factors of defeat for the home town squad. Their bats were impotent against the Chatham pitching and only once did they seriously threaten to send a runner across the plate. Their batting slump is evidenced in the fact that they failed to score a single run against Chatham in the eighteen innings of championship play.

Far From Disgraced

Batawa has played better baseball than they did on Saturday, and apparently it was not their day. They were defeated but far from disgraced, and their performances in the realm of intermediate baseball as well as in the city league has brought prestige not only to the team but to its town and the district it so ably represented in the season now over.

Twelve hundred fans saw the seniors outplay the Eastern Ontario champions in all departments. Grant stifled their bats, allowing five scattered singles, two of them scratchy bunts, while his mates pounded three Bata hurlers for thirteen base clouts. He struck out ten and was good in the clutches on the rare occasions when the homesters threatened.

Blew in Fourth

Bata sent Gord. Muffitt, a righthander to the mound in an effort to even the series. The youngster who whiffed six, pitched one-hit ball for three innings then blew in the fourth when the Chatham bludgeons got to him for four hits for three runs. O'Rourke, first man up in the 5th slashed out a single and "Smoky" Smith, Bata lefthander went into the breach.

The southpaw labored for two and one-half innings and yielded five hits for no runs then gave way to Ken Peacock, tall, rangy righthander. Although the latter struck out five he clustered a pair of clouts in the eighth to yield the fourth Chatham run besides uncorking two wild pitches.

It was anybody's ball game up until the fourth innings with both hurlers working nicely with Grant being touched for infield hits that his infield handled like veterans.

Chatham Bats Exploded

M. Williams, first Chatham batter up in the fourth slashed out a single, his second of the game, to centrefield, Muffitt forced Mahon to hoist to centre and sent down Suitor via the whiff route. Then the Chatham bats exploded.

McAlorum scorched a single to right centre field that Austin just missed, and Grant smashed one through second base scoring Williams. D. Williams drew a walk and McAlorum and Grant raced across the plate with two more runs when Bathurst drove a sharp single to left centre. Stirling grounded out to end the agony but the ballgame was in the Chatham bag.

The visitors scored their fourth run in the eighth. Grant poled out his second clout of the day, when he smashed out a line single to left field and went to second on Peacok's wild throw. The pitcher gathered in D. Williams pop bunt and threw out Bathurst when the batter grounded weakly to the mound.

Stirling, Chatham catcher, whose home-run won the first game of the series for the Seniors drove a single to right field and Grant cantered across the plate with the final run of the game. O'Rourke struck out to retire the side.

Threatened But Once

Battawa threatened but once and that came in the fifth. "Smokey" Smith singled sharply to centre field to lead off the innings and Rankin beat out a bunt by a goats whisker, Smith going to second. Peacock whiffed and Grant tossed out Spencer with both runners advancing on the play. The Chatham hurler, however, forced Austin to roll weakly to the box and he easily threw him out to retire the side.

M. Williams, Chatham shortstop shared the hero role with Grant. The infielder drove out four hits for five and his one-handed back-hand stab from his wrong side of Austin's line-drive in the third innings was the fielding highlight of the game. Spencer, Bata rightfielder made a sensational running catch in the 4th to rob Mahon, of at least an extra base hit.

Bathurst and Grant got two hits each for the winners. In fact every man on the Chatham team hit safely with the exception of Suitor.

Spencer, Austin, Aquino, Smith and Rankin were the only hitters for Bata.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Chatham Seniors (an appropriate moniker at that) won the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" championship at Batawa on Saturday afternoon with a masterful display of baseball that had 1200 fans adither from start to finish. The score was 4-0 and that, on Saturday at least, was the difference in the teams.

• • •

Whether it is a baseball germ peculiar to this district, or some other intangible factor, the Shoemen suffered from the same diamond affliction that characterized the performance of the Kiwanis Juniors in their semi-finals series with the Ottawa Wrightvilles. And that is "hitless-itis." In both games against the western Ontario champions, the Bata bludgeons were as ------ as a schoolboy's slingshot against a battleship."

• • •

Only on six occasioins did they get the ball out of the infield. Three of these clouts were easy outs for the Chatham outfielders and the rest were ground hits. They garnered five hits only off Bob Grant, Chatham's ace lefthander, two of which were scratchy bunts. And one could have been called an out as well as a hit, so close was the play.

• • •

Regardless of that, the Bill Easton crew, far from being disgraced bowed out gallantly to a team that was superior, on Saturday, in all departments. Grant, their starry lefthander struck out ten but he had an infield behind him that gave him little worry. They clicked like grandpops false teeth, and knew what to do with the ball when they got it. Williams, Chatham shortstop one of the heroes of the piece with four hits for five, speared Austin's big for a line double in the third, that was little short of spectacular.

• • •

The Chatham squad, all of which, with the exception of Suitor smashed out a base hit, showed they were past masters at the art of "Texas League" clouting. No less than 8 of their thirteen safeties dropped between the infield and the outer gardeners. In fairness it must be said, the fairly strong wind blowing towards the plate checked sky-hit balls in their flight and on not a few occasions the Bata outfield was caught playing .. . deep. They did not, it appeared, allow for the breeze.

• • •

And the Bata crew came through with a fine defensive display the only error of the game being chalked up against Cook when he bobbled Stirling's ground ball between first and second in the third innings. Quick thinking on the part of "Smoky" Smith in the 6th averted an error and choked off a run, when O'Rourke, Chatham leftfielder reached first on Austen's bobbling toss to the bag, but Smith retrieved the ball and fired it to the plate nipping D. Williams who had raced in from third for home. There was no error charged on the play at first.

• • •

Watson and Rankin, Bata third baseman and shortstop respectively, indulged in a little lateral passing in the seventh. Suitor, Chatham second baseman bounced a sharply hit ball off Watson's glove, and Rankin, covering the play snatched the ball out of the air and quickly relayed it back to the sacker who tagged Mahon, Chatham centrefielder as he raced into third.

• • •

Spencer, too, pulled off a sensational catch of a hard-hit fly ball off the bludgeon of Mahon. The Bata rightfielder raced in from a deep position in his outer pasture and grabbed the pill as it was ready to hit the ground and bound away for what would have been an extra base nudge in any ball park.

• • •

Bata's hurling, one of its mainstays in its march to the finals, was not up to its usual mark. Gordie Muffitt, starting flinger started off like the proverbial house afire and [illegible] the classy Grant on even terms for 3 innings. The youngster struck out six of the twelve men to face him in the opening three heats and appeared headed for a good day.

• • •

But he weakened in the 4th and the Chatham bats broke wide open as they blasted four hits to score three runs and put the pastime in the well-known container. And the most of the damage was done after Muffitt had retired two of the foe. "Smoky" Smith went into the breach, but the good fork arm was not up to scratch and he gave way to Ken Peacock after he yielded five safe blows in a little over two chukkers.

• • •

The rangy righthander, whose pitching abilities have been hidden under the baseball bushel for the greater part of the season, turned in a good effort. Although he bunched two hits in the eighth to give up Chatham's fourth run, he hurled good ball and struck out the side in order in the ninth.

Bill Easton, Bata manager who had despaired of the game being played following Friday's deluging rain, had the gang out bright and early Saturday morning in an effort to get the diamond into shape. The boys turned in a good job, and although the playing field was not in first class condition, it did not affect the game to any appreciable extent.

• • •

Johnny Aquino, Bata catcher was the "hard - luck" player of the game. Three times he suffered minor injuries, one when one of Grant's smoking shoots careened off his ribs. He stopped another whizzer with his toe and yet another with his leg, but he manfully stuck to his catching guns and finished the game.

And so it ends. The Chatham squad thoroughly deserved their win at Batawa on Saturday and are worthy holders of the Intermediate title. By the same token the Shoemen are reserving of plaudits for they marched through to the titular series after overcoming some of the best intermediate squads in Ontario. But there must be a winner — and a loser. And it was not Bata's year.

• • • •

The Shoemen were the first to congratulate their conquerors after the smoke of battle was over and entertained them royally before and after the game. The Chatham squad left on Sunday morning for their home in the tobacco and sugar beet belt.

Tonight at the YMCA the representatives, players and fans of the Belleville Intermediate Hockey Association gather to meet representatives of the Junior Hockey Association executive with a view to amalgamating administrative forces for the coming winter's activities. It is expected that a large turnout will be in attendance and that something of a definite nature will come out of the session that will bode nothing but good for the hockey situation. Financial matters will be one of the chief topics for discussion, while other wrinkles will be placed under the verbal iron. The meeting starts at 8.

The Golden Gaels of Queen's University, although buried beneath a Blue avalanche from Varsity on Saturday by a 39-7 score, have one consolation. That scoring duck-egg that has loomed bigger than the Empire State building for the past two or three games, was finally broken. They scored a touchdown in the second quarter and kicked for two points later in the game. Yep, you said it. Kilroy was there.

Barbara Ann Scott Invited to Make Trip to Stockholm

(By The Canadian Press)

An Ottawa girl who it seems, has been winning ice skating laurels since she was barely able to walk, has now been honored with selection to represent Canada at a world championship figure skating meet ot Stockholm, Feb. 16. The Canadian amateur figure skating association decided Saturday at a meeting in Toronto to invite Barbara Anne Scott, North American Women's champion, to make the trip.

Informed of her selection, Miss Scott said, "It would be one of the most wonderful things in the world to be permitted to represent my country at Stockholm."

Dates and sites for the world North American, national and sectional figure skating championships have been announced.

The first world meet since the war will be held Fef. 14-15-16 at Stockholm.

The biennial North American championships will be held at Toronto March 28-29, and the national will go to Berkeley, California, March 6-7-8.

On Feb. 7-8 the eastern states championships will be held at Philadelphia and the mid western at Cleveland. The middle Atlantic championships will be New York's Madison Square Garden sometime in January.

At London, Eng., Jack Holden, 40-year-old star of Tipton Harriers team, claimed the world record Saturday for a 30-mile run. He was clocked in three hours, 16.4 seconds.

At Mexico City Saturday night Leonard Lopez, defending his Mexican Featherweight title, fought a 12-round draw with challenger Ernesto Aguilar. Fans protested the decision.

Gerald Cote, the St. Hyacinthe, Que., marathon marvel, finished 800 yards in front of his nearest competitor in the national A.A.U. marathon championship at Yonkers, N. Y., Saturday.

The rumor that members of the Fort Frances senior hockey team will be paid this winter was squelched by Hugh Valiant, chairman of the Fort Francis recreational committee. He said Sunday they will be "remunerated" which it appears is different.

Montreal, Oct. 28 (CP) — Whatever the outcome of the Big Four football race this fall, it should go roaring down to the finish line in slambang fashion. That was almost assured when Coach Ted Morris, of Toronto Argos, levelled that interference charge against Montreal Alouettes.

Ted contended Alouettes were using their backs for blocking, contrary to the 10-yard interference rule which says only linemen can do the blocking.

That got Lew Hayman of the Alouettes quite hot under the collar, and the Alouettes players haven't too much love for Argos. It all adds up to the makings of a good grudge fight when the squads meet in their decisive two-game series that winds up the schedule. In fact, tempers were a trifle heated the last time they met here and Argos were squelched. There were one or two fights that time, and the fans will be disappointed if they don't see some more ructions.

Besides all that, there's the good old hometown rivalry that always sets the good burghers of Toronto and Montreal stark, staring mad when the name of the rival city is even mentioned.

Arnica and bandages should be the order of the day.

Ride 'er Cowboy—

It's getting so now, the football fans feel cheated if they don't get a floorshow in between the halves, and McGill went all out on the entertainment limb at Saturday's game with Western University.

The intermission extravaganza included a full-fledged chariot race around the dirt track in Molson Stadium.

Probably some of those would-be touchdown gallopers who had their faces rubbed in the dirt were wishing they had the chariots, bucking broncs and all, to help them down the field.

CAN'T FIND DECENT BOY

—Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 28 (CP)—Six girls are looking for a group of eligible young men as guests at a Hallowe'en party, but, they complain, they "can't find a decent boy to invite." They set forth their difficulties in a letter to the editor of the Sault Daily Star and said: "Most of the young men in this day and age just can't go to a party unless they partake of a strong beverage."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

An endplay is what it says; a play at or near the end of a deal. It is the culmination of a combination of events; the final set of acts planned to force a favorable lead from an opponent.

This final operation or endplay is made up of two parts. The first part is where an opponent is thrown into the lead. The second part is where he is forced to return a lead that you desire.

Study the cards you see here:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ 6 5
♦ 9
♣ None

WEST
♠ None
♥ Q 7
♦ K
♣ None

EAST
♠ None
♥ 4 3
♦ 7
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ K 9
♦ Q
♣ None

You see three cards in each hand. They are what remain of a deal. The first ten tricks have already been taken. A combination of events has developed to the situation before you.

Suppose you are sitting south and west is now in the lead. A bit of study will show you that west is in the grip of an endplay. Any lead from there will be favorable to you.

Whether or not west first leads his diamond king, he must lead a heart. When he does, it makes no difference which heart he shoots at you. You will take both heart tricks.

This shows you an example of the last (second) part of the only two acts that make up what is known as an endplay. It gives you an idea of the kind of a play at the end of an endplay.

What is the first of the two parts that make for an endplay? Simply throwing the opponent into the lead. In other words, merely leading something that forces the victim to take a trick.

It may be assumed here that you did this on the tenth trick in this case. That is how west happens to be in the lead at the moment.

Or, suppose you were in the lead instead of west right now. You would merely lead your diamond and force west to take it. He is now endplayed.

There is almost an endless number of endplays.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 28 (AP) — If you see Tarzan, alias Johnny Weissmuller, climbing up a tree to grab a bunch of bananas, it's not an act. He's hungry.

It takes a lot of food to fill that big frame of Johnny's, and the way food prices rise today as compared with his bankroll — well, they just don't jibe.

Surprised to hear that the muscle man is not in the million-dollar class? Well, frankly, I was too. Johnny has been flexing his muscles and letting his hair grow for the cameras since 1932. He just missed out on the days when you could bank a lot of that big salary. A Tarzan film brings Jane's protector $50,000. And he makes one a year. But Weissmuller sees little of this comfortable sum.

Tarzan, or rather Johnny, has found that wives are expensive items. His marriages to Bobbe Arnst and Lupe Velez cost him a tidy sum. At present he is in the throes of getting unhitched from Beryl Scott.

As a result of his wives (and the income tax department), Weissmuller finds himself on a strict financial diet set by his business manager. Johnny gets all of $50 a week for himself.

On the set of his latest opus, "Tarzan and the Huntress," I found him sitting in the shade, clad in his trusty loin cloth, playing gin rummy with one of his jungle cohorts.

"Yup, it's true," he laughed. "I get $50 a week from my pay cheque. So I have to go out and play golf to make some money." (Apparently his gin rummy isn't too successful.)

I suggested he might make more money in pursuits other than Tarzan. "Nah," he said, "I have too much fun making these. Besides, I like having to stay in good shape for them."

Aside from good physical condition, Johnny has to meet other requirements for the role, as set down by author Edgar Rice burroughs:

Tarzan must never kill except in self-defence, or for food.

(Weissmuller has not violated this yet.)

Tarzan never fights except in defence of the oppressed.

(I guess he's clear here too.)

Tarzan never drinks or smokes.

(Johnny doesn't smoke.)

Tarzan becomes enmeshed romantically with only one girl — Jane.

(Maybe if he had stuck to this rule he wouldn't be living on $50 a week.)

AT THE McCARTHY — George Sanders plays the title role of Vidocq in "A Scandal in Paris," starting tomorrow at the McCarthy Theatre, through United Artists. Signe Hasso and Carole Landis are the loves in his life. Second hit features Beverley Simmons in "Little Miss Big."

BROWN-DAVIS TO CLASH HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Natie Brown, ex-pugilist who apparently delights in mixing the Marquis of Queensbury rules with those of whoever invented, compiled or drew up those governing the pachydermic process of eliminating wrestling opponents, uncovered a villain complex last Friday night against Jim Dobie, that drew the fiery ire of the wrestling faithful.

In fact so much did he rely on the style that made Joe Louis famous, that Manager Walt. Gerow started looking around for an opponent who would meet Brown blow for blow, and with tactics that aren't of the orthodox type as laid down in the College of Applied Pachydermy. And he came up with none other than Karl "Krippler" Davis, rough, toughie from the badlands of Oklahoma, or is it Texas?

In any event the two have been matched for Friday night and fur, fisticuffs and the faithful should fly when the two clash in the main bout.

The Don Cossack from the Russian Steppes, Kola Kwarianni, who also has a yen for the heavy stuff meets Al. O'Donnell, (remember?) the tall gent who can also play heavy if the occasion warrants.

In the preliminary popular Pat Flanagan meets the equally popular Ben Sharpe, and that should be a bout in contrast to the final brawls.

St. Paul Wins Third Game Out Of Four Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Paul won its third game in four United States hockey league starts Sunday night, with a 5-3 victory over Houston Skippers, while Minneapolis went into the league lead with a 2-0 victory over Kansas City.

Buck Davis opened the scoring for the Saints in the first period, but Adams and Rainy rallied for Houston in the second to put the Southerners in the lead. Baker and Nordin made it 3-2 for the Saints before the end of the second frame. Alf Turner tied it up for the Skippers midway through the third frame.

Vic Myles scored the clincher for the Saints near the end of the final period and Joe Shack scored 44 second later to make it 5-3.

In the Kansas City game Minneapolis gained the advantage with a tight defence while Stan Smith and Pinkie Melnyk supplied the counters against the Pla-mors' nets in the first and third stanzas respectively.

Only One Champ Of 1945 Rodeo Able to Repeat

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The rodeo has moved out of Madison Square Garden after a month-long stand that ended last night with award of $154,040 in prizes to the bronc-busting contestants.

Only one champion of 1945 was able to repeat—Toots Mansfield of Rankin, Texas, who has made a habit of winning the calf-roping championship at the garden each fall.

Mansfield's first was worth $2,660, not counting the substantial "Day money" he picked up enroute to the title. The "Champ" and each of the other departmental winners received new saddles as gifts.

Metropolitanites are estimated to have paid about $1,500,000 to see the cowboys perform.

The question of where Branch Rickey was going to get those new cars as gifts to his ball players was solved when the Dodgers got home. Each player was told to go to a home town dealer and put his name on the list of car seekers. When they're eventually delivered Branch will pick up the tab.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 28 — (CP) — Greyhound racing dog owners are having their troubles. A few months ago they were battling the dog-doping gangs; now the dogs are being stricken with an illness that has baffled veterinarians.

Frank Butler, sports columnist for the London Daily Express, made independent check-ups when Yardley Whistler, £3,500 ($14,000) Irish dog, and Quere Times, said to have been valued at £10,000, were scratched from the heats of an important race at Wembley Stadium.

He found that Wembley was the worst-hit track in the country, with between 30 and 40 dogs in isolation. The track veterinarian believed it was a germ that entered the blood-stream.

"It is similar to the three-day 'flu that strikes humans," he quoted the vet as saying. "The sick dogs got only the slightest temperature, and although I examine them four or five times on the day they are racing it is possible for a dog who appears normal to go sick soon afterwards."

A trainer at another London track who had seven 'patients,' said he was alarmed at first. "I thought someone must have interfered with the dogs but as it is almost impossible for an outsider to get at my kennels, I realized it was a germ."

Meanwhile, the National Greyhound Racing Society is making extensive tests in efforts to discover the cause of the illness.

John Halliday, 14-year-old legless Birmingham youth, has been clipping items from newspapers and reading books about football, the game he loved but knew he would never play. One day he dreamed he would see his favorites, Astor Villa, and his dream has come true.

The English league first division club put on an impromptu game for John when he appeared at Villa park to watch his heroes practise. George Cummings, Scottish international captain of the club, took him in charge, called the players over to shake his hand and sign their autographs on a sheet of paper bearing the club's name in claret and blue.

After the game, with John the only spectator in stands that will hold 75,000, he was taken "behind the scenes' and saw the dressing rooms, the trainer's 'surgery' and even the cobbler studding the boots.

All he could say was: "Aren't they grand!"

When Newcastle United drubbed Newport County 13-0 in an English football league game, the club equalled the league's highest-ever score, set up by Stockport, which defeated Halifax by a similar score in 1934.

Woman Thought To Have Died From Exposure

Burnaby, B.C., Oct. 28 (CP)—A search that embraced 1,000 seachers ended suddenly with the finding of the body of pretty, 30-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Gaudin in the bush on Burnaby mountain and authorities said it was apparent the slender mother of four had died of exposure, probably while suffering amnesia.

Her form, the arms bent towards the head and the knees slightly drawn up, was found by 15-year-old Alvin Burtch, one of an estimated 1,000 searchers who had been combing the mountain with police. Burtch said the bent twigs of a bush led him to the body and a strap purse was still in place on the woman's shoulder.

There were no marks on the body beyond a slight scratch on one ankle. An autopsy and inquest will be held to definitely determine the cause of the death of the woman who disappeared last Tuesday in the family car with her two and a half-year-old daughter Judith. The tot was found 60 hours later in the abandoned car on the mountain, some chocolate bars left by the mother her only food in that time.

Mrs. Gaudin was the wife of Dr. M. L. Gaudin. He said he believed she suffered amnesia brought on by experiences in the war-time blitz in England. Her fourth child was born only three weeks ago and she had been out of hospital less than a week when she disappeared after taking two of her children to school and doing some shopping.

A large scale search was organized by police and joined by hundreds of volunteers following discovery of Judith in the abandoned car.

All she could tell them was that "Mummy went that way," pointing into the bush.

The spot where Mrs. Gaudin's body was found in a small clearing in the mountain bush, was almost two miles from the point where the family car was found abandoned with her baby daughter.

CHAPTER 39

"Madge." It was Isabel's voice. Isabel's blue eyes, rounded with amazement and sympathy. "Madge, but you loved him?" she asked, timidly and youthfully.

"Oh yes," Madge answered simply. "Always. Ever since I was a kid."

"You say he is coming here?" Dennis asked, in a slow puzzled voice that was yet full of sympathy, of understanding.

"He will be here tomorrow, I suppose." Madge took a folded telegram from her sweater pocket. "This is what came today," she said. "He and his brother Arthur have had some property near Vancouver for a long time—Arthur has farmed both ranches. John's one idea—he's wanted to do this for years—is to live there. Through the postwar years anyway. He says he will be in San Francisco tomorrow morning and will come here as fast as he can manage it. So"—Madge got to her feet, stood with her back to the fire, facing them— "so we'll have a guest for lunch," she said stoically, "and afterward the Somers-Cox family will be on its way."

"Come back from the dead," Mrs. Hardisty said, marveling.

"Come back from the dead." There was a moment of silence, then Madge added, "You asked me if I loved him, Isabel. Of course I did. You'll meet him, you'll like him. Johnnie adored him, as a baby, and Esme will. There's no tragedy to this, people. It's just—well—"

She paused again. Dennis was standing now, and they looked into each other's eyes.

"I suppose there's a legal way of fixing this, Dennis," Madge said, in her controlled, well-clipped, clear British voice. "You and John will have to manage that. There's been a good deal of this sort of thing—inevitable, I suppose, with the whole world gone crazy, and new people in all the offices. I'm sorry I bungled it so; there's no explaining and there's no excuse . When the news came I just put it aside. I didn't believe it."

"No, and I still don't believe it," Isabel murmured.

"Seeing Isabel come here, when Catherine was hurt," Madge went on, "seeing how she fitted here—how you all loved her—I thought I couldn't give you back your happiness—I thought I'd go to Vancouver without telling you, that you might never know."

"My dear child," Mrs. Hardisty said, "what would that have accomplished?"

"Nothing, except perhaps to make you feel sorry that I'd gone away— sacrificed everything," Madge answered. "I would have done that, Dennis," she said, turning to him, "If John hadn't said that he was coming down."

"Nonsense," Dennis said, smiling at her. "I know you. You couldn't have done that."

"I think I've been a little crazy all this week," Madge confessed. She stood up, and Dennis, still holding her hand, stood up too. Madge put her free hand on his shoulder. "You'll forgive me, won't you, for stealing these days for not telling you?" she asked.

"Don't be a fool," Dennis said gruffly, clearing his throat.

"And you'll forgive me Momm?' Madge added, turning to the older woman.

"There's no thought of that—there's no question of that," Mrs. Hardisty said sharply. "We've all grown to love you—we will miss you very much. There are different sorts of love, Madge, and Dennis and I both love you very dearly. As for Isabel—"

She turned to the chair where Isabel had been sitting. But Isabel was gone.

The three women were out in the grape arbor the next morning, a balmy Sunday morning, acting very much, in their individual ways, as if the occasion were an ordinary one, seething in their separate hearts with the knowledge that the miraculous escape of John Somers-Cox had vitally affected the destiny of each and every one of them, and of Catherine, who was billowed and blanketed in a great basket chair, in the sunshine, and of Esme and Pussy, who were playing house in and out of the young scrub oaks.

"Madge, does it make you very nervous?" Isabel asked presently, flushing a little, and looking up from the small socks she was matching and rolling.

Madge was lying in a wicker steamer chair, morning newspapers scattered about her on the grass, her arms locked behind her head in a favorite position.

"Yes, I think it does."

"I am so nervous," Isabel confessed, "that my heart is bumping as if I were climbing the hill."

"Your road is perfectly clear ahead," Madge said.

"And isn't yours, too?"

"I think it is. I know that the minute I see John it will all seem quite real and natural again. It's always been John Somers-Cox and Madge Coke. And our memories—the headmaster's house at school—I was so proud of it—and little Johnnie. I've always belonged with John. It was hard enough—all that long time ago—to think that he wasn't coming back. And it'll be good," Madge said, after a silence, "someday to go back home and show Esme to her people."

"Just his joy in recovering you is going to be a help," Mrs. Hardisty said, in her wise old voice. "After what he's been through."

"I mean that these years ahead shall make some of it up to him," Madge said simply.

"You say he'll love the Canada farm?" Isabel asked somewhat timidly.

"He'll be mad about it ,and between his brother and Esme and myself he'll not want anything more," Madge answered. "No, I'm still among the lucky ones," she finished sturdily.

"That's the right way to look at it, Madge," Dennis's mother said:

"As for Dennis—well, I'm the richer for all that," Madge mused aloud, after a moment. "We'll only be here a day or two, and in that time," she said, smiling and looking up, "I'm going to convince him that it was love on the rebound, that he'll be forgotten before we reach the border. Only—only—well. it's something like this," she broke off to say, smiling and frowning, "did anyone ever read the Prisoner of Zenda?"

"I remember it," Mrs. Hardisty said, nodding.

"Do you remember that when the false Rudolph Rassendyll—wasn't that his name?—is going away, breaking the Princess Flavia's heart, she says good-bye to him with these words:'God doesn't always make the right man king!' "

Mrs. Hardisty and Isabel were silent; there were tears in Isabel's eyes.

"Don't ever let him know that I said that," Madge went on. "And don't be too happy, Isabel."

Isabel looked at her through a dazzle of tears.

"No danger, I've done too much mischief for that," she promised soberly.

"And where do you suppose they are, Dennis and John?" Madge said, on a suddenly sensible note. "Surely it isn't taking all this time for Dennis to say to him, 'I've married your wife, old dear And incidentally, my own wife's there, and all we need is Noel Coward to tell us what to say!' "

The other women laughed in spite of themselves, but afterward there was a long silence, and all their faces grew grave. Half an hour earlier John Somers-Cox had telephone from the village to say that he was in Sausalito, and to ask how one reached the hill, and Dennis had immediately started down to guide him, and to explain the situation as best he might.

"Gosh, I'm an awful one to take that on!" Dennis sad said ruefully, starting out. But he had known and they had known that they were as nervous as he was, and that he was the one to do it.

The day was blue and fragrant; the grape arbor was coming into pale green leaf. A spring hush lay over the world; grass was high at the fence posts, and the tasseled tips of the eucalyptus were in creamy flower. There was peace here—peace everywhere, as far as their eyes could rove, over the rooftops in the village below and the oak trees that broke in a dark foam over the rooftops, and over the arches of the bridges and the islands in the blue bay.

But even here there was a hint that was not peace, for in a jagged brown line across the bay lay the floats that marked the nets that waited for submarines, and there was no day that one ship or another, loaded with guns or food or men, did not slip through the nets, and leave the safety of the harbor for the distant and dangerous seas. And when two cars came in the gate, and the three women rose to meet them, there was not peace in any heart.

Dennis' car came first and stopped. The second car stopped right behind it, and the lean tall man who descended from it put his arms about Madge, who was close to it by that time, and kissed her heartily, saying in a tone the others could hear:

"Well, old girl, this is something like! So you wouldn't wait for me, eh?"

What Madge said in reply nobody but her husband heard, for Dennis, his mother, and Isabel went into the house and left them alone.

It had been arranged that the three little girls should have a picnic lunch in the garden; Catherine, with her small bandaged head, would be queen of the feast—the others would wait upon her. The prospect enchanted the invalid and pleased Esme and Pussy almost as well; Isabel, watching from the kitchen windom, waited until she saw that John and Madge had concluded their first talk and had come up to join the children, before she went out with the tray that held sandwiches and cocoa. John Somers-Cox had his arm about Esme, and Esme, square and blond and wondering, was listening to him intently.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were talking and arguing around the letter box about different subjects such as whether herds feel they're going on bizzness, and Puds Simkins yelled, Oh boy, fire.

Meening smoke coming out of Sam Cross's celler windows, and we all ran over and rang the door bell and Sam came to the door, and Shorty Judge said, Hay Sam, your house is on fire.

Why dont you tell me something I dont know? Sam said. This house is insured and so's everything in it, and we're tired of living here so it's a good excuse to move some place else and get all new ferniture, he said, and I said, Well heck good night, dont you want us to send in a fire alarm for you?

Don't bother, it's been sent in alreddy, but the trubble is, the firemen are delibritly taking their time coming on account of being mad at my father, Sam Cross said, and Sid Hunt said, Go on, why are they?

Sure, why should they be? I said, and Sam said, Because one time we had a kind of a little fire and my father put it out himself before the firemen got here, and they got sore and claimed he should of minded his own bizness, and ever since that they hardly even speek to him when he goes passed the firehouse.

Which just then Sam's father stuck his head out the celler window, saying, Counfound it, give me air, this is the last year I'm going to munkey with his old fashion fernace, believe me I'm going to put in a modern sistem before another winter rolls around.

Well heck, Mr. Cross, aint the house on fire? Puds said, and Mr. Cross said, No, it's just on smoke, thanks just a same for your frendly intrist.

Proving Sam Cross is still the biggest liar around.

Gem and Fur Thieves Busy Again in London

London, Oct. 28 —(CP)— Gem and fur thieves, striking again in London, looted two homes of some $20,000 in valuables during the week end.

Adelaide Hall, American-born singer, was robbed of an ermine coat and cape, a silver fox fur and $12,000 worth of jewelry by burglars who jimmied open her front door while she and her husband dined with a neighbor last night.

David Lowe, British customs officials, lost $3,000 in jewels to thieves who apparently climbed through his kitchen window Saturday night while he and his wife were out to dinner.

Meanwhile officials of St. James Palace disclosed today that $3,200 worth of diamonds reported stolen Saturday "have been found intact in the palace."

A palace spokesman said. "It is now clear that the jewels had never left the apartment of Lady Legh," American born wife of Sir Piers Legh, master of the King's household.

The Evening Standard said the wave of robberies to "a powerful and determined gang formed..on the lines of a self-contained army unit."

Scotand Yard denied a report in the Sunday dispatch that a band of American Army deserters was suspected of the thefts. One police official said both thieves and receivers were "men born and bred in this country."

The leopard men often use a specially prepared ointment, containing an ingredient like pepper, which is pushed into the nostrils before a ritual murder and is supposed to cause violent excitement while dulling the senses. The leopard men believe that if they fail to kill their victim the ointment in their noses will swell and suffocate them.

Initiation into the sect is a terrible ordeal, lasting for two months and including torture and mutilation which must be borne with stoicism. The witch doctors impress on the young men the vital necessity for complete obedience to the leader and for absolute secrecy. Death is the penalty for disobedience. In the final ceremony the laki, or chief leopard, cuts the prescribed situal marks in the flesh of the recruit, who then becomes a fully fledged Anyoto.

Terrorism is a potent weapen and colonial authorities find it almost impossible to secure reliable evidence against the leopard men, even from intended victims who may escape. They do not often escape.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 28 —(CP)— The gold group had a four-point rise due to the announcement that the United States would shortly lift the price of gold to $52 an ounce. Some of this advance was lost under profit-taking in the early afternoon. The base metal stocks had a minor gain and the industrials were down at noon. Western oils had an insignificant loss. Volume was heavier than the recent average at 952,000 shares for the first three hours.

McIntyre gained a point and fractions were added by the other senior golds.

Most of the base metals were up narrowly. Liquor and steel stocks were down.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Stocks generally stumbled in today's market after a mild rallying attempt to get anywhere.

An early flurry in the gold mines on reports, subsequently denied by Washington authorities, that the yellow metal price would be hoisted, put these issues up one to two points or so but they ultimately retreated. Dealings were slow after the opening and declines of fractions to two or more predominated near the fourth hour.

Active on the upside for a while in the morning session were Homestake Mining, Dome Mines, which at mid-day retained a gain of 7/8, and Alaska Juneau. Giant Yellowknife and McIntyre were unchanged.

In other Canadian issues, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagrams each lost a point.

Young Bride Dies of Gunshot Wounds After Attack of Mexican Bandits

Mexico City, Oct. 28 (AP) — Charles Edward Beach, 78, a New York City artist, told how his 19-year-old bride died at the hands of three masked bandits during a honeymoon trip down the desolate and dangerous Balsas River.

Beach told newspapermen his wife, the former Nan Pelker, of Tulsa, Okla., was shot while asleep in his arms Wednesday night on the banks of the picturesque stream in southwest Mexico, and that she then spent an agonizing night in a canoe—her left shoulder almost torn away by a shotgun blast — as he paddled frantically for help.

When they reached the village of Totolapan Thursday morning, he continued, "Nan died in my arms while the San Miguel church bells were ringing."

Haggard, unshaven and still wearing blood-spattered trousers, Beach said the attack occurred after he and his bride of four months had paddled 25 miles down the river. He said they had made an early morning start on a trip during which they intended to defray expenses by taking pictures and assembling material for magazine articles.

They had eaten and lain down to sleep.

"The next thing I knew," he told reporters, "was a tremendous blast, Nan's scream and we both jumped upright. There was no warning, nothing except the roar of that gun. The next thing we knew the three masked men were shining a flashlight in our faces.

"I tried in what Spanish I knew to insult them for shooting a woman and asked them to return my flashlight so that I could take care of Nan. They gave it back and then fled with our duffle bags, cameras, clothes and all the medical supplies we were carrying."

Beach and his wife were married last June. Beach said they knew the trip was dangerous but decided to make it anyway, even though few other persons ever had done so.

GENERAL CRERAR, MILITARY LEADER RETIRED SUNDAY

Led 1st Canadian Army From D-Day Landing to Rhine Crossing

Ottawa, Oct. 28—(CP) — On Sunday, Oct. 27, one of the foremost Canadian military leaders formally laid down his baton.

He is Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, a quiet, uncolorful army man whose service dates back to the First Great War and who has won more medals and ribbons than any other Canadian, is taking his retirement quietly. Although he has earned the unqualified respect of all ranks of the Canadian army, he remains, in retirement to his Rockcliffe home here, his modest, camera-shy self.

Gen. Crerar is one of four Canadians to earn the rank of General, and the first to earn it in the field, where he commanded the First Canadian Army to fight in actual combat—the 1st Canadian Army overseas.

Gen. Crerar led the 1st Canadian Army from the D-Day landing in Normandy to the Rhine crossing; except for one month when he was in England on sick leave.

Other Canadians to receive the rank of General are Gen. Sir William Otter, South African war commander; Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, commander in the First Great War, and Gen. . G. L. BcNaughtod, who handed over to Gen. Crerar before the invasion of Europe.

Recently he visited Czechoslovakia to receive the Order of the White Lion—for victory; the Order of the White Lion—first class; and the Ear Cross, 1939. These brought his bank of medals and campaign ribbons up to a total of 27.

A native of Hamilton, the General completed a farewell tour of military establishments in Canada following his return from the battlefields.

The General, who at one time commanded approximately 500,000 men, was renoned for his submissions to headquarters, which were always models of neatness and condensation, on which to base future army campaigns and policy.

The lessons learned at Dieppe were marshalled by Gen. Crerar into what later became the master plan for successful Allied landings in the Mediterranean and Normandy beaches.

GOERING DEFINITELY DEAD

His glory past, the body of Hermann Goering, once Nazi No. 2 in the Hitler hierarchy, lies atop a coffin in the gymnasium of Nuernberg prison. Goering cheated the hangman by taking poison just before his scheduled execution. His fellow war criminals died by the rope.

Pair in Triangle Case Sentenced

Superior, Wis., Oct. 28 (AP)— Mrs. Irene Lind, 32, whose 12-year-old daughter, authorities said, told them she shot and killed her father "to make mama happy," was sentenced to one to three years in prison after pleading guilty to an adultery charge.

Given a similar sentence was Tony Galaski, 28, whose "illicit love affair" with Mrs. Lind was described by authorities as one of the indirect causes of the slaying of Clifford Lind, 39, as he slept, October 17th.

Mrs. Lind pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and was sentenced in municipal court to a year in jail.

Judge John J. Fisher reprimanded Mrs. Lind for not warning her husband after she told the court that Janet had talked frequently of "getting rid" of her father and on one occasion had tried to kill him by turning on the gas.

"I couldn't do it," Mrs. Lind replied. "Nobody knows how mean he was. He would have done something awful." Mrs. Lind added that she had not taken her daughter's "threats" seriously.

Veteran Newsman Dies at Detroit

Windsor, Oct. 28 — (CP) — Herman P. (Deacon) Allen, 62, for 20 years a member of the editorial staff of the Windsor Daily Star, died early today at his home in Detroit. He was at work as usual yesterday and although he felt unwell he refused to knock off work early.

The veteran deskman, who in recent years edited the Star's feature page, knew the newspaper business from every angle. As a boy, he set type and ran the hand press for the weekly Morenci (Mich.) Observer, published by his father, the lat Augustus Allen.

He left Morenci in 1915 and went to work as a reporter on the old Detroit Journal. When the Journal was absorbed by the Detroit News in 1922, Mr. Allen moved across the river to the Star for which he worked as reporter, district editor and finally feature editor.

In 1937 he purchased the Riverside (Iowa) Leader and published the weekly until 1942, when he returned to the Star.

Round-shouldered and mumblingly quiet, Deacon Allen and his corncob pipe are known across Canada to hundreds of newspaper reporters and editors who trained under him. Newcomers to the business regarded he Deacon as the typical crabbed veteran but soon learned his brusque manner covtred the kindly disposition of a man always ready to assist and advise the novice.

Over the years, the Deacon's lean, bent appearance changed but little. He looked no older at 60 than he did 20 years earlier. His favorite answer to a cub reporter asking for information was: "No. I don't know—but I know where to find out." Then he showed him.

Newspaper readers in this area knew Mr. Allen largel through his articles about his boyhood in Morenci which were a regular feature in the Star.

Mr. Allen is survived by his widow, his son, Darwin, and two daughters, Ruth and Mary Elizabeth, all of Detroit. Funeral arrangements are not complete.

Sunday Church Bells Rouse Sleepers' Ire

Winnipeg, Oct. 28 (CP) —Newly-installed electronic carillons in Westminster United Church here have precipitated what threatens to be a "battle of the bells."

It started when nearby residents, termed by Rev. E. M. Howse, minister of the church, as "typical late-morning sleepers," protested in letters to Winnipeg papers about the "noise." Some of the complaints compared the chiming before Sunday service to the "noise of a juke box."

But, Dr. Howse had no sympathy for the complainants, whom he described as "those idiotic people you find in every city" and "those typical late morning sleepers."

The bells, he said, were here to stay.

Dr. Howse felt that even the complainants would forget their ire when Christmas time approached, and the chimes pealed out Yuletide songs.

SLEUTH ON "LIZZIE"

Among the arrivals in New York on the giant Queen Elizabeth was Inspector George Wilkinson, ABOVE, one of Scotland Yard's ace sleuths, who made the voyage unscheduled and without so much as even a toothbrush. Assigned to see that Russia's Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov got on board safely, Inspector Wilkinson made a hit with the Russian statesman who insisted that the sleuth come along for the ride. He did and here he is.

Gromyko Quotes Adviser's Letter On Raw Materials

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)— Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, last night issued a statement concerning the Russian position on the present study by the Commission of raw materials from which atomic energy is derived.

The statement followed a report issued last Monday by the United Nations Press Department concerning a discussion by Prof. S. P. Alexandrov, Russian scientific advisor to Mr. Gromyko, on the question of raw materials.

The United Nations reported that Prof. Alexandrov had said in informal meetings of commission members that controls of uranium must begin at the mines.

The United Nations also said that Prof. Alexandrov had stated he would like to know what systems of controls other governments used and what were considered to be efficient methods of mining.

The United States delegation issued a statement later in which it asked Prof. Alexandrov for clarification of his remarks.

Mr. Gromyko's statement last night follows:

"Some of the American newspapers stated as if the Soviet representative to the scientific and technical committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, Prof. S. P. Alexandrov, suggested to work out the report on the world uranium and thorium resources, based on data to be supplied by the individual countries.

Advisor's Statement

"Actually Prof. S. P. Alexandrov said:

"'The question of the raw materials could not be left without attention. Information on this subject was insufficient. This had been recorded also in the scientific and technical committee's report. Therefore, while approving the program of our work, it will be necessary to leave the question of studying the raw materials on the agenda.

"'The Soviet delegation considers the national control to be sufficient and, therefore, it might be possible to extend discussions on safeguards in the line of national controls.

"'The delegations have competent experts, who are sufficiently experienced for a more profound consideration of the question, even without receiving an additional information from their government.'

"All other statements published in the press in connection with Prof. S. P. Alexandrov's remarks do not correspond to the realities."

The political committee of the Atomic Energy Commission is studying the question of raw materials in its search for controls for atomic energy. Much of its discussion at present is in an informal stage.

Edward Beach, 28, of New York, is shown, LEFT, as he related the tragic story of his wife's brutal murder in a desolate section of Mexico by armed bandits. The 19-year-old bride, the former Nancy Peiker, RIGHT, was fatally shot by the bandits while she slept beside her husband. Beach's left hand, injured by the gun blast, is bandaged.

U. N. Chances of Success Greater Than Old League Of Nations Says Noel-Baker

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

New York, Oct. 29 —(AP)— "The United Nations' chances of success are greater than those of the old League of Nations were at any time," says Air Secretary Philip Noel-Baker, leader of the British delegation to the U. N. Assembly.

Mr. Noel-Baker was in at the birth of the League of Nations and followed it through to its failure. He was chief of the British delegation to the Geneva-based pre-war body.

To those who are skeptical of the United Nations' future, the veteran British diplomat has this o say:

"None of the big powers, such Britain and France, were ally behind the league. They dn't think it would work from e very beginning.

"With the exception of Lord ecil of South Africa, none of the elegates came to the league sembly with anything but skepicism.

"The big powers were hostile The neutral powers entered the league suspicious of the Allied powers, and the Allied powers were likewise suspicious.

"Another thing, the United States was not in the league, although it had been proposed by President Wilson. Russia was absent, too."

In comparison, Mr. Noel-Baker has this to say in favor of he United Nations:

"The first United Nations ssembly in London, in all technical ways, not only started where the League of Nations left off, but it was better.

"And remember this: President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee, Secretary of State Byrnes and Foreign Min. Molotov speak with far more authority than anyone could speak in the early days of the league.

"The Russians have shown that they are loyal to the United Nations. They have declared time and again that they are behind the United Nations. Vice Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky made it clear in a declaration at the London session that Russia does not want to see the United Nations break down.

"Here in New York the United Nations has reached the point where it is just as good and better than the league ever was.

"We are having practical speeches here. They are constructive. We have seen in all speeches a unanimous desire for co-operation and understanding."

Scots Couple Buy "Haunted" Cottage Near Equally "Haunted" Rectory Site

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Borley, Essex, England, Oct. 29 — (CP Cable) — If any ghosts haunt the site of former Borley Rectory, they will have to share it with J. Russell and his wife, who have bought an equally "haunted" cottage nearby with full knowledge of the locality's reputation.

The new inhabitants bring with them an iron resolve to stay. Houses are too scarce in Britain these days to pass up one that boasts a 4½-acre garden.

Borley Rectory, gutted by fire in 1939, was demolished this year. Russell has hired a bulldozer to fill in the cellars, in which a skull was found in 1943, and is building a pigsty with salvaged bricks.

A young nun, supposed to haunt the Rectory since here 16th-century murder, still appears in the grounds, district residents insist, and a phantom coach and four horses with glittering harness drives up and then vanishes in the grounds.

Other weird manifestations include eerie footsteps and ghostly whisperings, but these have paled into the commonplace down through the years, in which Borley tenants have changed with lightning rapidity.

The Russells' cottage is a few feet from the Rectory site.

"A black man is supposed to haunt it but so far I haven't seen anything of him," says Russell, recently demobilized from the army. The tradition behind the dark-hued ghost is not known and there is no evidence at the moment to link it with the nun.

Borley Rectory has been the special pet of Britain's spook experts — the Council for Psychical Research. Council member Harry Price, who has written two books about it, said:

"Even though the house is now pulled down I believe strange things will happen in the grounds until the end of time. Strange forces are at work there."

Meanwhile the Russells, both Scots, industriously mind their own business, trusting that the ghosts — if any — similarly will oblige.

PREMIER STALIN SAYS RUSSIA HAS NO ATOMIC BOMB

Accuses Churchill Of Being Among The "Instigators of A New War"

London, Oct. 29 —(CP)— Prime Minister Stalin declared today the Soviet Union has not developed an atomic bomb nor any similar weapon and said Russia's troop strength in the occupied countries of easern Europe totalled 60 divisions, to be reduced in two months to 40.

In response to 31 questions submitted to him by Hugh Baillie, president of The United Press Association, Stalin accused Winston Churchill of being among the "instigators of a new war," and disagreed with State Secretary Byrnes of the United States that there is growing tension between Russia and the United States.

In response to other questions, as broadcast by the Moscow Radio, Stalin declared:

1. The government of the U. S. S. R. is "indifferent" to the presence of American warships in the Mediterreanian.
2. He does not feel the veto power has been used to excess either in the U. N. Security council or in the foreign ministers' council.
3. Russia regards the western borders of Poland as permanent.
4. Russia feels that "Yugoslavia has grounds to be dissatisfied" with the peace treaty drafted for Italy at the Paris Conference.
5. The U. S. S. R. regards "as unnecessary" the presence of British troops in Greece.
6. He believes that "not only the economic, but also the political, unity of Germany is to be desired."

Second Such Interview.

The responses to Mr. Baillie's questions constituted the second such interview Stalin had granted in a period of slightly more than a month. On Sept. 24, in answer to questions submitted by Alexandre Ferth of the Sunday Times of London, he said he could see no danger of a new war.

In today's answers, he said he felt "the instigators of a new war, in the first place Churchill and others of like mind in Britain and the U.S.A.," constitute "the worst threat to world peace."

Western Canadians Digging Out Of 2-Foot Snowfall

Winnipeg, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Western Canadians who spent their weekend digging themselves out of a record snowfall which threatened to cause $1,000,000 crop damage, were given not a mite of help from the weatherman today.

Though winter was officially almost two months away, Mr. Weatherman, bundled in his woollies, bravely predicted: — "more snow."

As this official prognostication came, some sectors of the prairie provinces still were shovelling pathways in the more than two feet of snow that brought with it an enormous taste of winter. Meanwhile in Eastern Canada the thermometer rose so high that lilac bushes started to bud all over again.

Originating at the northwesternmost corner of the continent where a gale lashed Alaska Saturday, the storm swept across the Rocky Mountains and hit the Lethbridge district hardest. There Albertans saw 24.4 inches of snow fall during the weekend bringing the total fall to 29.6 inches for the month.

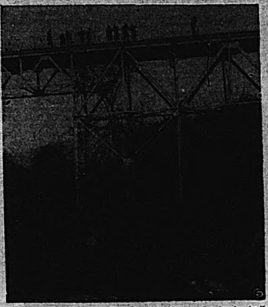
Record Fall Seen

Possibility of a record winter snowfall was seen when they added that Lethbridge now had received more than half a normal winter's snow — the average fall in the past 45 years being about 48 inches.

The sudden winter flurries' most disastrous effects were felt by sugar beet farmers who estimated some 90,000 tons of the sugar-producing vegetable were still in the ground. The snow-bound beets represent about one-quarter of the entire season's harvest and are valued at more than $1,000,000.

The mercury zoomed below the zero mark with the advent of snow and at Churchill, Man., the thermometer read four below. Lethbridge experienced three below weather. As the snow moved across the prairies, Winnipeg came in for a four-inch blanket and more was promised.

TRUCK LOADED WITH STEEL PLUNGES TO RIVER



George Humphrys, 46, Toronto, Ont., driver of a tractor-trailer loaded with eight tons of steel, plunged to his death when the vehicle tore out 90 feet of guard rail on the bridge of the Rouge River and burst into flames when it fell 80 feet into the water below. Spectators said his arms covered his face as if he were fighting flames when he perished. Humphrys, veteran of two wars and father of four, was bound for Kingston, Ont.

BRIG. H. GRAHAM GOES TO LONDON AS LIAISON CHIEF

Will Replace Chief of Staff Lt.-Gen. J. C. Murchie Who Will Retire

By H. DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 29 — (CP) — A rough blue-print of post-war Canadian defence policy, organized both on Commonwealth and hemispheric lines, gradually is taking shape and emanating from Defence Headquarters.

Appointments and informed speculation are pointing up a pattern for Canadian defence prospects which would maintain the close co-operation the Dominion developed during wartime with the United Kingdom and the United States.

Latest official indication of this was the announcement last night that two of Canada's young war heroes have been chosen to enter staff colleges overseas, and that the Canadian military headquarters set up in London, to be replaced by a liaison staff.

Retiring as Chief of Staff at C.M.H.Q. is Lt.-Gen. J. C. Murchie, 51, C.B., C.B.E., who will return to Canada shortly and retire from the army.

He will be replaced next month by Brig. Howard Douglas Graham, 48, D.S.O., and Bar, of Trenton, who becomes head of the army section of the Canadian Joint Liaison Staff.

Dove-tailing with the liaison plan is the appointment of these three Canadian officers to military colleges overseas:—

1. Brig.-Gen. B. D. (Des) Smith, 35, D.S.O., of Ottawa and London, Commandant of the Joint Services Staff College and the Canadian Staff College at Kingston, will enter the Imperial Defence College in England for a course of advanced study.

Officer is Removed For Giving Newsmen 'Unofficial Opinions'

Jerusalem, Oct. 29 — (AP)—A military communique announced today that Lt.-Col. Richard H. L. Webb, veteran commander of the 1st Battalion of Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, has been removed from his command for giving "unauthorized and unofficial opinions" to a group of correspondents Oct. 24.

The incident occurred when Col. Webb, veteran of several wars and holder of numerous military decorations, took the men to his office to save them from arrest after a subordinate complained they were "interfering" with the screening of Jews following a bombing incident.

The correspondents, who included three Americans, later quoted Col. Webb as making "extremely anti-Semitic remarks" while talking with them. All filed stories to Britain and the United States and military authorities launched an investigation.

The Americans included Andrew Roth of the Nation, George Cassidy of the New York Post and Ted Lurie, assistant editor of the Palestine Post and a CBS correspondent.

LILIENTHAL HEADS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

Will Have as Associates Physicist, Editor, Retired Admiral and Banker

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Oct. 29 —(AP)— A five-man board of civilians made ready today to take over from the United States Army the task of guiding the United States into the atomic age.

The five—a federal power expert, a physicist, an editor, a retired Rear Admiral and an investment banker — shouldered "responsibilities as great as any men have ever assumed in peacetime," President Truman said in announcing the make-up of the new atomic energy commission, headed by David E. Lilienthal as chairman.

"The consequences of our work, for good or evil, are awesome," Mr. Lilienthal said, resigning chairmanship of the Tennessee Valley authority to accept the assignment.

With Mr. Lilienthal, Mr. Truman selected for the commission set up three months ago by Congress:

Dr. Robert F. Bacher, 41-year-old Cornell University physicist who helped develop the atomic bomb. He is scientific consultant to Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission;

William W. Waymack, 58, editor of the Des Moines Register and winner of the Pulitzer award in 1937 for distinguished editorial writing;

Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, retired, 50, former member of the Army-Navy Munitions Board, one time secretary to Herbert Hoover and now a partner in the New York banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company. He has played an active role in cancer research.

Plan Dominion-wide Retail Organization Under Trade Classes

Vancouver, Oct. 29 (CP)—The Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, in connection last night approved a move to develop and organize retailers throughout the Dominion under district trade classifications.

Previously organized trade classifications known as trade sections operated on a provincial basis only.

The new plan, long under discussion among retailers, was brought about by Prices Board regulations which forced each retailer during wartime to deal with his own problems individually, explained H. R. Renault of Beauceville, Que., President of the board.

Now each type of retail merchant will be able to thrash out his problem peculiar to his merchandise on a national basis.

So far, Mr. Renault said, only grocers and radio appliance retailers have been sectionalized, but before the week is out, the board hopes to include furniture men, hardware and men's wear merchants.

RUSSIAN BLASTS AT PRESENCE OF U.K., U.S. TROOPS

Says Maintenance In China, Greece, Middle East and Indonesia Breaks U. N. Charter

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, Oct. 29 — (AP) — A Russian blast at the presence of United States troops in China and British forces in Greece, the Middle East and Indonesia pointed the way today for a major policy address by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov of Russia before the United Nations Assembly.

Diplomatic authorities speculated that Mr. Molotov, speaking for the first time in the Assembly's general debate, now drawing to a climax, probably would hammer on many, if not all, of the main points of Soviet criticism of the western powers initially set forth in a session last night by Kuzma Kiselev, Foreign Minister of White Russia, one of the constituent republics of the U.S.S.R.

Mr. Molotov was slated to take the rostrum at the second of the day's two sessions. Altogether representatives of 10 countries were due to be heard, including Syria, Ethiopia, Bolivia, the Philippines and The Netherlands at the first session and Canada, Greece, Australia and Colombia at the second.

There was some behind the scenes activity on selection of 3 countries to replace The Netherlands, Mexico and Egypt on the security council at the end of this year. Britain and the United States were reported to favor Belgium, Syria and Colombia, but Britain was giving some consideration to India instead of Syria.

In the assembly auditorium last night, Mr. Kiselev made these charges against the United States and Britain:

Four Charges

1. By maintaining troops in China, and in Greece, the Middle East and Indonesia they are breaking the United Nations Charter.
2. In China the United States is not following a policy calculated to maintain the peace of the Far East.
3. Britain is doing everything possible to maintain troops in the Middle East.
4. The presence of such troops in various non-enemy countries will lead only to unrest among the peoples.

The general debate entered its fifth day with other disputes raging also over small countries' demands for doing away with the great power veto in the security council and over continuation of the Franco government in Spain.

Both the White Russian spokesman and Foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski of Poland assailed Franco Spain as a hotbed of post-war Nazi scheming for revenge against the Allies, and both defended the veto system as essential to continued unity of the great powers.

Sir Carl Berendsen, New Zealand Minister to Washington, added his demands to those of a dozen other small-power spokesmen for an early end of the veto. Russia, the United States and Britain all contend it cannot be discarded at this time.

Professor Agrees With Gen. Chisholm Over Myths

Toronto, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Brock Chisholm, who doesn't believe children should be taught the Santa Claus myth, has a supporter in Prof. Clyde R. Miller, of the Faculty of Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York.

"Of course I agree with Gen. Chisholm," he said in an interview here. "However, I don't know whether Santa Claus is the best symbol to use in attacking superstition as he is too tied up with religion and too close to the people.

"I would rather use the Cinderella idea—the notion that any poor girl can live happily ever after as long as she uses such-and-such perfume or mouth wash."

ROOKIE COP DISMISSED

Toronto, Oct. 29 (CP)—Toronto policemen can't go demanding things if it's not required in the maintenance of law and order. A rookie constable discovered that following an unseccessful attempt to have a restaurant proprietor serve him steak and onions. The owner called other police, who after taking the rookie to the station, referred the matter to the police commission. The result: Dismissal.

Statement on Red Strength in Europe Pleases Churchill

Says 60 Divisions Exceed Anglo-American Forces

London, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Winston Churchill welcomed today Prime Minister Stalin's assertion that there are only 60 Russian divisions in "the territories he mentioned" but suggested it "would be highly beneficial" for the matter to be cleared up in the United Nations security council."

Mr. Churchill asked in the House of Commons last week whether 200 Russian divisions were on duty between the Baltic and Black Seas. He said that Premier Stalin's statement, in reply to questions asked by Hugh Baillie of the United Press, did not take into account "heavy Soviet concentrations in the Leningrad and Odessa areas."

He expressed a regard and respect for Premier Stalin and said he wanted the Russian people "safe, glorious and happy."

Noting Premier Stalin's statement of 60 Russian divicons in the occupied territories of Eastern Europe, Mr. Churchill commented that the British government had not "contradicted" his suggestion that 200 Russian divisions were on duty.

"But even 60 divisions on a war footing would, of course, greatly exceed the British and American forces in enemy-occupied territory in Europe," said the former British Prime Minister, who conferred many times during the war with Premier Stalin.

"Moreover, Premier Stalin's figures do not include Romania."

(Dispatches direct from Moscow and a translation as broadcast by Tass, the Russian news agency, included Romania among the countries listed, along with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Poland, although the original question and answer did not appear to include that former enemy state.)

Mr. Churchill's statement, issued through the Press Association, said Premier Stalin's figures did not "include the heavy Soviet concentrations in the Leningrad and Odessa regions."

No Contradictions

Mr. Churchill commented that there had been no "contradiction" by the British government of his suggestion that Soviet divisions in the area totalled 200.

"On the contrary," he said, "the statement of the Prime Minister and the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs showed only anxiety at the strength of the Soviet mobilized forces.

"No one would have been more pleased than I to be told that I was misinformed."

Mr. Churchill, whom Premier Stalin had described as among "instigators of a new war" who should be exposed and curbed, said "One would have thought" that information about the extent of Allied forces in occupied territory would be exchanged among the Allies.

"We hear a great deal about suspicions. Nothing sweeps away suspicions like facts, and I consider it my duty to continue to press for the facts.

Will Instill Confidence

"It seems to me that a clearing up of this matter would be highly beneficial from every point of view and surely the present meetings of U.N.O. and the Security Council should be the occasion for the fullest, fairest disclosure of all military forces that may cause concern to any of those who fought and won."

Mr. Churchill's statement was more conciliatory in its phrasing than most of his pronouncements on Russia. The war leader said he was "glad" to hear Premier Stalin's statement about Russian forces and declared:

"By the Anglo-Russian treaty, made when I was Prime Minister in 1941, we are bound not to interfere in each other's internal affairs or system of society. Therefore, I do not see why we cannot all be friends and help each other and thus advance the whose basic standard of livelihood of the broad masses of people in every land."

Lieut. Gourlay Says He Believed What He Wrote

Cairo, Oct. 29 — (Reuters) — Lieut. Kenneth A. Gourlay, 27-year-old Oxford graduate and Royal Army Ordnance Corps officer, today told a court martial trying him on charges of defamatory libel that "I honestly believed what I wrote" in a critical article published last January in an army newspaper.

Gourlay said he had no idea that the article, published in the Cairo Citadel Courier and urging the recall from Palestine of the British 6th Airborne Division and Sir John Shaw, former Chief Secretary of the Palestine government, might be construed as libellous.

Gourlay took the stand after the prosecution closed its case with testimony by Capt. Wellington, former adjutant of Gourlay's unit, who said the accused's article was in the form of a letter to the editor of the newspaper.

Capt. Wellington said be stopped the correspondence after it developed into a "verbal match" between Gourlay and another contributor.

Defence counsel Edward Haim submitted the prosecution had no case because the words in the article could not be interpreted to bear the innuendo attributed to them by the prosecution. The court overruled Mr. Haim's submission.

Lt.-Col. G. W. C. Mayes, formerly Gourlay's commanding officer, said that before Gourlay's letter appeared the Citadel Courier invited readers to submit views and suggestions on the Palestine problem.

Peace Treaty Most Fundamental To World Peace One of Russia and U. S.

U.S. Senator McMahon

Atlantic City, Oct. 29 — (AP)— Senator Brien McMahon (Dem.-Conn.) said today "The peace treaty most fundamental to the peace of the world" is one between the United States and Russia.

The chairman of the Senate's special atomic committee also asserted in an address prepared for the American Bar Association that the Soviet-American impasse over international atomic energy control could be overcome by means of a treaty.

That treaty, he said, could spell out "swift and certain punishment" for specific violations with the result that "there can be no question of veto, no opportunity for escape."

"The Russians say they will not give up the veto since that would weaken the security council and the United Nations," Sen. McMahon declared.

"Our delegate says there must be no veto to protect those who violate their solemn agreement not to develop or use atomic energy for destructive purposes . . .

"Why is it not possible for the treaty itself to specify the violations calling for punishment and to name the punishment which will be meted out to the violator?"

Sen. McMahon suggested these be among the things that could be listed as certain to bring "swift and certain punishment":

1. Illegal possession or use of an atomic bomb.
2. Illegal possession, or separation, of atomic material for use in an atomic bomb.
3. Seizure of any plant or other property belonging to or licensed by the (atomic development) authority.
4. Wilful interference with the activities of the authority.
5. Creation or operation of dangerous projects in a manner contrary to, or in the absence of, a license granted by the international control body.

TWEED POTATO CLUB WINS COMPETITION AT O.A.C., GUELPH

The Tweed Potato Club, comprised of Stewart Elliott and Carl Bateman, of the Central Hastings Village, won the Potato Club competition first prize at the large provincial inter-club judging contests held in Guelph on Saturday. The Tweed team, with the winners of other classes, will go on to represent Ontario in the Dominion Junior Farmers' Judging finals contest.

The Stirling Turkey Club placed third in the turkey- judging contest.

Teams from 36 counties with 300 junior farmers taking part competed in what was said to be the largest inter-club judging contest ever held in Guelph. Trophies and prizes were awarded winners at a banquet at which C. D. Graham, deputy minister of Agriculture, was the speaker.

IVANHOE

Huntingdon Twp. Welcomes Home Last of 72 Vets

Ivanhoe (Special) — Mr. Reginald Haggerty, president of the Huntingdon Patriotic Association, in his inimitable and pleasing style, presided at a final meeting of the association held in the town hall here on Friday night, when the last two of the seventy-two men who enlisted in World War II, in the person of Gordon Reid, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Reid, Ivanhoe; John Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blair, Crookston, were given an official welcome home.

On the platform, besides a number of veterans of both World War I and World War II, were the members of the township council, Messrs. Elmer Post (reeve), Cecil Geen, Elmer Wood, Arthur Jones and Chester Sills and associated with them, Mr. T. E. Fleming, ex-Warden of Hastings County, Mrs. Chester Sills, nurse of World War I, Mrs. John Howard, formerly of Holland, Mrs. William French, president of the Women's Institute, and Rev. J. F. Everson, each of whom gave brief addresses of welcome; also Major Merrit O. Price, of Actinolite, the guest speaker, who was fittingly introduced by Mr. T. E. Fleming. At the close of his address Major Price officiated at the unveiling of the Honor Roll, upon which are inscribed the names of the seventy-two men who enlisted from the township, four of whom, Mr. James Young, Mr. Harold Cooney, Mr. Stuart Kirby and Mr. Jerome Francis made the supreme sacrifice. Very slowly Mr. Arthur Hagerman withdrew a Union Jack revealing the names of the men as they were read by Mr. Chester Sills.

During the evening Mrs. William Vandome sang, "Home, Sweet Home." In the complimentary remarks tendered the members of the Red Cross and Women's Institute special mention was made of Mrs. William Seeley, for her untiring effort and faithfulness at quiltings, and of Mrs. Baldwin Reid who knit some two hundred pairs of socks.

Current Housing Shortage Subject Of Council Debate

Question of the current housing shortage in the city again came up for discussion at city council Monday evening when representatives of the local Trades and Labor Council asked that council re-enter negotiations with Wartime Housing Ltd., and with Housing Enterprizes for the immediate construction of at least 150 housing units in the city.

As an example of the seriousness of the local situation, delegation spokesman Mr. Arthur Cole, introduced a young war veteran and his English bride, who he said had been unable to secure accommodation and were living in a chicken coop in the Foster Ward district. This young veteran, he said, had more than five years' service overseas and was deserving of much better living conditions.

"I for one am ashamed that such conditions exist in our city, and everyone here ought to be ashamed," stated Mr. Cole. "It is unfortunate that our government will take no action to relieve such conditions. Good homes are essential to good living."

Refers to Action of City.

In reply Mayor Frank S. Follwell referred to the action the city had taken in providing temporary accommodation for a number of families in the city hall auditorium and at the police station and told of communication with Ottawa in an effort to expedite the turning over to the city of the Church Street armouries. Plans were to use this building as living quarters for needy families.

James Lazenby, of the Army and Navy, also spoke to council on the housing shortage and asked if the city could make funds available to permit veterans taking advantage of their rehabilitation allowances and thus assist them in building their own homes.

"Unfortunately," replied the Mayor, "there is no legislation permitting the council to lend money on a mortgage basis."

Mr. Lazenby was sincere in his appeal on behalf of the veterans, however, and stated that while the boys were overseas they had been promised everything. "Now when they are again back home there is no means of legislation to assist them."

Asks Mortgage Assistance.

He suggested that financially able men in the city start a fund from which veterans might be given mortgage assistance. It would be a fine gesture toward the men to whom they owe so much, he said, and they would receive five and six per cent.

This suggestion had the complete approval of Mayor Follwell and he invited patriotic citizens to start such a fund to help the veteran.

Ralph Rees, also from the Trades and Labor Council, stated that his organization favored municipal housing and cited the example of the city of London in Ontario which at the present time was erecting 35 houses. "This project could be followed in Belleville," he said.

To this Alderman Chamberlain stated that the provincial government was the only authority which could give the city permission to enter into a municipal housing scheme.

Meat Slumps in N.Y.

New York, Oct. 29 —(AP)— Meat prices in New York City plumpetted today with virtually the same momentum as they skyrocketed two weeks ago with decontrol.

Sirloin and Porterhouse steak were selling at 55 cents a pound compared with 95 cents one week ago at the same market, and butchers said they expected a "flood of beef" this week, driving prices down even more.

The long lines of shoppers were gone. Careful housewives, eyeing the price tags were buying only what they actually needed. One butcher whose comment was typical of the situation said:

"There's plenty of meat. What we need now are customers!"

Market Vendors Appear Before Council Objecting To Placing Rest Rooms on Square

Dr. Jack Marshall, Chairman of Board of Health, Also Voices Objection

Farmer opposition to the proposal of city council to construct a public lavatory building on the market square was seen at the regular council meeting Monday evening when a delegation of rural market vendors expressed their collective and individual objections to the scheme.

A delegation of approximately 15 farmers attended the meeting and were introduced by Ray Arnott, local market lessee. Principal objection of the farmers was that the market space at the present time was not large enough, while Dr. Jack Marshall, chairman of the local board of health, expressed his opinion from a health standpoint and also from a pyschological viewpoint.

"I am afraid that the market vendor who has to park his wagon up against the public lavatory will suffer in comparison to his opposition at the other end of the market. How would any member of the council like to have a public lavatory at his front door?"

Take Part of Stand Claim

Mr. Fred Mossman, whose family for the past 66 years has attended regularly at the local market stated that the proposed building would take part of his stand, causing him to move his stand, to which he voiced strong objection.

Alderman McDougall at this point stated the council committee which had been appointed to look into the matter of a new lavatory and after giving it considerable thought had decided on the proposed location. He asked if the farmers had any suggestion as to a location. In answer Mr. Moosman suggested the present location underneath the city hall and stated it could be made larger.

New Site Suggested

Mr. Bamford suggested a site near the Hume Arena, and digressing from the topic in question inquired if there was any thought of covering the market. Mayor Follwell claimed this point to be well taken and stated he was heartily in favor of covering the market. The matter had been investigated, he said, but no decision had been reached.

Alderman Armstrong stated the new lavatory would be placed on the market driveway next the city hall and that only one or two vendors would be required to move from their present stands. Much criticism has been received because of the condition of the present public washroom, he said.

"It seems to me that this new public lavatory would be just one more headache for the board of health to look after," stated Dr. Marshall when he was invited by the Mayor to speak. "The majority of such lavatories are underground and in any event I question the advisability of a market gardener selling produce next to a lavatory."

Always An Objection

"It is just unfortunate that anything which is done by the city council draws objection from some quarter," interjected Mayor Follwell. "The present location is disgraceful and efforts to keep it clean have failed entirely."

Alderman Thompson asserted that there were many cities in Ontario where public lavatories were placed above ground, and claimed it was no business of the board of health where the lavatory was built. It would be up to the board to see it was run right. It would be a fine thing for the community," he said.

Alderman Woodley stated he had endorsed the recommendation to place the lavatory on the proposed site. It would be the city taxpayers who would bear the cost and he had not heard any city residents object to the location of the proposed building.

Wanted Question Turned Back

Alderman Hyde held that in any event the building could not be constructed this year as market vendors hold a yearly lease. He asked that the matter be referred back to committee and this was also the feeling of Alderman Trudeau.

Alderman Chamberlain took exception to Alderman Thompson's attitude regarding the board of health and stated its members should be welcome at council at any time. "Certainly we welcome the board of health," returned Alderman Thompson, "but we do not want everyone criticizing."

No action was taken as result of the rural delegation visiting the council, although it was intimated the proposed lavatory would not be commenced until next year.

Holding of Farmers' Day, Taxi Parking On Business Sts., Costs of Operating Parking Lot Discussed by Merchants

Sixty-five city merchants, in an unprecedended upsurge of interest in organized effort for their own betterment and that of the city insofar as business relations are concerned, discussed a number of important suggestions and endorsed recommendations at a special meeting of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce on Monday night.

The meeting was a representative cross-section of the business life of the city which thoroughly discussed matters brought before it, and according to division officials, was a happy augury of future better relations between merchants as a whole.

Four of the more important decisions arrived at included the raising of funds to pay half the operating costs of the "Free Insured, Attended" parking space inaugurated by the Junior Board of Trade which is now paying expenses for that project; a recommendation to the city council that taxis be stopped from parking on Front and Bridge Streets and that they have their own parking lot with telephones; the inauguration of a "Farmers' Day" in the city, and that all stores will close on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11.

Discuss Suggestions

Chairman Harold Seldon, of the Retail Merchants' Committee, presided and pointed out that the object of the meeting was to discuss a number of suggestions submitted by mecrhants in the questionnaire submitted a short time ago relative to Saturday six o'clock closing.

In the discussion of the suggested financial assistance to the Junior Board of Trade with its project of "free, insured, attended" parking, it was pointed out that the junior organization had spent $376 to test the scheme. At the outset the weekly cost to the Board was $38 but this has been reduced to $25, for servicing the lot.

The budget of the junior organization, it was pointed out, does not permit bearing the total expense, but it will operate the service and pay for such items as banners, advertising, etc., and half the operating expenses. It was suggested that the city merchants bear the other half.

After discussion, the meeting unanimously decided to inaugurate a special fund to finance the merchants' share of the project—but based on a graduated scale. That is, the "little fellow" in a more or less obscure part of the city, will not be asked to pay so much as the big stores on Front Street.

Ways and means of the financial plan will be worked out by the Retail Merchants' Division and presented for approval at the next general meeting.

Protest Taxi Parking.

Merchants of lower Front Street protested at the continued parking of taxicabs in the area between Bridge Street and the City Hall and also on Bridge Street running east from Front. Private car owners, it was pointed out, do not have an opportunity of parking their cars in the areas mentioned and already several complaints to merchants have been received.

The meeting endorsed a recommendation to the city council that taxis be allotted a parking lot of their own with telephones. The Chamber of Commerce was asked to take up the matter and forward the recommendation to city council for consideration.

Another suggestion acted upon was that copies of by-laws pertaining to closing hours in the city be obtained and sent to every merchant in the city.

Success of a recent "Farmers' Day" held in Barrie, Ont., was the foundation of a suggestion that a similar event be held here. Discussion brought out the opinions that ways should be found to attract more farmer business to the city, and this in turn brought up the matter of the Bancroft-Belleville highway.

Consensus revealed the meeting to be in favor of such "day" and a number of suggestions as to what it should be called were aired. The outcome was that the Retail Merchants Division will get in touch with Barrie officials and get details of the plan, and that financing of the day will be arranged for in conjunction with the plan as suggested for the Junior Board of Trade parking lot.

Discussing closing on November 11, Remembrance Day, some merchants present were in favor of observing two minutes silence at 11 o'clock and remaining open for the remainder of the day. Others, however, favored an all-day closing, and that was the final decision of the meeting. Apropos of Remembrance Day, the Division will purchase a memorial wreath and deposit it on the City Cenotaph on the occasion of the Memorial Day services.

Efforts will be made in the immediate future to secure a complete list of all merchants in the city so that future activities of the Division can be brought to their attention. Monthly meetings were suggested as was the printing of the by-laws of the Division for distribution to all merchants.

Three Young Men Arrested And Remanded

Three young Belleville men, Oscar P. Milne, Russell Babcock and Gordon McNally, were taken into custody by Provincial and city police Monday night following reports of suspicious actions by two men at Corbyville.

McNally is charged with breaking and entering with theft of a case of liquor from a warehouse at the Corbyville Distilleries, while Milne and Babcock are charged with being in possession of stolen goods and will face a second charge under the L.C.A. Appearing in local police court Tuesday morning all three were remanded until November 5th.

The suspicious actions of two men who were seen carrying a case from a ditch and placing it in their car led to the report of the incident to local police. Provincial Constable Sam Ervine and Sgt. Clarence Arnott of the city force proceeded toward Corbyville in the police cruiser with Milne and Babcock being apprehended when, it is reported, a case of liquor was discovered in their car.

Police Chief Walter Probert and Inspector Hayes continued the investigation and obtained information which led to the arrest of McNally on the breaking and entering and theft charge.

Police claim McNally was responsible for breaking into the warehouse and after taking the liquor, left it in the ditch for Milne and Babcock to pick up.

Charges Follow Traffic Accident

Bancroft, Oct. 29 — Provincial Constables S. W. Palmateer and Roy Dolachuk investigated an accident some 25 miles northeast of Bancroft on Highway 62 Saturday morning in which a passenger of one of the cars was injured. The accident occurred in a somewhat freakish manner. A car driven by Ernest Mantieffle of Purdy proceeding uphill was crowded off the road into the ditch by the glaring lights of an oncoming car. Mantieffle then went for a neighbors' truck to tow him out of the ditch. After being towed back onto the highway and dismissing the truck which pulled him out, another truck driven by Leonard Porath of Purdy pulled alongside the Mantieffle vehicle only headed in the opposite direction. He inquired of Mantieffle if there was anything wrong and while they were thus chatting a car driven by Lloyd Hicks of Belle's Rapids, broke over the knoll and blinded by the lights of Mantieffle's car piled into the Porath truck. One passenger in the Hick's car received a gash on the head and he was rushed to Barry's Bay for medical attention, and later removed to his home. There was considerable damage done to the Hick's car. All parties involved in the accident were charged with breach of the H. T. A. and will appear in Bancroft police court Nov. 6. The police learned on reaching the scene of the accident that said accident had not occurred on Saturday the day on which the police received the word, but the evening before.

Injured in Accident.

Allen Loney and his brother are in hospital in Toronto suffering from broken knee caps and shock received when their car was involved in an accident near Toronto recently.

Personals.

Mr. R. Robinson spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mr. Earle Carpenter was a business visitor in Belleville on Saturday.

Quite a number of villagers turned out again Sunday at the Wm. Kelusky form to avail themselves of aeroplane rides over the village and vicinity as provided by the Picton and Peterborough flying clubs.

Milk Producers To Hold Meeting In Brockville

Milk producers in the eastern part of the province will meet in the Brockville Collegiate Institute on Thursday evening this week to hear reports from officers of the Ontario milk producer organizations in connection with recent representations to the government on the cost of producing milk.

Relationship of the cost of milk production with the price received by farmers will be covered in the report, while recommendations will be made regarding future action. Chairman of the Brockville meeting will be H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Possibility of recommendations coming from the meeting regarding future action is seen as result of the feeling on the part of producers that their effort in securing accurate figures on costs of milk production has not received the recognition it deserves from the government.

Question of Construction Of Incinerator Will Be Put To Ratepayers at Election

Demand for immediate action on the part of the city to improve the dumping condition at the city garbage dump was received by council from a Foster Ward resident at council meeting on Monday evening.

"The odor from the fermented raw garbage is so terrible that we cannot sleep with windows open," stated Mr. William Peoples who acted as the one-man delegation. "It is not only the smell, but the vermin and fire hazard. We want to know what you are going to do about this dump."

The demand for action on the part of Mr. Peoples gave rise to a discussion on the garbage dump question with Alderman Hyde stating the dump was being kept in as good condition as was possible. "We can dump there for maybe another year and then I don't know where we will go," he said.

Alderman Tice was ruled out of order when he suggested that an incinerator was the only answer to the garbage dump question in Belleville and that raw garbage should not be dumped in any part of the city while Alderman Clarke stated that as proof of his support for an incinerator he would at the proper time introduce a motion putting the question of the erection of an incinerator to the ratepayers.

Board of Health Objects

Alderman Armstrong stated that plans had been made to dump garbage in the marsh at Zwick's Island but unfortunately the Board of Health had objected to dumping of garbage west of the Moira River. "But the present dump affects more people than would a dump at Zwick's Island." he said.

Alderman Woodley stated he had always favored an incinerator as he had maintained that live garbage should not be dumped inside the city.

Without one dissenting vote the recommendation and necessary by-law for the city signing a contract with the Canadian Ice Machine Company for refrigeration at the Hume Arena passed through council.

Committee Named

Notification that the various city departments would be surveyed by a special committee with the view of re-organization, was given with the passing of a recommendation appointing a special committee of Aldermen Thompson, Armstrong, Wilbur and Follwell to investigate the various city staffs.

A recommendation to have the William G. Rouse (Canadian) Ltd., business administration efficiency firm at Montreal, to make a survey of the various city departments was defeated, however. The preliminary survey would have cost the city $100 following which, if any recommendations were installed, would cost the city an additional sum.

"I object to taking on this survey until we go into it more fully," stated Alderman Trudeau. "This firm representative was not very explicit as to what the survey would accomplish."

"Either this council are a bunch of nit-wits or we are typical fall guys," interjected Alderman Clarke. "Already this year we have entered into a $5,000 contract for a town planning survey and up to now we have nothing to show for it."

Strong Objection Made

This statement drew a strong objection from Alderman Follwell who claimed the city had already received a preliminary report from the town planning engineers with whom they had contracted.

Under inquiries Alderman Allin asked when the parks committee was going to effect repairs to the retaining wall at Victoria Park for which council had allowed money, while Alderman Tice asked if any word had been received from the Department of National Defence regarding the opening of the Armouries laneway. Mayor Follwell stated he had been in touch with the Deputy Minister of Defence, who stated he would give an answer in the immediate future.

Speaker Complimented.

Alderman Harvey complimented Mr. People as being the first resident of Foster Ward who had come to council in protest of the garbage dump in that locality, and also asked what action was contemplated by council regarding the open ditch running from the local gas plant to the bay. Chairman of Public Works Hyde returned that the ditch was the property of the Public Utility Commission.

Alderman Hyde asked if something could not be done regarding the pigeon nuisance in the city. Many complaints were being received regarding this matter, he said. Mayor Follwell asked if the city fire pumper had yet returned to the city and was informed it had returned from Stratford following repairs which had been necessary.

Alderman Thompson inquired regarding the proposed convalescent hospital and asked, in the view of increased costs, what the future action of the W.C.A. would be. In view of the importance of the proposed new building he felt that the council should act hand in hand with the hospital board and the government.

Further Discussed.

The question of the public lavatory proposed to be erected on the market square near the city hall was again further discussed when Alderman Armstrong asked what the position of the city was in view of the delegation of farmers which had attended council. The members unanimously favored the original proposal.

Alderman Butler asked what particular department would bear the cost of the proposed lavatory and was informed the cost would be assessed against regional planning although "in the end it would be the city taxpayer." Estimated cost was in the neighborhood of $5,000, it was stated.

Alderman Chamberlain wanted to know what became of the by-law making the south side of Campbell Street between Pinnacle and Front Street a "no parking" area. He was told that it had been passed at a previous meeting.

Council approved of a motion presented by Alderman Clarke asking that the city ratepayers at the next municipal election be asked "Are you in favor of the construction of an incinerator for the disposal of combustible garbage?" Estimated cost of the incinerator would be supplied by the city engineer prior to the election date.

Special Services Mark St. Paul's 50th Anniversary

Bancroft, Oct. 29—St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the erection of the present church with special services morning and evening Sunday at which the Rev. A. J. Wilson, D.D., Toronto, editor of the United Church Observer, official organ of the United Church, was the guest preacher.

At the morning service Dr. Wilson spoke from the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, the Roll Call of the Heroes of the Faith, and paid tribute to the pioneers of the churches, the church officers, Sunday School teachers, W.A. and W.M.S. workers and members who carry on from one generation to another, saying that the work done by one generation required that of another generation to complete it: "God having provided some better thing for us that they without us should not be made perfect."

"Each church anniversary is an occasion to think with reverence and gratitude of the cloud of witnesses who worked for the common good. Founders of churches nowadays do not face the hardship and toil our forefathers did, but through religion and the church by keeping alive the faith of our fathers, the problems of national and international life can be solved. We must serve better, pray more earnestly, believe more firmly. Education without religion, or science without religion will not solve the problems of the United Nations, but the spirit and ideals of Jesus will accomplish the peace and maintain it."

The sermon was a challenge to church members to think more highly of their calling, of stewardship and of loyalty, to "join the parade of people who do things, and not just watch the parade go by."

Cites Jacob's Experiences

Speaking in the evening on "Some Aspects of the Christian Life" and using two incidents in the life of Jacob—as a young man of twenty and then at a time of crisis at fifty when life had caught up with him and he was going home to face his brother whom he had wronged. In each case an angel had met him. Meeting God at Bethel, was as it always is in the initial experience of Him. The later experience at Mahanaim, was one when the heavenly vision guided him in "the crowded way of life." So the voice of God speaks today, to young(middle aged and old; only by listening to it can one fulfill his or her purpose in life in the truest sense.

The music for the day was provided by the St. Paul's choir under the direction of Mr. Earl Carpenter, with Mrs. John Goodkey at the electric organ. Soloists were Miss Hazel Vance and Mr. Earl Carpenter, and a duet was sung by the Misses Marguerite Maxwell and Florence Tryon. There were large congregations, and the church was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers.

The Reverend Robert V. McLauchlin, B. A., minister of the Church presided at both services, welcomed Dr. Wilson, on this his first visit to North Hastings and related some of the early history of the congregation. Several who had attended the opening of the church were present. These included Mr. William Davy from whom it was learned that as a boy going to school having to pass the new building, he could place the building of the first church at Bancroft, then called York River, as 1876 or 77. It had a student minister, a Mr. Wood, of the Methodist Church, who was followed by a Mr. Wheeler, then by Rev. W. B. Tucker, who is now a resident of Toronto. The Hon. Billa Flint changed the name of the village to Bancroft after his wife's family name.

The new and larger present church was built in 1896 under the pastorate of the late Rev. A. L. Brown, and the corner stone laid by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn of Madoc. After the walls and roof were completed the church was finished by contract by the Davy brothers, Chester looked after the windows; Adam, the seats and pulpit, George and William completing the interior and the tower. In 1926 after the Church Union the local Presbyterian congregation amalgamated with the Methodists to form what is now St. Paul's.

The Anniversary services were concluded last night with a chicken dinner served under the direction of the afternoon auxiliary, of which Mrs. W. Vance has been President for over 30 years.

Mr. C. A. Eddy is the chairman of the Committee of Stewards and Mr. J. W. Hahn, treasurer of the congregation.

Church Greatly Improved

St. Paul's Church, which is one of the outstanding physical features of the village, has had a continuously progressive history during the four-year pastorate of Mr. McLaughlin. Large accessions to membership; emergence as a self-supporting charge after over half a century as a Missions; leadership and oversight in the first "Larger Parish" in Ontario, including Maynooth, Lake St. Peter and Boulter areas; a new electric organ; the church entirely redecorated within and the grounds outside landscaped and $400 subscribed to the Pension Fund Capital Campaign, have earned praise from headquarters church authorities. During his visit Dr. Wilson visited the new Lake St. Peter Church and the women workers, Miss A. Coultes and Miss M. Willows, who preach on that part of the parish; and preached at Baptiste, taking photographs for use in a story for the United Church Observer.

Present at the services yesterday was Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, father of the minister who was pastor from 1915-17, and who is now press representative of the United Church of Canada on the headquarters staff. Toronto.

All Children in Community Should Have Camp Privileges 'Pete' Beach Tells Rotary Club

Camps which house boys in annual summer periods and whose parents can well afford the cost should be self-supporting and should be well able to pay the shot. On the other hand any money spent by service clubs should go to provide camp costs for underprivileged children, N. A. "Pete" Beach, athletic director of Albert College told the Rotary Club here on Monday.

Mr. Beach who has had wide experience as a camp director as well as a number of years' service overseas with the auxiliary services, bluntly told the clubmen that every type of child in a community should have the privilege of going to a summer camp.

He did not believe in segregation in any boys' camp. The costs for underprivileged children should be borne out of monies donated by service clubs and organizations and there should be a mingling of two types of children.

"In fact", he said, "both the underprivileged and the overprivileged boys need help in the levelling-off process that is part of any camp."

Extols Value of Camps

The advantages of any boy or girl attending any summer camp are of more value in life than any other group experience, Mr. Beach told the clubmen. "There is something about this living together that mellows young people and knocks off the rough edges of the individual. It requires no skill but makes for an ability to get along with larger groups later in life."

"There should be no duplication," he said. "Children whose parents can well afford to send them to camp should not be allowed to attend six or eight camps in summer, while underprivileged children are forced to stay in the city with no chance to go at all.

There should be, he suggested, a central committee organized in every community to see that this is done.

Not in Favor of Awards

He was not in favor of 'awards' made at boys' camps for proficiency in the more common things that occur everyday. It tended to make boys strive for something that was not conducive to the general harmony of the organization.

Mr. Beach recalled several incidents that occurred during his tenure of office as a camp director and which brought out the effect of camp life on different types of boys. He complimented the club on the job it was doing at its camp at Moira Lake.

Rotarian Stanley Hagerman, chairman of the Moira Boys' Camp Committee reviewed the activities of the camp during the past year. During 1945-46 the Y.M.C.A. had equipped the camp with double-deck steel cots and regulation mattresses. Four camps were conducted. From July 2 to 15, forty-one boys 13-15 years of age had attended the camp. Honor Cabin was that of Leader Hugh Cameron; the honor camper Douglas Walmsley and the best 1st year camper, Joe Mazer.

54 Boys, 63 Girls at Camp

Fifty-four boys, 10-11-12 were in attendance from July 16-31. Honor Cabin, Leader Hugh Cameron, honor camper, John Hagerman, best 1st year camper, Ray Hermiston. At the camp held for girls 10-14 years of age 63 were in attendance with the honor cabin being that of Barbara Joan Houston; honor camper, Dorothy Gouvrier; best 1st year camper, Jacqueline Avery. Later the CGIT attended camp with an attendance of 69.

The total season attendance was 227 with 7,104 meals served, and 3,280 evening drinks of cocoa or ovaltine.

Athletic and aquatic meets were conducted for each camp as well as leagues and tournaments in all kinds of games. Supervision, instruction and discipline are accepted in a pleasant way. "The camp experience," Rotarian Hagerman said, "is one in democratic living of a high standard." He urged that the club make the same grants this year as last for the further improvement of the camp.

Health Minister Deplores Spending Money for Unemployment Relief

Picton, Oct. 29. "I believe it is basic that if we keep the farmer prosperous, we will have a prosperous country". declared Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Minister of Health for Ontario, in an address at the annual meeting of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce here. The speaker deplored the spending of a billion dollars in Canada for unemployment relief which he termed paying people to do nothing. The farmer needs a billion dollars worth of appliances, implements and goods. If, instead of unemployment relief, that money had gone to farmers in the form of higher prices for their produce, the factories could have been kept busy," he said.

Wants Industry Decentralized

Mr. Kelley stressed the need for decentralization of industry, citing the distances people travel to work in large centres, traffic jams and accidents. We should build up smaller centres instead of the big cities, he declared.

Regarding the drift of Canadians to the United States, Mr. Kelley felt that there should be an analysis of the situation, and a plan which will overcome and reverse that trend. Canada is a land of great opportunity and has a great future, he reminded.

Advice on Community Spirit

Mr. Kelley gave advice on building community spirit. Knockers must be eliminated and all become boosters. Try to find out something good in everybody, he urged, and quoted the poem. It isn't the town, it's you".

In business he urged courtesy and friendliness. "Never worry about your opposition, but know what he is doing", Mr. Kelley urged.

J. deC. Hepburn, M.L.A., introduced the speaker, stating that Mr. Kelley had given 7,000 public addresses.

LILIENTHAL HEADS

Sumner T. Pike, 55, an investment banker who until last March was a member of the Securities Exchange Commission.

Successor Named

As Mr. Lilienthal's successor as head of the giant T. V. A., Mr. Truman named Gordon R. Clapp, 41, general manager of the government utility since 1939.

The President announced his selections at a special Press conference yesterday.

He signed legislation creating the commission Aug. 1.

The appointments are subject to Senate confirmation when Congress reconvenes in January.

The Commission takes over from the Army full legislation of atomic energy and production of atomic bombs.

The commission members must devote full time to their new assignment. As chairman, Mr. Lilienthal will receive $17,500 a year. The others will be paid $15,000.

Outline of Authority

Here in brief is an outline of the commission's authority:

It will promote atomic research and development by private and public institutions and through its own organization.

It has exclusive control over all fissionable material and facilities used in the production of atomic bombs. It may authorize others to produce fissionable materials.

It will set up and direct divisions of military application, research, engineering and production, each in charge of a director to be paid $14,000 a year.

With Mr. Truman's approval, the Commission may produce atomic bombs. Again with his approval, the Commission may authorize the armed forces to turn out atomic weapons.

The Commission also may:

Distribute atomic material for research of medical use; licence the manufacture of equipment for using atomic energy; but fissionable material abroad for defence; take over for public use any patents for making or using atomic energy.

TWO-WAY
TRACTOR PLOW

This field is being plowed on the contour, across the slope, with all furrows turned in the same direction—uphill. Rain water caught by the lapped furrows is held on the slope to benefit crops. Uncontrolled, that same water might easily form ruinous gullies or leach soil fertility by sheet erosion.

The Allis-Chalmers tractor-mounted two-way pick-up plow is hydraulically raised and lowered. At the end of the furrow pictured here, the righthand moldboard will be lowered for the return trip.

An Allis-Chalmers two-way plow can help greatly to conserve soil and moisture on sloping fields. We will be glad to give you full information.

Gen. Crerar Retires

General H. D. G. Crerar who has served Canada and the Empire and world democracy in the two Great Wars has now retired to civil life after a life of long military service. He has received many honors from Allied nations in recognition of the services he rendered in the Second Great War. To him fell the task of commanding half a million men in the smashing blows which rained upon Germany in the days of steady advance by the Allied Powers.

He has rendered his country a great service in time of danger and struggle and has a record of distinguished service for which the Canadian people and the Allied peoples too will always remember his leadership.

General Crerar who is the first Canadian general to earn the rank of general in the field is a very quiet man and is taking his retirement quietly.

The Season

October when it entered four weeks ago brought with it the breath and atmosphere of winter, but only a mere suggestion of it, for ever since that first day of the month the weather conditions have been generally ideal. Latterly the days and nights have been very mild. The weather has eased the fuel problem for the people of this part of the world. In the four weeks past leaves have turned from green to scarlet, deep brown and gold until now but few leaves hang from the boughs.

The present month has been favorable and nature has helped in every way work in the field and in industry in these parts. It has greatly aided in the cleaning up of the chores, the late jobs that are to be performed before winter's rigor sets in. Man has been able to complete the usual labors that autumn brings.

But he is not deceived by all these signs of warmth and glory of color, lately faded. He knows that in the law of nature the season of winter will come with blast and storm and high wind and with clouds of snowflakes and with frigid temperatures.

A space of time is left before the grand festival of Hallowe'en which in its ancient superstitions and modern counterparts in sports and games and high festivity seems a fitting climax to the season of growth and harvest, and prelude to the entry of the months when there comes a hush in nature's activities. Hallowe'en is so apt an expression of ancient lore, brought up to date so as to preserve much of the attractions of the old festival, that it lingers and will continue to linger in the form of make-believe in so many of the old legends and fancies which cluster about this time.

The wild fancy of Hallowe'en is a crowning of the season and a welcome to the days ahead. It is the high enjoyment of the harvest season and of the great outdoors and it heralds the wild winds and suggests the storms of winter in the clash of thoughts and ideas which mankind in this northern clime have through many generations gathered about this festival.

With Hallowe'en past the people will look yearningly for another sign of the benignity of nature which comes in the form of that brief season known as Indian Summer. And then comes winter with its possibilities of snow and ice.

To the hunter this season brings the time looked for with intense feeling, when the attractions of the hunt join with the charm of nature to make these holidays memorable to such a degree and so vivid that the recollection of these lovely days in the woods and in the camp linger ever after.

Canadians never grow weary of the attractions of their autumn and sing its praises on every occasion.

October and the coming of November bring to everyone the touch of nature that appeals. The season has its appeal just as spring and summer have theirs. Humans move with the spirit of lingering that marks this time of year, when the pace of the outside world slows down, when the sun loses some of its strength as it retires southward on its course. Every day spared before the entry of winter is so much enjoyed in fact and in memory.

Fall fairs catch the season of harvest a little earlier but even if they are gone there remain the high festivals of autumn suppers when the riches of the harvest are demonstrated upon the tables at the rural and urban fetes and although the demands of the war and the need of saving food against the scarcity caused restrictions these social gatherings have largely held their own and prove their worth by the generous support they receive for they are events which enrich the lives of the people and of the communities from which they come. These gatherings so often associated with church anniversaries are aptly arranged as to appointments and dates. They help to give a sense of rounding out the season of growth.

In fact from early September to well on past Hallowe'en Canadians have reason to be celebrating one continuous round of thanksgivings and harvest festivals, so inspiring are harvests and autumn in this land.

London Zoo

The famous zoo in Regent Park, London, is picking up. War made heavy ravages on such institutions but as the late struggle recedes with the past the depleted cages are being restocked and much of the war damage is being repaired.

Sign of the peace era and what it means to one of the nations in the Orient is seen in the arrival of this year's outstanding addition to the London Zoo, a good will gift from the Provincial Government of Szechuan, China, of a giant panda. Her name is suggestive, it is Lien Ho, which means Union. She is a prime favorite with the youngsters in London, who visit the zoo. Several collections have already been made, among them three elephants which have arrived to replace animals which died since 1939. From the Falkland Islands have been sent penguins and other birds and many rare animals have come from South Africa, Cape penguins, cranes and snakes. The Gold Coast is sending a large consignment of animals and birds.

Norse Relics in Newfoundland

According to a correspondent in the Telegram, a Newfoundland exchange, Mr. A. M. Mallery, an archaeologist of Summit, New Jersey, discovered in Pistolet Bay and in other parts of the Northern Peninsula evidence to establish beyond doubt that Norse voyagers had located there. Sites of Viking camps or winter quarters, it is stated, were found in Pistolet Bay as well as stone shipbuilding tools at Sops Arm and Englee. The discoveries are reported to have satisfied the archaeologist that they confirm much of what had been related in Norse sagas of the voyages of Lief Eriksen and other Vikings and the previously unsolved situation of Vinland, says Charlottetown Guardian.

Atomic Onion

The American Chemical Society has announced that one ounce of "atomic onion" has the potency of 2,500 ounces of the common or garden variety of that popular vegetable, says Christian Science Monitor. In the form of an oil a couple of ounces of this product should provide the average housewife with enough flavor and fragrancy to last through the most extended onion shortage. Just a wee drop on a couple of pounds of hamburg, and one would need to open the doors and winds to carry off the excess aroma. Give the secret of the atomic onion to the world and take the consequences!

Heaven will permit no man to secure happiness by crime.—Alfieri.

SUPPOSE

Suppose as you were starting out
Her mother said to you:
"While you are roaming round about
One thing you mustn't do.
You mustn't pause at candy shops
Along the thoroughfare
Or step inside for lollypops,
However tempted there."

Suppose while strolling hand in hand
She begged of you to stop,
As if the artful trick she'd planned
Before a candy shop.
Would you her mother stern obey
And practice self-control?
Could money in your pocket stay
Or would it burn a hole?

Could you, as one with judgment wise,
Let such a chance be missed;
The yearning in those lovely eyes,
That watering mouth resist?
And could you keep secure the dime
That so much joy could buy
Or would you prove at such a time
To be as weak as I?

Squatters Marshal 'Protective Force'

Montreal, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Leaders of Montreal's squatters have marshalled a "protective force" to repel any attempt by former occupants to oust veteran's families from the second building occupied within the last week.

Police officials were non-committal and Mr. Gagnon then said he would call in his own "force." Some 30 men soon put in an appearance and kept watch in and around the premises. The Montreal Gazette said the group were members of the Canadian Seamen's Union, led by Conrad Sauras and Danny Daniels, C. S. U. organizers.

A small crowd gathered near the house at the corner of St. Denis and Mount Royal Avenue when rumors of a "counter-attack" spread. A score of detectives and policemen waited in readiness at a nearby station-house and in patrol cars. But nothing happened.

The three families that moved into the building during the afternoon arrived in taxis accompanied by a group of veterans. Two men were in the house, but their protests were disregarded and the veterans began unloading furniture from a truck. Five children and an octogenarian were among the new group of squatters.

MANIFESTATIONS OF IODINE DEFICIENCY

Simple goitre is perhaps the most familiar manifestation of iodine deficiency. Among 12,631 schoolboys, 2,603 had goitre; among 13,548 schoolgirls, 5,236 had goitre, in one city in the Great Lakes region—before the use of iodized salt in place of ordinary salt became popular. Today school children in that city are no more frequently subject to goitre than school children anywhere else.

Some boys and girls in their early 'teens become pensive and even gloomy, mope and daydream when they should be gay and merry. This is not always a sign of incipient tuberculosis or anything else so serious — although the child certainly should have the benefit of careful medical examination or several examinations to make sure about that. Frequently the chronic fatigue they show is due to iodine deficiency.

Right here it may occur to some readers to ask what would be an embarrassing question—if my hide were not thick as well as impermeable. Don't ask—let me put my cards on the table. In the first place, I should have qualified that last statement by adding one of those old Brady sayings—in my opinion. Just between ourselves, folks, of course I don't know any more than the next doctor knows about it, but I base my opinion or belief on the experience reported by the mother of the tired college girl (in the Iodin Ration pamphlet, available on written request if you provide stamped self addressed envelope)—that sixteen-year-old girl's reanimation is typical of many.

Iodine deficiency, bear in mind, is nutritional deficiency and the manufestations here mentioned constitute signs of malnutrition just as manifestations of vitamin A or vitamin B deficiency do. So please don't lose sight of the fact that we are considering nutritional or food iodine only, not medicinal iodine. Incidentally, to the best of my knowledge it makes no difference what form of iodine one takes in any circumstance—elementary iodine, tincture, solution, various iodines, organic or inorganic iodine compounds, iodine from vegetable, animal or mineral source—as long as every man, woman or child gets the minimum daily requirement, which nutrition authorities estimate to be one-tenth of a milligram—equivalent to 1/650th of a grain. That's a wee, wee nip of iodine, to be sure, but after all, the minimum daily requirement of thiamine (vitamin B1) is only a milligram—equivalent to 1/65th of a grain.

The manifestations of iodine deficiency (iodine is correct spelling, but I spell it iodin when I want to emphasize that it is nutritional and not medicinal) in adults, aside from goitre, are practically indistinguishable from the signs and symptoms of hypothyroidism and myxedema. This condition—hypothyroidism, deficient thyroid gland function, is usually if not invariably due to iodine deficiency. We'll talk about this another day.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Twentieth Century Methods

Mr. ——— wishes to know the name of the doctor who gives the ambulant treatment for hernia.
(C. R. W.)

Answer—Take a letter. My dear Mr. ———: Some time when you are not in conference come down to my level and ask me again—this time inclosing a stamped self addressed envelope, that is, if you hope for a reply. Right now I know of no one in your vicinity I can recommend, but as the better doctors (who were in service) gradually get relocated my list is building up to something like pre-war adequacy. The old fogies and second rate practitioners just can't get the hang of the difficult technique of ambulant treatment, and so their uninformed customers must submit to hospitalization. But don't let 'em tell you that the radical operation is either safer or more likely to cure the hernia than the office method is. The truth is that the radical operation is more dangerous and at least as likely to fail to cure the hernia as the ambulant method is. If any physician or surgeon of standing questions this, I have the statistics to prove it.

Head Noises

Following suggestion in your column I began taking quinine, 12 grains a day, for tinnitus. The first 5 days the head noises were almost intolerable, but my the 6th day a profound quietness obtained. I am now on the tenth day and the rumbling and hissing are diminishing. (——M.D.)

Answer—Thank you, Doctor. I have no further suggestions—it is just that several persons with tinnitus (head noises) have found prolonged relief from taking four grains of quinine sulfate (pill, capsule or otherwise) three times a day for six weeks. If quinine is not yet available in your community without prescription, that is all I can do about it.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When were envelopes first used in mailing letters?

It is not known who made the first envelopes, The Babylonians and other ancients covered clay and stone tablets with mud to protect the writing and to insure privacy.

Envelopes for mailing purposes did not come into general use until the decade between 1839 and 1849, soon after the adoption of the adhesive postage stamp. Previously envelopes were very seldom used in the mails because an extra charge was made for any paper, no matter how small, when inclosed in another.

A few paper wrappers seem to have been used in France for one purpose or another as early as the 17th century. Paper envelopes were made in England as early as 1830 by a bookseller and stationer in Brighton named S. K. Brewer. Edwin Hill, brother of Sir Rowland Hill who introduced the penny post, invented an envelope-making machine soon after adhesive postage stamps came into use. A machine for folding envelopes was patented in 1845 by De la Rue.

The first envelopes made in the United States are believed to have been manufactured in 1839 by a man named Pierson, who had a small shop on Fulton Street in New York City. Up to that time letter postage was collected in money directly from the sender or the recipient when delivery was made. The letter was addressed and stamped with a wax seal after it had been carefully folded in such a way that none of the message proper appeared on the exterior.

The first envelope-making machine in the United States was patented in 1849 by J. K. Park and C. B. Watson, of New York, and the first commercially successful envelope-folding machine was patented in 1853 by Dr. Russell L. Harris, of Worcester, Massachutetts. Thomas Callahan patented "window envelopes" in 1902.

"Envelope" in the sense of a wrapper or case for letters and other articles is derived from French "enveloppe" and many people pronounce it "ONN-velope" in an attempt to approximate the French pronunciation. There is little excuse for giving a foreign sound to a word that has been Anglicized in spelling for more than two centuries and that is no longer regarded as foreign by anybody. Reputable dictionaries generally recognize two spellings and three pronunciations of this word as correct when used as a noun. It is spelled "envelope" or "envelop" and pronounced "EN-vel-opp," "en-VELL-opp" or "en-VELL-ope." As a verb, though spelled two ways, this word has only one accepted pronunciation — "en-VELL-opp."

PHEASANT JUMPS INTO HANDS

Twin Falls, Idaho, Oct. 29 (AP) —Bob Robertson hunted pheasants for two days without any luck. Yesterday while walking in hsi field here a pheasant jumped from under his feet right into his hands.

FLYNN GOING TO TAHITI

Hollywood, Oct. 29—(AP)—Errol Flynn is going to Tahiti until next February, when his wife, Nora, has their second child. She returned yesterday from Acapulco, Mexico, where Flynn's yacht, the Zaca, is anchored. "He has given up his plan to sail for Europe," she told newspapermen. "He's going to fly home from Tahiti in late February."

Soft Coal Strike Front Flies New Storm Signals

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, Oct. 29 — (AP)— Despite President Truman's dictum that there will be no coal strike, Interior Secretary J. A. Krug made it clear today that the United States government has not surrendered to John L. Lewis on his demand for a new coal contract.

By implication, Mr. Lewis has threatened a walkout Nov. 1 by his 480,000 soft coal miners.

A spokesman for Mr. Krug, who had telegraphed Lewis Sunday arranging the meeting for Friday, was asked:

"Does that telegram mean the government will reopen the coal contract?", a reporter asked.

"It does not say that," the spokesman replied.

Asked whether Lewis was correct in interpreting the telegram as compliance with the union leader's Oct. 21 letter demanding reopening of the contract, the spokesman answered:

"The secretary's communication is a compliance only with Mr. Lewis' request for a meeting."

Previously, Mr. Truman's no-strike announcement had been taken as indicating that the government might be ready to talk new contract terms — as demanded by Lewis.

The union agreed yesterday to negotiate with the government under the terms of the old pact which went into effect last May 29 after Mr. Krug seized strike-paralyzed soft coal mines.

Until yesterday, Lewis had insisted bluntly that unless the government agreed to negotiate a new contract — notably with reference to wages and hours—the current pact would be "void" Nov. 1.

Since Lewis' miners do not work without a contract, this presumably would have meant an immediate walkout by the miners.

Mr. Krug has contended all along that the present contract must remain in effect for the duration of the government's operation of the seized mines, but he is willing to discuss the current pact.

Civil Service Still Looking For Employees

Ottawa, Oct. 29 (CP)—Despite a heavy post-war influx of veterans into the civil service, wartime government workers have not been laid off in great numbers, and the civil service still is looking for employees, civil service commission officials said today.

Layoff of temporary civil servants hired during the war has not been nearly as heavy as expected. For the most part those who have left are married women who wanted to return to domestic life, and retired persons who went back to work during the war only.

Hundreds of other employees have been transferred from the now-defunct wartime branches to such divisions as the Department of Veterans Affairs, which has grown since the war ended, and the Department of National Health and Welfare, where family allowances alone have demanded a large increase in staff.

For the man or woman seeking government employment there is a wide choice of jobs, report C.S.C. officials.

Seldom is that "male preferred" phrase seen nowadays on civil service employment advertisements. "If it does slip in the commission soon hears about it from every woman's organization in the country," said one official. "Today women have the right to compete with men for most of the jobs available. The only time preference is given is when outside conditions make it absolutely necessary that a man should hold the job."

Pope Declares Men Are Losing Sense of Sin

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Oct. 28 (AP)— Pope Pius, in a radio address strictly religious in nature, declared Saturday that "perhaps the greatest sin in the world today is that men have begun to lose their sense of sin."

He made that observation in a broadcasting from his summer castle residence directed to the opening of the Eighth International Congregation of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine in Boston.

The Pope said he was disturbed by the weakening of the Church in countries "where the true faith has flourished for generations." but at the same time he noted the "magnificent results being achieved by Catholic misions among the infidels throughout the world—3,000,000 and more receiving instruction in the faith, almost 500,000 entering the Church each year."

Due To Ignorance

He declared that the "growing weakness, the devitalizing process going on in not a few parts of the Church is due chiefly to an ignorance or best a very superficial knowledge of religious truths," and appealed to the laity "to lend their valiant co-operation."

The church was menaced not only from without, "but also by the interior forces of weakness and decline."

"Men must be brought to be conscious of God's existence, of their utter depence on His power and love and mercy, and of their moral obligation to shape their holy lives according to His most holy will."

The Pope added that religious instruction was "indispensable not only for children in Sunday schools and growing youth in higher classes," but it should "hold a place of honor in college and university curricula."

Not An Abstract Idea

He warned against identifying God with the State in these words:

"God is not some abstract idea decked out by scholars in alluring language to catch the adulation of vain and self-centred men and women, nor is He to be identified with the more palpable institution called the State. which at times would presume to vaunt itself the source and end of all man's rights and duties and liberties.

"Before the beginning of all these things the only true God, your God, was existing. He transcends all, and all that is, derivers it's being from Him."

Venice Longs for Tourists Of a Golden Yesteryear

By JOHN P. McKNIGHT

Venice, Oct. 29. (AP)—Venice longs for the tourists of a golden yesteryear.

A nostalgic "now, before the war. . . ." is the invariable conversational gambit of all who, in happier days, catered to the thousands from every land lured to this water-set jewel among cities .

The withered old lady in St. Mark's Square who peddles tiny cornucopias of grain for the pirouetting pigeons, the ancient photographer who for a few lire will picture you smothered in the pigeons, the venerable guides with their encyclopaedic lore about the 120 Doges (Dukes) of the Venetian Republic, the gondoliers nodding beneath the bridge of signs. . .All shake their heads sadly and say:

"If only the tourists would come back!"

Here, as in perhaps no other Italian city spared the devastation of war, there is bitter, articulate, highly personalized resentment against Mussolini and his Fascists for taking Italy into war.

That is partly because Venice, historically international in outlook, finds repugnant the narrow nationalism of Fascist adventure; but more because the Venetians, practical folk, have been wounded sorely in their pocketbooks.

Venice is the tourist's paradise.

Guide books err on the side of exaggeration slightly, if at all, when they call this "an extraordinary city, unique in the world," and added:

"The purity of its atmosphere, free of dust, the importance and number of its monuments, the extraordinary richness of the works of art. . . .The greatness of its historical records, the originality of its life and customs, the play of the water which reflects and multiplies perspectives, forms and colors all render a stay here varied and extremely pleasant."

Necessity has mothered many great things, but few such as this refuge among the waters which the early Venetians made for themselves against the tide of barbarian invasion washing southward.

Upon this archipelago of 118 small islands, many of them no better than mud flats, Venetians have raised immense, ornate, enduring edifices sufficient to house nearly 300,000 persons because there is not earth enough to support the turning wheel, the Venetians interconnected their islands by bridge and boat.

Even the blase must wonder at the sight of all a great city's travel and transport handled by aquatic conveyance, at the view of tots perched precariously atop narrow gondolas, tooling them along with all the nonchalance of earth-bound youngsters riding bicycles.

$100 Demanded of Hunters Found With Jacklights Used For the Killing of Moose

Money Refundable if Case Not Proven by Quebec Dept. of Game and Fisheries

Quebec, Oct. 28 (CP) — The $100 payments that Quebec game wardens are demanding of hunters found with jacklights constitute a deposit, returnable when the case is not proven, according to Charles Fremont, general superintendent of the Quebec department of Game and Fisheries.

However, the burden of proot is on the hunter. He must show he had no intention of breaking the law. Although regulations do not state exactly what constitutes a jacklight the wardens are taking action against any hunter in deer, moose of caribou country who has a flashlight containing more than two small batteries.

Each case reported by game wardens is investigated by the department and by a Justice of the Peace. If the hunter is unable to establish his innocence, the $100 deposit is turned automatically into a fine of which the game warden collects $50 for his work.

In Montreal the Better Business Bureau said it had received only one complaint since the drive against jacklights began. That was from an American who claimed he was carrying only an ordinary flashlight.

Drive Showing Results

Mr. Fremont said the drive already was showing results. In the hunting territory of Mount Laurier-Senneterre, some 40 miles north of Maniwaki, 96 moose had been killed this season up to Oct 5. During the same period last year 265 moose were taken.

He said that C. de B. Boutillier, Montreal sportsman, had written he was "fully convinced that 80 per cent of moose killed by so-called sportsmen are jacked."

The official said his department had records showing groups of American tourists had come to the province's hunting zones equipped with refrigerators to keep venison from spoiling. This was not against the law, he said, but it indicated that some hunters were more interested in hunting for its food yield than a sport.

When a jacklight is flashed into the eyes of a moose, it remains perfectly rigid and is easy prey for hunters.

Rev. J.E. Griffith Theme Speaker At Y.P.U. Rally Held at Foxboro

By MAUDE BURKE

Members of twenty Young People's Unions in South Hastings District convened in Foxboro United Church, for their annual rally Saturday afternoon and evening. The theme of the rally was 'Our World With Christ,' and the group heard two direct challenging messages from the theme speaker, Rev. J. E. Griffith, of Bowmanville.

The afternoon's proceedings were begun with a sing song, which created the spirit for the worship service, led Centenary Y. P. U. with Evelyn Ray, Ferne Calvert, Dorothy Ray, and Margaret Hillis taking part. Rev. A. L. Shorten, minister of Foxboro church, welcomed the members as did President Douglas Harder, who presided during the afternoon and evening.

The theme speaker was introduced in the afternoon by Rev. A. C. McCallum. Speaking of 'Our World With Christ,' Rev. Griffith urged the Young People to put Christ in every area of their life and activities.

'Christ must be put in our educational system,' he stated, 'and in our Recreation.' 'We must build Christ into our social life—in the home and in the community Young People must create and maintain a consciousness of an eternal order; of a God who lives and who is the answer to every problem. No area of life is safe from the rocks unless it is steered by the cross of Jesus.'

Commission groups then went into discussion—Fellowship being led by Rev. J. D. Martin of Trenton; Citizenship in charge of Rev. A. M. Laverty of Stirling; Leadership Training, Rev. A. L. Shorten, Foxboro; Missions, Rev. J. R. Trumpour, Cannifton; and Recreation in charge of Marguerite Armstrong and Willehime Huffman. The findings of these groups were reported during the evening session.

Good Wishes Extended

Good wishes for the success and extension of Young People's work in the district were extended at the rally banquet by Mabel Archer, Fellowship Convener of the Bay of Quinte Conference and by Raymond Gunsolus, Presbytery President, who paid tribute to the work done by Douglas Harder and his executives and urged that all unions try to carry out the official purpose during the coming year.

The president of Foxboro-Carmel Y. P. U., Douglas Ross, brought greetings from his union.

Harold Hagerman expressed the thanks of the group to the W. A. of Foxboro Church who catered for the splendid banquet. Rev. A. M. Laverty of Stirling led in an enjoyable sing song following which the members went into the church for the evening program.

Report On Conference Given

Maude Burke gave a brief report of the Dominion Ecumenical Youth Conference held in Whitby in September. Following the reports of the commission Groups, the Resolution Committee, and the Nominating Committee, Rev. Laverty introduced Rev. J. E. Griffith who gave the second theme address on 'Our Date With Religion.'

'National necessity has impregnated our date with Christ,' said Mr. Griffith, 'and there has been a feeling of defeatism among many—that the war let youth down and that it is impossible to be a Christian in an unchristian world. But youth is too strong to die in its purpose—to let the days go by without doing something about keeping its date with Christ.

'The shallow optimism that things will be all right is entirely false. Things are not going to be right unless we put them right—and it starts with the individual. That's our date with religion.'

'Young people have a great responsibility to be loyal to the church as a whole,—not to their Y.P.U. alone. We must identify ourselves with Christ, thereby losing our identification, and let God work through us so that we are using His very power.'

'Although we are made in the image of God', continued Mr. Griffith, 'there are some instincts in us that must be controlled but there are also qualities in us which are limitless in their power for good if they are tied into and inspired by the Kingdom of God.'

'To keep 'Our Date With Christ' declared Mr. Griffith in conclusion we must be expendable,—taking Christ into every vocation; we must have concern for His cause, putting the personal element into secondary place; we must have endurance, keeping on though often defeated; we must be unconquerable for 'they that endure to the end shall be saved'; we must go along with Christ giving gladly and fully in a spirit of devotion and loyalty'.

Preceding the installation of officers was a worship service, having as the theme 'Service', which was led by Doris Scott, Luella Homan, Rosslyn Robertson and Maude Burke.

Impressive Service

The Candlelighting Installation Service conducted by Rev. C. A. Perkins, was most effective, and impressed upon all their individual responsibility of 'looking up' and 'lifting up'. It was a stirring sight indeed to see the large circle of young people, with candles glowing, form around the newly-installed officers and pledge to them their prayers and co-operation in this new year, and themselves anew to Christ and His cause. The hymn 'We Would be Building' was sung and Mr. Perkins concluded the service with prayer.

Mr. Douglas Harder, retiring president thanked his executive and the unions of the district for their loyal support and asked that they give that same support to the new president Mr. Harold Hagerman whom he introduced at this time.

Harold thanked the group for the honor bestowed on him and promised to do his utmost in the leadership of the district.

The singing of the theme hymn, 'Jesus Shall Reign', brought the successful rally to a close.

Rev. Perkins pronounced the benediction.

Christ Church Layman's Sunday

History was made in Christ Church on Sunday night when a layman occupied the pulpit and preached. It was "Layman's Sunday", and the entire service was conducted by men of the congregation, with the rector, Rev. G. Grant Sparling, giving the final blessing. Those taking part were Messrs. George Meades, Arthur Simpson, Arthur Young and Oliver Owen. The preacher was a prominent layman from Kingston, Professor P. G. C. Campbell of Queen's University. Taking for his text, "How shall they hear without a preacher", Dr. Campbell outlined the spiritual responsibilities of laymen, namely, to bring the non-churched into the church, where they may hear the gospel. "The fear and love of the Lord, both, need emphasis today", said the speaker.

At eight o'clock a.m. a corporate communion for the Men's Association was held, which was followed by a breakfast party in the parish hall, where an hour of fellowship was enjoyed. The rector reminded the men that their communion had turned them from being "lame" men into active "laymen".

Music for the day was in charge of Kaye Martin, assisted by Arthur Simpson. The choir of men and boys sang the anthem "Come Ye Servants of The Lord".

The flowers on the altar were in memory of the late Flight Sergeant Arthur Martin and the late Ruth McGlashon.

Centenary Church Plans Observance 78th Anniversary

Plans are in preparation for the observance of the 78th anniversary of the building of the Church on Sunday, November 3, with morning and evening services. The choir will render special music and the Rev. A. L. Shorten, of Foxboro, will be the guest preacher.

The church is situated on the Frankford Road between the 2nd and 3rd Concessions in the centre of a rich farming district. The church, substantially built reflects great credit on the early pioneers who built it. A plaque of stone fitted into the brick over the main entrance bears the inscription "Centenary M.E. Church 1868". The building is sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, and can accommodate 300. There are two aisles and three rows of pews. The exterior of the Church is of good enduring brick, with its spire, small in circumference, but high and commanding.

One of Centenary's early preachers was the Rev. Amos Campbell, who entered the ministry in 1863. He built a home on the lot beside the church for his retirement. It is now owned and occupied by one of the church's esteemed members, Mrs. Judson Kelley. There is a church membership of about 70, not including non-resident members. The Session is composed of Messrs. George Shortt, H. Roblin, J. Keene, R. S. Hart, E. Ray, D. H. Holton and R. Edmundson, clerk of Session. Stewards: Messrs. E. G. Hart, H. G. McLeod, R. Hall, G. Sills, Douglas Harder and Gordon Wood. Mrs. Lillian Hall and Mrs. B. Roblin are presidents of the Woman's Association and Women's Missionary Society respectively. Mr. Edgar Ray is superintendent of the Sunday School. The Rev. A. C. McCallum is the minister.

Ample preparations are made for the coming anniversary which promises to be another eventful experience in the life of the congregation. Many of its former members will, no doubt, plan to be present.

Marmora

Religious Education Council Elects G. Williams as Pres.

Marmora — (Special) — The annual convention of Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Townships' Religious Education Council was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Friday afternoon and evening. Mr. George Williams, vice president, presided owing to the unavoidable absence through illness of the president, Mr. W. J. Cottrell. Rev. E. M. Cadigan gave a hearty welcome to the delegates, led in the worship period and read the retiring president's report.

After reports from the treasurer and secretary had been given by Clayton Tummon, nominating and resolution committees were appointed. The O.R.E.C. representative, Rev. S. Littlewood of Orono, gave as his initial talk "New Methods for an Old Message." Rev. J. M. Brownlie followed with the subject "Appreciating the Hymns We Sing." Wholesome messages were then heard from two Sunday School teachers, Mrs. Harper Rollins, speaking on "Making Prayer Real" and Mrs. George Williams on "Making the Scripture Live." Illustrated Talk.

The representative followed with an illustrative talk on "Visual Aids for the Lesson Period."

Mr. George Watson handled the timely topic "Youth, the Sunday School and the Drink Problem." He was succeeded by Mr. J. L. Good who spoke on "Illustrating the Sunday School Secretary's Report." Rev. S. Littlewood in "A Book Talk," referred to the various publications of the O.R.E.C. Rev. C. C. Brazill closed the afternoon session with prayer. An excellent supper was served in the church hall by the St. Andrew's Women's Association. In the unavoidable absence of Rev. W. H. V. Walker, Rev. J. R. Holden conducted the worship service which opened the evening session.

Victim in the new series of daring British robberies was the Marchioness of Hartigan, daughter of Joseph P. Kennedy, former U. S. ambassador to London, and Mrs. Kennedy. Jewels worth $40,000 were stolen from her home.

Rev. S. Littlewood conducted a question box which proved helpful. Reports of the committees were then received. The slate of officers as submitted was duly elected and the new officers are: Officers Elected.

Honorary Presidents — J. F. Baker, W. J. Cottrell.

President — George Williams.

Vice President — Ross Hoard.

Secretary Treasurer — Clayton Tummon.

Executive — Mesdames Burton Morton, Jason Baker, Harper Rollins, William Lavender and George Williams; Messrs. G. Watson and J. L. Good.

Rev. J. M. Brownlie having rendered The Lord's Prayer, an inspiring address "If I Be Lifted Up," was given by the O.R.E.C. representative. He stated that our task is to lift up Christ. The Cross is the hope of the world even today. The atomic bomb is a problem. Even in the military use of it, we are smitten in our conscience. Some non-Christians of the East admire Christ but cannot understand our weak expression of the Christian character. The Christian religion is a fellowship that is deep and uplifting. "Do not demagnetize Christ and make Him less attractive" he admonished.

Rev. A. M. Laverty conducted the installation of officers and closed the convention with prayer. The United Church, Springbrook, will be the meeting place of the 1947 convention.

Splendid Work by Volunteer Workers Helped to Save Eire's Harvests

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, Oct. 29. (CP)—Eire's countryfolk now take a more kindly view of townspeople, who showed they were made of the right stuff by volunteering in thousands to get in rain-drenched harvests

Stenographers, soldiers, civil servants, bricklayers and carpenters were among those who gave up their spare time to aid the farmers and prevented losses from being as serious as had been feared. The equivalent of 120,000 man-days was provided by Dublin workers alone.

A feature of the volunteer movement was the success with which women worked. One farmer who received a Dublin stenographer with doubts said afterwards "that girl was better than a man-and-a-half after she stooked wheat all day, milked the cows, and then helped prepare dinner.

On another farm four women —two civil servants and two school teachers—worked all day in the fields, then milked 30 cows enabling male milkers to continue stooking.

"Examples like these broke down the farmers' antipathy toward volunteer workers, especially toward women," said an official who organized the volunteers.

No Desire to Unite

Busy Session: The Dail, Eire's Parliament, which resumed Oct. 23 after a three-month recess, has a busy program before it. Chief legislation is the Public Health Bill, proposing widespread changes in services.

Several Cabinet problems are engrossing Prime Minister de Valera. A Minister of Health must be appointed, and a successor to Dr. James Ward, parliamentary secretary to the minister for local government and Public Health.

Come On Over: Residents of Northern Ireland can hardly be expected to want to unite with Eire as long as the latter's social services and living standards are lower than those of the North, say members of Clan Na Poblachta, Eire's Opposition Party.

"Would a person of 65 who was receiving an Old Age Pension of 26 shillings per week in the six counties be anxious to forego that pension by coming under the benevolent rule of our government?" said Sean McBride, in an address at Corke.

BRIG. H. GRAHAM

To Take Staff Course.

2. He will be succeeded in his R.M.C. post by Maj.-Gen. J. F. M. Whiteley, C.B., C.B.E., M.C., of the British army.

3. Col. Dollard Menard, 33, D.S.O., of Montreal, director of infantry, will take a military staff course at the Ecole de Guerre, French military college at Paris. Later he will attend a "Special to Arms" course at the Ecole des Armes, along with officers of other United Nations.

4. It was announced recently that Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former commander of the 2nd Canadian Corps in northwest Europe, who has been attending the Imperial Defence College, will remain there as instructor. Appointments of Gen. Simonds and Gen. Whiteley are for a two-year period only.

Col. Menard will be succeeded as director of infantry by Lt.-Col. J. G. G. Charlebois of Ottawa, general staff officer at Quebec command.

Still on Secret List.

Still on the military secret list is the fate of Royal Military College itself. Last month it was announced that the war staff course there was being transferred to nearby Fort Frontenac as soon as necessary alterations could be made, but the future of R.M.C. was not disclosed.

The year-long course — first post-war staff college in the Commonwealth — was opened there under Brig. Smith last spring. Students from British, Indian, United States armies and the R.C.A.F. are attending and it was stated that the course, while primarily of a military nature, was signed to "develop broadened views and inter-service co-operation."

One matter still holding up Canadian policy on defence is the extent to which Canada may have to participate in any military force set up by the United Nations.

To Broaden Views

The year-long course — first post-war staff college in the Commonwealth — was opened there under Brig. Smith last spring. Students from British, Indian, United States armies, and the R.C.A.F. are attending and it was stated that the course, while primarily of a military nature, was signed to "develop broadened views and inter-service co-operation."

One matter still holding up Canadian policy on defence is the extent to which Canada may have to participate in any military force set up by the United Nations.

Observers here have suggested a strong possibility that Prime Minister Mackenzie King is taking a major part in defence talks with United Kingdom and United States officials.

Had a Good Talk

Interviewed in the United States capital yesterday, he said merely that he and Mr. Truman "discussed a great many things," but problems arising from joint defence of Canada's vast northern frontiers would likely be among topics of mutual interest to the two leaders.

Canadian interest in Arctic defence, highlighted by exercise muskox last spring, is paralled by keen United States concern for the security of the boundaries of her northern neighbor, and while there has been no official comment, further Arctic studies, possibly of a joint nature, are considered almost a certainty.

Canada's key position geographically and also in the development of atomic energy are other major factors in hemispheric defence, which still comes under study of the war-created joint Canada-United States Defence Board, whose co-chairman is Gen. McNaughton, also the Dominion's representative on the United Nations atomic energy commission.

PREMIER STALIN

His declaration that Russian troops in eastern Europe numbered 60 divisions constituted an answer to Mr. Churchill's suggestion, in the form of a question before the House of Commons last week, that the Soviet Union had 200 divisions there, on full war strength.

"In the west," Stalin said, "that is, in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, and Poland, the Soviet Union has at present in all 60 divisions (infantry and tank together). Most of them are not full staffed. There are no Soviet troops in Yugoslavia. In two months, when the decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of Oct. 22 this year on demobilization of the last contingent is put into effect, 40 Soviet divisions will remain in the above-mentioned countries.

Says Duke of Windsor No Longer Sets Fashions

London, Oct. 29 — (CP)—The Duke of Windsor "no longer is setting fashions, but following them," Chanticleer, Daily Herald columnist, said.

The former king now visiting England is "not the well dressed man he used to be," Chanticleer said, quoting the sentiment of British tailors as expressed by the editor of their trade journal, the Tailor and Cutter.

The columnist said the editor of the tailors' journal observed, "The line of his (the Duke's) jacket, which the editor hopes was made in France, is deplored as 'rather ugly to our English eyes.' "

SHOOTS SILVER FOX WORTH $200

St. Catharines, Oct. 29 — (CP) —A versatile nimrod, William Partington went pheasant-hunting Saturday. Disgusted when he bagged no birds, he went rabbit-hunting in the afternoon, bagged no rabbits, but came home with a silver fox — the first shot near here in at least three years.

The oversize, prime pelt which he will keep for his wife — was said to be worth $200.

NO STALLIONS IN BARN

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 —(AP)— Something of a turf novelty—a stable composed exclusively of mares and fillies—will campaign at Santa Anita Park this winter.

The Coldstream Stud, of Lexington, Ky., owned by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shaffer, of Chicago, will race the string here. The object is to see how they race in competition and to set up possible records for future broodmares.

Says Francis Forde Offered Overseas Post by Government

Canberra, Oct. 29 — (CP) — An authoritative government source said that Army Minister Francis Forde, who was defeated in the recent general election, had been offered an overseas diplomatic post by the Australian government.

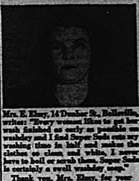
Informed circles expressed belief the post would be that of High Commissioner to Canada.

Hon. Alfred Stirling is the present High Commissioner for Australia in Canada.

MOUNT FOREST HOTEL BURNS

Owen Sound, Oct. 29 — (CP)— Fire believed to have started in the kitchen, gutted the Mount Royal Hotel at Mount Forest early Monday. No estimate of the loss is available. The proprietor is Oscar Hahn.

The fire broke out about 4:30 a.m. and five hours later only the walls of the modern brick building, which contained about 30 rooms, were still standing. The Harriston fire brigade assisted Mount Forest firemen in fighting the flames.



Mrs. E. Elmy, 14 Dunbar St., Belleville, writes: "Every woman likes to get her wash finished as early as possible on washday and I find Super Suds cuts my washing time in half and makes the clothes so clean and white, I never have to boil or scrub them. Super Suds is certainly a swell washday soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Elmy, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Wrestling Leafs May Become Movie Stars if Canadiens Carry Through N.H.L. Plan

Frank Selke Claims Toronto Team Getting Away With "Murder" on Defence

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Unless the guns in the latest feuding between the National Hockey League's two Canadian clubs are loaded with blanks, Montreal Canadiens may make movie stars of the Toronto Maple Leafs team they accuse of introducing wrestling on ice to hockey fans.

A novel twist was given the annual drum-beating last night when Frank Selke, manager of the Canucks, went the way of all other Leaf expatriates and turned on his old team mates in a way that should harm neither team at the gate.

"They (the Leafs, no less) have been getting away with wrestling tactics on the defence," said Selke, adding that he was "going to try to get a movie" of Friday night's game between the two in Montreal to show evidence.

The charge brought quick response from Connie Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, who credited his old cohort with having acquired a "third sight" in view of the fact that Canadiens and Leafs have yet to meet. But he didn't sound too bad about it.

All In Fun

The pattern seemed familiar, particularly when you hark back to the examples of other Leaf expatriates such as one Richard Irvin and one Murph Chamberlain when they started breathing the intoxicating Montreal air.

Six years ago, Irvin switched from Toronto to coach Montreal and simultaneously discovered his fair-haired Leafs were villains. All except Chamberlain, that is, who made the change with him and ever since has regarded his former team-mates as fortresses to be stormed.

It all takes on the spirit of fun, if viewed in the light that the league somehow has a blank to fill in before its matches of the weekend and the next games Wednesday night.

With only three points separating the front-running Leafs and the two clubs tied for last — Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings—the standing may get another shaking in that two-game card. Leafs visit Chicago with a chance to strengthen their grip on first place while Boston Bruins are at New York against the Rangers.

BILLY TAYLOR SCORING LEADER OF HOCKEY LOOP

Has Scored a Pair of Goals and Seven Assists for Nine Points

Montreal, Oct. 29 — (CP) — National Hockey League statistics released today showed Billy (The Kid) Taylor, smooth-skating centre of Detroit Red Wings, in sole possession of first place among the league point-makers with a pair of goals and seven assists for nine points.

A three-way tie for second place has Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Montreal Canadiens' winger, with five goals and an assist, Roy Conacher of Detroit with 4 tallies and two assists and Sid Abel, veteran Detroit forward, with three markers and three assists for six points.

Richard tops all other players in goals scored with five. The Rocket went on a scoring spree in Saturday's game against Detroit when he turned in the first hat trick of the season.

Frankie Brimsek, Boston Bruins' goalie, has allowed the least number of goals past him to lead the twine-keepers. In four games Mr. Zero has let in seven scores. Husky Bill Durnan of Canadiens has registered the only shutout of the season thus far.

Hal Jackson, Detroit's aggressive defenceman, leads the toughies with a total of 17 minutes in the penalty box, made up of one major and seven minors. Toronto's Bill Ezinicki is close on Jackson's heels for "bad man" honors with 15 minutes in the cooler.

The youthful Toronto Maple Leafs are in first place in the league's standing with two wins and a pair of ties for six points while Boston Bruins and Canadiens are breathing on their necks in a two-way tie for second place with five points.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Belleville Intermediate and Junior hockey teams, with a possibility of four Juvenile squads, will be operated under a single administrative head during the coming season, it was decided at a meeting of the Intermediate squad at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

• • •

The executive of the Belleville Junior Hockey Association will be the governing body and for the time being the junior and intermediate squads will be administered by that body with both squads electing managers and coaches. The matter of the juvenile teams will be dealt with later although a member of the Belleville Optimist Club present corroborated the statement that his club would sponser a squad of this nature.

• • •

Last year's officials and members of the Intermediate team arrived at the decision to throw in their lot under the junior executive after a lengthy discussion at which many pros and cons of the situation were aired. The decision was not unanimous as one or two were in favor of operating under a city sponsor who in late afternoon declared his willingness to finance the team.

• • •

The meeting last night was the result of a decision arrived at last week at the primary conclave of the Intermediate squad officials and players. At that meeting, after heavy discussion it was decided to invite members of the Junior Executive to get their views in operating both squads under one administrative head.

• • •

As a result, President Bill Dennis and Secretary Wally Berry of the juniors were present last night as representatives of their organization which held its annual in the Arena on Friday evening.

• • •

And their decision on the matter, arrived at, at their own meeting was short and to the point. "The Belleville Junior Hockey Club Executive has decided, rather than see intermediate hockey die out in the city, to take it under its wing." President Dennis told the meeting. "But," he added, "it will be administered by our organization alone. We shall govern both squads and quite probably four juvenile teams as well."

• • •

That was the decision of the junior exec. — and that is all there is to it. At this point Frank Butler of the Intermediate executive announced that, that afternoon Mr. Roblin of Roblin's Dairy had agreed to sponsor the intermediate team. That announcement precipitated a lengthy discussion which brought forth many suggestions and opinions both pro and con.

• • •

Eventually the junior representatives withdrew with the statement that they would hold their offer open until some decision on the part of the intermediates was arrived at. Later in the evening, a consensus of players and officials decided to throw in their lot with the junior organization, and regretfully decline the offer of sponsorship."

• • •

Personally, this corner is of the opinion that the decision to operate under the one governing body is a move in the right direction. No business firm ever failed because of too much co-operation. In sport it is more necessary than ever both off the field or ice as well as on them.

• • •

Operations under one executive head, that is an experienced executive, should go a long way to bringing good hockey to this city. And the executive of the junior squad a group of young men who have been together for the past five or six years and brought the junior brand of the pastime from the doldrums to a high plane in hockey circles in the district, not forgetting a fine state of solvency, should handle the situation on its stride.

• • •

With this group of influential men behind the various hockey organizations, there will be a marked upsurge in the calibre of hockey, public interest, and most important of all, the players themselves. Any squad that knows it is being handled competently from a business point of view and is being treated fairly and squarely will give of its best on the ice.

• • •

The move is more or less a pioneering one insofar as an overall administrative policy is concerned. There are other years beside this one and in our opinion, the decision to operate under one governing body is laying the foundation for the better hockey squads of the future. If the junior executive carries through its intention to administer four juvenile teams in the city, then the "feed-box" for future junior and intermediate squads is assured. And that is one of the most important factors in the whole set-up.

Belleville, like any other sports-minded community likes winning teams. It is easy to get out there and root for a squad that is heads above the opposition. But the true spirit of sportsmanship and civic pride is evidenced when residents and business men of the community show a willingness to assist those in charge to build a winning combination. That is what is needed here today.

• • •

The manly art of self-defence will be included in the winter program at the Y, so Ed. Shortt informs us. Part of the institution's scheduled physical department activities, boxing will take a prominent place there during the coming cold weather. And at the instructional helm of the good ship "Slug" will be none other than Eddie Lee, well-known former boxer and trainer.

• • •

The new boxing club will meet twice a week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7.30, the first session being slated for next Monday at that time.

• • •

Much water has flowed under the well-known bridge since Belleville has been represented in the A.A.U. of C. tournaments staged annually, but it is the hope of Mr. Lee and Y officials that some competitors for these tournaments may develop through the club's activities. Mr. Shortt states there is plenty of potential material in the city and prospects point to a large membership this winter.

• • •

Fencing, too, will invade the realm of sport in the city this winter. Sid. Rose, formerly of Toronto and now associated with McFee's Optometrists, has offered to give instruction in connection with the Y's winter sports program. Rose is well-known in fencing circles in Toronto where he was active in competition and instructing since he was a student at collegiate.

• • •

The opening session of the foils will be held on Tuesday, November 5 and the club will meet each Tuesday and Friday at 7.30 p.m. Already a number of enthusiasts have signified their intention of joining this new leaf in the city's sport book.

• • •

"Nastie" Natie Brown the paralyzing puncher whose flailing fists held Joe Louis off for ten rounds, gets a main bout here next Friday night. Brown cut up such a mess of didoes last week here when he just about slaughtered Jim Doble that the demand went up to have someone brought in to give him a trimming. Walter Gerow picked on Karl Krippler Davis as just the man to do the job. So Davis and Brown meet in Friday's feature at the Arena and before that one ends there may be "blood on the moon."

Phil Marchildon May be Traded To N.Y. Yankees

(By The Canadian Press)

The latest hot-stove league rumor that Phil Marchildon, Penetanguishene, Ont., southpaw who won 13 games this season for the cellar dwelling Philadelphia Athletics, would be traded to New York Yankees, was received by the principals involved with cautious comment last night. Marchildon was quoted at Penetanguishene as saying he was very interested and added, "It sure would be easier pitching to such guys as Doerr, Williams, Pesky and DiMaggio."

Larry MacPhail, president of the Yankees, said, "It's news to me," when questioned concerning the reports.

Toronto Huskies, first Canadian professional basketball team, are going to issue free passes to their opening game against New York Knickerbockers at Toronto Friday night, to any one who can look down on their six foot, 10 inch forward, George Nostrand. The manegement feels it can't lose on the deal.

Vince Hawkins, 23-year-old railroad worker last night won the British middleweight boxing title from Ernie Roderick in a 15-round battle to a decision at London.

At Adelaide, Australia, Don Bradman, one world's No. 1 cricket batsman, scored 76 runs for South Australia yesterday against an English touring team, Marylebone Cricket Club.

GAME ENDANGERED

Reno, Nev., Oct. 29 — (AP) — The southern color line on the football field today endangered the Nov. 16 game between Nevada and Mississippi State at State College, Miss.

Graduate manager Joseph T. McDonnell of the University of Nevada football team revealed that athletic officials of the southern school had written Nevada coach James Aiken that the appearance in the lineup of his two star Negro players would cause "an unfortunate commotion."

GROWTH OF FARM SYSTEM KILLING BASEBALL DRAFT

Nearly All Good Minor League Prospects Taken by Parent Club

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Oct. 29 —(AP)— It is becoming more apparent each year that baseball's annual selection, more popularly known among the fans as the draft, is dying a slow death due to the growth of the farm system.

With the chain system now in vogue, nearly all of the good prospects in the minors belong to major league teams, and usually they are draft proof. Before the season's close, the parent clubs "purchase" the contracts of their minor league hirelings, and of course when the annual draft meeting is held most of the players left for selection are those least in demand.

In the lengthy list recently submitted to big league club owners by commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, there are some 3,000 players eligible for Nov. 1, draft selection—largest in years—but it is difficult even for experienced judges of talent to find a dozen likely prospects.

The list includes Leroy Parmelee, John Hutchings, Johnny Riddle, Hugh Poland, Bud Metheny, Fred Frankhouse, Tom Sunkel, Pete Gray, Mike Garbark, Luke Hamlin, Jimmy Buchner, Alex Kampouris and Ray Harrel, Cy Buker, Chet Kehn, Don Lund, Les Burge, Garland Lawing, Bob Wilkins, Steve Peek and Johnny Moore.

Some of the more opulent clubs have declined to bid for any players. Last year 10 players were chosen. Of these only two— Gene Handley of Philadelphia Athletics and Mike Budnik of New York Giants—lasted out the season.

In 1945, 21 players were selected and all were returned to the minors, although three, Vance Dinges, Leroy Jarvis and Howard Moss, returned for another trial. That is in sharp contrast to other years when such draft gems as Grover (Pete) Alexander, Hack Wilson, Lefty O'Doul, Pinky Whitney, Curt and Virgil Davis, Red Lucas, Sam Gray, Hal Carlson and others were plucked from obscurity.

Halifax, Oct. 29 — (CP) — While football fans in the rest of Canada are packing the stadia to watch their favorites in action, names like Argos, Alouettes, and Rough Riders mean little to sport followers in the Maritime provinces.

The Maritimes —, among the last strongholds of English rugby football in Canada — haven't adopted the Canadian-style game but the growing popularity of the Halifax high school league which adopted the Canadian brand is building a player potential for future collegiate and senior league programs.

The high school circuit — now playing its second season — is made up of the city's three largest high schools and has been drawing large crowds.

So far the six big colleges in the seaside provinces have shown no inclination to take a whirl at the Canadian game, but as one Halifax school coach says, "When your boys enter college they'll b so well-grounded in Canadi football they won't be too eag to learn an entirely new game However, other Maritime schoo are sticking to rugger.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

To keep from taking a possible losing finesse, make use of the strip-and-endplay. In such a scheme, the endplay is the final part. In the operation of the endplay part, two acts are involved.

Of these two acts in the endplay, the lead by an opponent is the final one. The first of these two concluding acts is making that opponent take a trick in order to force him to lead.

At the time the opponent is forced to lead, you have planned it to be a lead to your advantage. You have figured it out that way in advance. You have timed it to come out that way.

For such an opponent to take a trick he must have a winning card. You have figured out in advance that he has this winning card. You have planned when he should take it. You have timed it that way.

Take a good look at these cards:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ 3
♦ K J
♣ 9

WEST
♠ None
♥ None
♦ 7
♣ 8 7 6

EAST
♠ None
♥ None
♦ Q 10
♣ P 10

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ 2
♣ 2

The four cards in each hand are left after nine tricks have been taken. South is declarer with hearts as trumps. The only trumps left are the one in south and the one in his dummy north hand.

In this spot, south is in the lead. Should he lead a diamond and finesse the jack in dummy? If he does east will get two tricks; one with a diamond and one with a club.

There is a different ending if south leads the club instead of a diamond. This will force east to win the club trick; first of the two steps to be planned in an endplay.

Being thrown into the lead, east is in the second step of an endplay. He must return something. Will it be a diamond or a club?

If he comes back a diamond, dummy gets back both diamond tricks. If he returns a club, south sluffs a diamond and dummy trumps. Or vice-versa. Declarer thus loses only the club and no diamond.

Learn how to plan to prepare such a situation.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 29 —(AP)— Even the most successful have secret ambitions; Oidfiplifkoy Ezio Pinza wants to be a movie star and he makes no secret of it.

"There is only one thing I have sought after in my life—outside of my wife," he confessed, "and that is a career in pictures. Everything else—opera, concerts—has happened for me, with no effort on my part. But now I am seeking something."

With Italian sweeps of the hand the singer explained that he is making progress toward his goal. He made his celluloid debut with "Carnegie Hall," in which he sings and acts a bit. He soon will be heard kidding with Crosby in Bing's radio show.

From appearances, Pinza should do all right in films. He has a handsome, aquiline face, and he is a better actor than most in opera, which is notable for the hammy quality of its dramatics.

A wide open letter to Fred Astaire.

Dear Fred:

Last night I saw you in "Blue Skies." It contains about as much entertainment as paramount could cram in 107 minutes. Okay, so the story is nothing that would a Pulitzer prize. But its inadequacies are offset by partner Bing's groaning, Joan Caulfield's blonde beauty, Billy DeWolfe's ridiculousness and Olga San Juan's charm. That brings us to your dancing.

The "Putting On The Ritz" number which you said would be your last in pictures, comes off with all the Astaire magic. How about it, Fred? Isn't it bad enough facing the atomic world of the future without being deprived of Astaire?

Sincerely, B. T.

ARMY AND NOTRE DAME STILL LEAD FOOTBALL PARADE

Many Unbeaten and Untied Teams Removed From List by Surprise Losses

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, Oct. 28 — (AP) — The football seismograph still reacted today from another series of upheavals that shook the pigskin world and toppled some of the United States' powers from their lofty positions.

The most resounding crash was heard from Texas where a fighting Rice 11 tumbled mighty Texas from the unbeaten and untied list with an 18-13 upset.

Heavy damage also was centred in the south where Wake Forest, beaten for the first time only a week ago by North Carolina State, blasted Tennessee's perfect record with a smashing 19-6 triumph, and a twice-beaten, twice-tied Virginia Tech squad handed N. C. State its first licking 14-6.

The six other major 11's with unbeaten and untied records — Army, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania, U.C.L.A., Georgia and Harvard — managed to keep their slates clean but there were plenty of other form reversals.

Hapless Mississippi clipped Arkansas 9-6; Southern Methodist blanked Missouri 17-0; Illinois regained prestige by nosing out Michigan 13-9; West Virginia tripped Syracuse 13-0; Kings Point's Merchant Mariners squeezed past Fordham 7-6; Underrated Cincinnati staged another surprise in conquering Michigan State 18-7, and Boston University's weak squad scored a moral victory in tying Brown's Ivy Leaguers, 14-14.

Army held scoreless on the ground for the first time since it started its 24-game victory string, took to the air to overcome the powerfully defensive Duke Blue Devils 19-0 at the Polo Grounds. Arnold Tucker's passing arm forged the victory, as he tossed three touchdown aerials, two of them to Junior Davis to keep the Cadets rolling.

Bill Goulding Wins Decision Over H. Jones

Toronto, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Bill Goulding of Oshawa, last night won a five-round decision over Harold Jones of Peterboro, in the main bout of an amateur boxing card at the Palace Pier, large dancehall in which a fight program was staged for the first time. Both boxers met the weight limit of 147 pounds.

In the semi-final bout at 140 pounds Val Mancuso of Toronto scored a six round decision over Charlie Morton of Timmins.

Keith Trosser of London, Ont., knocked out Tony Accera of Belleville at 1:40 of the second round of their three-round heavyweight preliminary. In a preliminary at 150 pounds Tommy Linson of Toronto scored a technical knockout over George Taller of Brantford. Taller failed to answer the bell for the third and final round.

B.C.I. JUNIORS DEFEAT ALBERT FOR SECOND WIN

After a scoreless first half that was productive of some heavy plunging on the part of both squads, the Belleville Collegiate junior gridders lowered the Albert College colors for their second consecutive win on the college gridiron yesterday afternoon by a score of 11-1.

Both teams made large gains on the ground in the first half but opposing lines held when in near scoring position and on some occasions there was a distinct Alphonse-Gaston spirit, as first one squad intercepted forwards, or recovered fumbles, only to have the opposition do likewise a couple of plays later.

Albert opened the scoring in the second half when Taugher, whose play was an outstanding feature throughout the game, kicked for a rouge. The Church Street lads however came back strongly and paced by the ramrod plunging of Milligan and the fine work of McBride, went over for two major scores one of which was converted.

Milligan and McBride were the outstanding players for the Townsend coached squad with Taugher, Yates, Jim Hagerman Adam and Wolfe turning in stellar efforts for the Collegians.

The teams:

Albert: Flying wing, Usher; halves, McGaughey, Taugher, Scudds; quarter, Hayman; snap, French; insides, Baker Yates; middles, Huffman, Wolfe; outsides, Bullock, Derbyshire; alternates, McRea, Ray, Adam, Cohen, Davidson, McRea, Leckie.

B. C. I.: Flying wing, Drury; halves, Whalen, McCormack, Galbraith; quarter, McBride; snap, Spiegal; insides, Green, Croll; middles, Milligan, Burley; outsides, Bone, Locke; alternates, Empey, Drumm, Creeggan, Davidson, Hurst, Keays, Cameron.

Officials: Forester, Donovan.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to do my homewerk against my will, and pop was smoking behind the sporting page, and ma said, What time is it, William, the Baffle Hour goes on at eight?

Sounding like good news to keep me from getting too serious about my lessens, and pop said, You've only not 5 minutes to suffer before you start to suffer.

Meening it was 5 minutes to eight, and ma said, Then Benny had better take his books back to the dining room where it'll be nice and quiet.

I should say so, pop said, and I said, Aw G, pop, why?

Because when those haunted soles on the Baffle Hour start screeming and strangling and shooting, you'll find it a bit difficult to concentrate on your school werk, pop said, and ma said, Of course, naturelly, it'll take your mind off your lessens, to say the least.

No it wont, ma, it'll do just the opposite, I mean it'll help me to keep my mind on my lessens, I said, and ma said, Such a statement, did you hear that, William?

I heard it, and I dont doubt he can back it up with a brilliant explination, pop said, and I said, Sure I can, pop, because if I'm way back in the dining room where I can just barely hear them screeming and shooting without knowing what they're doing it for, I'll start to wonder and worry and it'll interfeer with my lessens, but if I stay here where I'll know what all the screeming and shooting is about, I'll be able to do my homewerk in peace.

Sound logic, pop said, and ma said, The werst of it is, it almost seems to make sense.

The result being I did my lessens right there and pop went to reed his paper back in the dining room, away from the screeming and stuff.

3,600 EGGS SMASHED

New York, Oct. 29 — (AP) — Heard in Brooklyn-Queens night court when four men were arraigned on a charge they smashed 3,600 eggs during a fight in a butter and egg store: A magistrate—"This is certainly a scrambled mess." A defence lawyer — "That's no yolk." Another lawyer —"The biggest omelette in Brooklyn's history." Pending another hearing the four were paroled.

MINK COAT

CHAPTER 40

"She doesn't amember her own far-ther!" Pussy chanted.

Madge was all in white, white blouse, sturdy white shoes, pleated white skirt and white sweater. As to most blondes, it was infinitely becoming to her; and surely, Isabel thought instantly, the face that Madge turned to her had in it a quality of good-humored satisfaction and lively interest that did not indicate breakers ahead.

"Did you catch up?" she asked shyly, being introduced.

"No, we'll not catch up for some time," the man said, with a cheerful laugh.

"We made a very good start," Madge protested, distributing the cups and paper napkins on the card table.

"Here, you fellers need an extra chair," John said. He and Esme brought it and he placed it for her. "Climb up, pigeon," he told her.

"That's what he used to call you, years ago," Madge said.

"Quite a few years ago," the man amended it, with his ready laugh. "Take them by and large."

"Bad years for us all," Isabel observed.

"You're right," he said seriously.

"I was to say that lunch is ready," Isabel announced, when the children were well started.

"I'm ravenous," said Col. Somers-Cox.

"You'd better eat well," Madge told him, "you'll not get any tea."

"Oh, I think we could have tea today," Isabel said. "This is a special occasion."

"What d'you have instead of tea?" the colonel asked interestedly, as they walked toward the house.

"I'll see that you get tea," Madge told him consolingly. And again the Englishman laughed.

He was not supersensitive, Isabel thought, and he was too well pleased with life, as it opened up now before him, to do anything but accept good-naturedly the rather curious situation in which he found himself and his wife. John Somers-Cox had been dealing with grim realities for years; he had seen his familiar world blazing and crumbling beneath the wings of his plane; he had worn away endless months in the dreary monotony of a camp. To emerge from all this and find himself what he had always longed to be, a farmer in the Canadian Northwest, with a handsome practical wife and a pretty daughter, would seem to him like a miracle for the rest of his life. He asked no more.

If Madge had been dead, he might, in his handsome fiftieth year, have found another mate. But Madge wasn't dead, and all the bother of making new ties was to be spared him. As for her second marital adventure, he was inclined to regard that as rather a good joke on the old girl, and the American, too.

"John's like that," Madge said, in seeming apology to Isabel. But it was not real apology, and Isabel knew it. John was too typically British to be in any way displeasing to Madge; perhaps she had been more homesick than she knew for just this cheerful, eminently stoical and sensible attitude. "Nobody ever takes away from John anything that ever belonged to him," she explained it calmly.

She herself grew more English hour by hour. Phrases that the others could hardly interpret were exchanged between her and her husband, and quite openly Esme was requested to correct her pronunciation of such words as "bath" and "calf." Memories that went back to Madge's childhood were revived, and by such rapid degrees that the Hardistys had difficulty in recognizing her at all, Madge reverted to form.

John had borrowed a car, and Esme's grief at parting with Pussy and Catherine was largely assuaged by the thought of the trip in it with Mummy and Daddy. They stayed only three nights with the Hardistys at the farmhouse on the hilltop. No cheerful effort to be sensible, and view the thing from a practical standpoint, could offset the general tension. Dennis was almost silent, going off to work early on Monday and returning late, and Isabel, managing to keep busy all day, in Catherine's room or at the school across the lane, was hardly more communicative. Madge was turning the school over to her; Isabel went over there during the school hours and did her best with Ann Carter's help to grasp the essentials of the work; she was glad to have it in prospect.

Whether she would go on with it or not she did not know. Madge was eager to get away, and Isabel eager to help her—to end this phase of their strange relationship. She and Madge packed trunks, marked crates, talked all the time, without probing too deeply the emotions that lay beyond speech.

The last day was Wednesday. Everything was done, the problems of departure settled, the car filled with gas, and the bags stored in the back seat. It was a cloudless, fragrant day; the drive up the Redwood Highway would be a beautiful one, and while in Madge, Isabel saw only a sort of humorous acceptance of her destiny, she saw in the other two members of the Somers-Cox family such a deep solid assurance of content that Madge's future seemed as secure as their own.

The start was to be an early one; it was only eight o'clock when Dennis and John Somers-Cox began the inevitable hurrying of last-moment gulps of coffee and careful road directions on the part of Dennis, and careful acceptance of them on the part of John.

The men were out in the sunshine, with excited little girls dancing about them, when Isabel came to the head of the stairs and called Madge.

"Will you come upstairs a moment, Madge?"

Madge went up, with a puzzled and expectant expressions, and Isabel said, turning at her closet door to look over her shoulder:

"You know it's going to be cold, that Canadian winter?"

"I've a warm old coat I've had for years," Madge countered, a little bewildered. "And John says there are good shops in Vancouver."

"I suppose it was impossible to buy coats in England?"

"Oh, rather. But I'll do very well. Perhaps wait until we get there, in a year or two, and see what they have."

"Would you let me give you a coat as a good-by present Madge? It's not been worn much." The coat was in Isabel's hands as she spoke. Madge looked at it, looked at Isabel's face, looked back at the coat.

"You're not proposing to give me that coat?"

"That's just what I am."

"But that's nonsense," Madge said. But without conviction. Her serious eyes were alight.

"Try it on,' Isabel suggested. She held it open, and Madge with a shake of her blond braids and a stubborn jutting of her chin, slipped her arms into it. The silky supple folds fell about her richly and warmly, she rubbed her cheek against the soft fullness of the collar. "In this coat I should be the proudest woman in Canada," she said, under her breath. "I'll not let you do it."

"Then I'll send it away to some one else. I'll never wear it again." A long look passed between them.

"I see," Madge said then, thoughtfully. "I see. But my dear —". She was before the mirror now; her face curved into a smile in spite of herself. "I never had anything like this in my life!"

"Nor had I."

"Do you wonder — do you wonder that every woman in the world wants a mink coat?" Madge murmured, as if to herself.

"Until she gets it!" Isabel amended it, with a smile.

"When she gets it!" the other woman said. "It wouldn't be fair to expect any woman to put this on and ever take it off again!"

"That's what Avery Latimer knew, and I didn't," Isabel confessed. And again Madge's eyes had an enlightened smile in them. They had never discussed Isabel's second marriage; they would never need to discuss it, now. "It would make me very happy to have you have it, Madge," Isabel said.

"Well—what it makes me —" Madge murmured, still a little dazed. "Only it's too beautiful."

"Then that's that." Isabel's face was radiant as they went downstairs and when they parted the women kissed each other.

Dennis said, "I'm supposed to be back at the factory at one. Do you want to walk up to the ridge?"

"Yes, I think I do," Isabel said. "I'll change my shoes and put on a sweater."

So they were presently walking up the twisted old lane. Dennis gave her his hand over the deep ruts, and they rested with their arms on the fence. Below them was nothing but beauty, hills and homes and oaks descending to the bay.

The Somers-Cox car had long ago reached the level highway to the waterfront and was gone. The mink coat was gone; the long troubled dream was over.

"It's all ahead now, Dennis."

"All ahead. And all good," he said.

"It makes me feel awed and shy and grateful and ashamed, all at once," said Isabel.

She looked up obliquely to catch his grave look upon her, and his sudden smile.

"Is that a good feeling?" he asked.

"Yes, Isabel answered, "the best I ever had."

THE END.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 29 (CP)—Stocks moved into a downward slant in the early session to show losses for all four groups. Declines were light apart from a drop of 2 points for the gold issues. Trading slowed down to 940,000 shares for the first three hours.

Two penny stocks, Rush Lake and Jen-Rey, made further gains in active trading and there were other minor advances. Most of the secondary golds were down 5 to 15 cents from yesterday's closing prices.

The softer tone in the industrial section affected the papers, steels and utilities. Liquors, senior oils and foods held steady. Western oils posted insignificant changes.

PICTON

Mrs. W. Leavitt Seriously Injured In Car Accident

Picton, Oct. 29. —Mrs. Walter Leavitt was admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital, suffering from severe injuries as a result of an accident in the village of Cherry Valley. A passenger in a car driven by her husband, she suffered a broken collar bone, broken ribs and a punctured lung. The car, police were told, slued on the road and went into the ditch. Mrs. Leavitt was thrown out and the car fell on top of her. A gang of men was needed to lift the vehicle so that she could be moved. Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt were married last Spring at Halifax, N.S.

Ross Parliament escaped injury when his car was in collision with a McFarland Company truck. The car was making a left-hand turn into a sideroad, when the truck caught the rear end. The car was overturned in the ditch.

Hon. R.T. Kelley Sympathetic To Training Schools

Picton, Oct. 29. —Directors of Prince Edward County hospital found Hon. Russell Kelley, Ontario Minister of Health, sympathetic to their plea that nurses' training schools in smaller hospitals be made possible. These had to be discontinued several years ago due to new restrictions, and since then hospitals in these centres have had a difficult time financially as well as to secure sufficient nurses.

Dr. C. A. Publow spoke in praise of the standard of the nurses who had graduated from the Picton School of Nursing before it was closed. Board Secretary R. B. Small told of the former school here and the difficulties now felt.

Hon. Mr. Kelley took notes on the local situation and reiterated his earlier desire to help the smaller hospitals solve their problems.

In addition to members the hospital board, representatives of the medical profession, Women's Institutes, I.O.D.E., Hospital Auxiliary, Health Unit, were present at the discussion. While no definite commitment was made by Mr. Kelley, those present were encouraged by his interest in the situation.

Canadian Hockey Players In Scotland Finding Many Thorns in Believed Rose Bed

Boys Not Playing as Good Hockey as Was Played During War

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Falkirk, Scotland, Oct. 29 — (CP) — Ontario's young hockey players who came to this country to show Scotsmen how the game should be played have found a few thorns in what they thought would be a bed of roses. They didn't know it but they had two strikes on them before they came over.

The canny Scot who pays two to four shillings (40 to 80 cents) to see a game has a keen sense of playing value. He received his education in pre-Hitler years when Canadian imports and Scottish-bred players teamed up for some nifty playing.

This was furthered during the war when Canadian services clubs with such name players as Johnny Mowers, Jack Schmidt, Pete Langelle, Johnny Chad and other N. H. L. and A. H. L. stars performed.

Skepticism was expressed when the Scottish Ice Hockey Association announced it was importing 70 boys from Ontario, nearly all junior age, to form the nucleus of a seven-team league.

Shortly after arrival a pre-season tournament got underway. Sell-out crowds of 4,000 to 5,000 attended the opening game and Scotsmen went home shaking their heads — the boys wouldn't do.

A cry went up to "send them home and give us our own lads." The second and third games were the same. The fans sat in seats and yelled, in disapproval only, when play got rough.

Papers are Critical

Newspapers also were critical of the standard of play — all overlooking the fact the players had been travelling more than 2 weeks and most had never played together before. They expected mid-season form in September.

A further setback occurred when the players squawked about finances. The strangles hit the newspapers and one sports writer reminded the players they "have yet to establish the approval of fans," that their standard of play was "several notches below the pre-war class" and that Scotland wanted hockey not fights.

The imports got their hockey legs about the fourth game and now are giving full value and fans are warming to the newcomers. The play is not up to previous years yet but the imports are providing a wide open style.

Particularly enthusiastic about the players is F. J. Buck, manager of the Paisley Pirates, who says his team, captained by 19-year-old Jack Thaler, a native of Parkhill, Ont., who played two seasons with the Oshawa Generals, has shown "marked improvement."

"They are a great bunch of youngsters and will be hard to beat in this league," he said.

Although it's too early in the season to pick out stars, centre Johnny Savicky of Falkirk, leading goalscorer with Hamilton Juniors last season, is tabbed as a comer. Another is right-winger Joe Krmpotich, who played last year with Montreal Royals after a spell with Galt Red Wings.

ALBERT SENIORS IN FINE DISPLAY DOWN REGIOPOLIS

Local Collegians Outclass Kingston Squad Winning 22-1 While Juniors Lose 23-5

Kinston—Both Kingston and Belleville school football fans went home happy Saturday night. In an exhibition doubleheader staged on the Regiopolis field on Saturday afternoon, Regi fielded a junior team which decisively defeated the Albert College junior squad, while Regi seniors were almost as decisely beaten by Albert College seniors. The local juniors finished on top by 23 to 5, while the seniors went down to a 22 to 1 defeat.

Team of the day was the Albert College senior squad, unbeaten in its own league. Using U. S. style plays similar to those of Western University's potent aggregation, the lads coached by Johhny Hayman, put on an exhibition of football ahead of anything seen in even intercollegiate games here this year. Captain Don McCullough and Quarterback John Merkley threw over 20 beautiful bullet-like passes, and only six of them were unsucessful ,a fact much lamented by despondent rooters. The local senior team tried hard and might have made a much better showing against ordinary opponents, but the Belleville boys were far from ordinary.

Within two minutes of the opening of the senior game Albert College scored its first touch, with Outside Evan Zanchin picking up a blocked Regi kick on his own 50-yard line and running 60 yards. The convert failed. During the remainder of the game Belleville held the ball about 75 per cent of the time. There was a difference however in that the losing Belleville juniors appeared weak and inexperienced, while the defeated Regi seniors played well.

Albert College made its second touch from tricky fake placement which turned into a forward from Merkley to Jeff Scott. The convert try was successful. Towards the end of the second quarter Scott pulled down another forward from McCullough, and crossed the line again, with another successful convert following. The half ended with Albert College leading 17 to 0.

Regi's lone point was made when an Albert College player was trapped and dropped behind his own goal. The final tally of the game was made by Merkley, who plunged through from Regi's 10-yard line to score.

Regi—Halves, Ross, Jerome, Carolan, Conley; quarter, Gazeley; snap, Morrissette; insides, L. Fardella, Noonan; middles, Cole, Gow; outsides, Dunn, Pulsifer; alternates, Drake, Davila. Millan, Garcia, M. Murphy, Chabot, D. Murphy, McDonald, G. Fardella and G. Daly.

Albert College—Halves, McCullough, Lill, Scott, McHendry; quarter, Merkley; snap, Whiley; insides, McKenzie, Lemon; middles, Burns, Cook; outsides, Zanchin, Aitken; alternates, Spencer, Woodrow, Griffith, McIntyre Buttler, Nicholson, Shepherd, Sexsmith, Middleton, McCoy and Williamson.

"Policeman" For Louis Knocked Out By Curtis Sheppard

Baltimore, Oct. 29 — (AP) — Curtis (Hatchetman) Sheppard's dreams for a chance to meet Joe Louis in a world championship encounter here next summer were one punch closer to reality today.

The 194-pound Philadelphia slugger, cited eight days ago by the Maryland Boxing Commission as the top heavyweight contender, planted a left hook on the jaw of George Fitch to send the stocky, 209-pound New Haven, Conn., "policeman" for Louis to the canvas in a knockout in the fifth frame of a scheduled 10-round match last night only two seconds before the bell.

Fitch was chief sparring partner for Louis when the champ trained for his meeting with Tami Mauriello.

Rookie Halfback Has Best Average In East Football

Toronto, Oct. 29—(CP)—Rookie halfback Don Toms of the Hamilton Wildcats in the Ontario Rugby Football Union has the best scoring average in Eastern Canada football although he is in a second place tie for total points, scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press showed last night.

Toms has scored 11 touchdowns for 55 points in nine games for an average of slightly better than six points a game. Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial Big Four has most points with 59 in 10 games and Virgil Wagner of Montreal Alouettes shares second place in the totals with Toms, with 55 points on 11 touchdowns in 10 games.

Krol and Wagner stand one-two in the Big Four and big Ches McCance, placement-kicking artist from Winnipeg, is third. McCance, who plays for the Alouettes, has 44 points — all from placement kicking. He has eight field goals, a single and 10 converts.

Another import from the west, Johnny Lake of Toronto Balmy Beach, stands second to Toms in the O.R.F.U. with 36 points, and Doug Pyzer of Toronto Indians is third with 35.

Don Bark of the University of Toronto took the lead in the intercollegiate senior loop in Saturday's games. He now has 19 points. Three players are locked in a second place tie with 16 apiece — George Curtis and Bog McFarlane of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs and Dave Rozuniuk of Queen's.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 29 —(AP)— Joe Gootter, Paterson, N.J., Evening News says "pro boxing comes back to Madison Square Garden Friday with Johnny Greco meeting Tony Pellone. Last year it was Greco who also reopened the arena after the rodeo left the Garden. That's one way to follow the horses without losing money."

Oceans of Pooles.

Big Jim Poole is back in the National Football League as a standout with the New York Giants; one of his brothers, Ray, stands out just as far at end for Mississippi, and another, Barney, is regarded by no less an authority than Jack Lavelle as the best of Army's great pair of ends . . . Their cousins, Oliver, a tackle and Phillip, a guard, also play for Ole Miss and Jackie is with the freshman squad at the same school . . . Phil and Jackie are brothers and they have still another brother, Flemin, who is helping out as equipment room assistant at Mississippi while an injured shoulder keeps him from playing . . . Jack Mara, the football Giants' boss, hopes to have most of them within a few years —figuring, probably, that if he has so many Pooles the opposition will be at sea.

NEW SCORING LEADER

New York, Oct. 29 —(AP)— The American Hockey League had a new scoring leader today in Norm Burns of the New Haven Ramblers.

Burns, right winger on the second place eastern division sextet, took over the leadership at the end of the second week of campaigning with a total of 15 points on six goals and nine assists.

Ralph Almas of Indianapolis, deadlocked for the goalie lead with Jim Henry of New Haven a week ago, assumed sole control on a 2.14 average for seven games.

The loop's "bad man" role was taken over by Jack McGill, Hershey defenceman, with a total of 27 minutes in penalty box time.

He was remanded until Nov. 1 for preliminary hearing and taken to county jail.

EVIDENCE IS 'DEAD'

San Gabriel, Calif., Oct. 29 — (AP) — Harry Wooding was accused of operating a roulette-type wheel which paid off on the basis of which holes two rats stumbled into after being spun around. The state alleged some of the holes were stuffed with cheese. "Bring on the evidence," Justice R. J. Keller ordered. "The evidence," confessed District Attorney John C. Galliano, "has died." — "Csae dismissed," retorted the judge.

So many people want new Packards, and there are so few coming through!

But you can't build cars without materials!

The factory is straining every effort to get more parts and material so production can be increased.

We're doing our best!

Some cars have been shipped with wooden bumpers, some without window regulator handles. This costs the factory a lot of money, for it means that replacements must be shipped and installed later.

Under such difficulties, it's a wonder the folks at the factory have done as well as they have. This year, compared to the same period of 1941, Packard has built a higher percentage of cars than the industry as a whole.

We don't dare predict!

Our customers have been so patient that we'd like to sound some optimistic note.

Wide Extension Of Rent Ceilings In 88 U.S. Areas

U.S. Action Has No Parallel in Canada

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—A wide extension of rent ceilings effective Nov. 1, was announced today by the Office of Price Administration.

The agency announced that 88 more rental areas with a total population of more than 3,500,000 will be brought under rental ceilings Friday.

Eighty-one of these areas are being controlled for the first time while rent ceilings are being restored in the remaining seven.

COUNTRY-WIDE HERE

By GEORGE KITCHEN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 30 (CP)—Canadian rental control officials today viewed with interest United States action to extend rent ceilings to new areas but said this had no parallel in Canada as the Dominion's rent restrictions already are country-wide.

Commenting on a Washington dispatch which reported that the Office of Price Administration would bring 88 more rental areas under U.S. rental ceilings this Friday, a spokesman said this indicated the difference between the Canadian and American systems.

Instead of a piecemeal method of bringing districts under control, Canada has a blanket ceiling across the country, with rentals frozen approximately at their rates of the early war years.

The spokesman said the Canadian Rental Administration, handled through the Prices Board, at the moment was "quiet" with no immediate indication of any changes or innovations.

There have been rumors from time-to-time recently, that an over-all 10-per-cent boost would be autharized in rental ceilings, but it was stressed that this was not under consideration simply because any such increase would have a disturbing effect on the government's delicately-balanced price and wage control program.

Two Categories

Roughly speaking, Canada's controls fall into two categories—rental ceilings and what might be termed eviction control.

The ceiling restrictions mean that rents across the country for all types of accommodation generally are pegged at early - war rates, although they are subject to decrease or increase upon review by Prices Board officials on request. Any change usually is based on a reduction or increase in services given by the landlord.

In the case of newly-constructed accommodation, the Board sets the rental after examination.

Eviction control is the instrument which prevents a landlord from forcing a tenant to vacate his premises. The only provision is that the tenant pay his rent according to his lease and be reasonably well behaved.

When first introduced, eviction controls permitted a landlord to force the tenant to vacate on six months' notice if he or some member of his family wished to occupy the premises. In 1945, however, even this concession was rescinded in a general tightening of controls.

Canada also has a host of other regulations, including safeguards against unfair practices whereby landlords might demand rewards and advance rent over a long period or make the renting of a home conditional upon the purchase of furniture.

Closely related with rental control, although they come under another government department, are the emergency shelter regulations, administered by Wartime Housing, Ltd. These regulations deal with extreme cases where families are virtually on the street and give the administrators wide powers, including authority to force the owner of a vacant accommodation to make it available for use.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 30—(CP)—Synopsis: An intensifying disturbance centred near Fort William is moving rapidly northeastward causing rain over most of northern Ontario and Haliburton. Southern Ontario will again enjoy Tuesday's unseasonably high temperatures today but cooler weather moving eastward from the prairies is expected to lower temperatures to a more seasonable level by early Thursday. Scattered showers early Thursday will accompany the change to cooler weather.

Quake Recorded May Be Near Aleutian Isles

Weston, Mass., Oct. 30 (AP)—A moderately strong earthquake, apparently in the vicinity of the Aleutian Islands, was recorded on the Weston College seismographs at 2.58:33 a.m. E.S.T. today. The station said the 'quake, lasting two hours, was centred 4,070 miles northwest of Boston.

Ottawa, Oct. 30 (CP)—An earthquake "of moderate intensity" was recorded early today at the Dominion Observatory here but its location could not be determined from the local record, officials said.

The first tremor was noted at 2.57 a.m., E.S.T. distance to the quake's epicentre was 5,950 kilometres or about 3,700 miles. Time at the origin was 2.48 a.m. Tremors were recorded here for about two hours.

"He could not determine the direction of the quake from the record here," said an observatory official.

Priest Declares Report Untrue

Timmins, Oct. 30 (CP)—Rev. C. E. Therriault of Notre Dame De Lourdes Roman Catholic Church here today termed a report that he had been halted by striking bushworkers "absolutely untrue."

The story, carried by The Canadian Press, said Father Therriault, who charged Sunday in a sermon to his parishioners that the Lumber and Sawmill Workers (A.F.L.) were lead by "a bunch of Reds beht on stirring up trouble," had been prevented from visiting former parishioners by union picketers at a road block.

"I saw a group of young boys with picket cards on their backs," Father Therriault said today. "I recognized several of them as lads I knew and felt sorry for them."

He said he sat watching the picketers for several minutes "lost in reverie" and then went on his way "absolutely without incident or interruption."

PRIEST SLUGGED

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 30—(CP)—Two gunmen stepped up to Father Silvanus Jowdy, priest of St. Peter's Church, last night as he was leaving the church and slugged him over the head with a revolver when he refused to give them any money.

He was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital where he received treatment for five lacerations on the skull. Father Jowdy was confined to hospital today for further observation.

PRISONER RECAPTURED

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 30 — (CP) — Albert Urlewicz, German prisoner of war, was recaptured here yesterday less than 24 hours after he escaped from a work project at Fingal, Ont.

Several persons became suspicious of Urlewicz when they saw him loitering about a dock here, they told police, and his accent aroused attention.

Makin Challenges Molotov View Veto Loss Would Cause UN Collapse

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 30 (CP)—Australia today challenged Foreign Minister Molotov's assertion that elimination of the Big Five veto power would result in collapse of the United Nations.

Norman J. O. Makin, Australian delegate, took exception to Mr. Molotov's charge yesterday that certain countries are campaigning for elimination of the veto with the aim of world domination.

"This is a serious and totally unwarranted charge," declared the Australian delegate, one of the leading advocates for restriction of the veto.

Mr. Makin was the first to speak in general debate since Mr. Molotov's 68-minute speech at the close of yesterday's session, and the Australian statement marked the first phase of joined debate in the Assembly.

The so-called general debate which began last Thursday thus far had been a series of policy statements from the chief delegates on pending world problems. However, several chief delegates speaking today withdrew their prepared texts for alterations after Mr. Molotov's speech.

Mr. Makin said the charge that the veto issue is being used to build up certain powers "is nothing but a distortion of the facts."

The Russian Foreign Minister yesterday verbally smashed at the United States, Britain and all who have interfered with Russian ideas, but softened his belligerence with an appeal for world disarmament.

MOLOTOV SPEECH RAISES FEARS OF NEW TENSIONS

Smashed at U.S. And Britain But at End Appealed for World Disarmament

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

New York, Oct. 30 (CP)—Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia today held the United Nations spotlight as a result of an hour's tirade in which he verbally smashed at the United States, Britain and all who have interfered with Russian ideas, but softened his belligerence with an appeal for world disarmament.

His proposal that the United Nations General Assembly give a lead in world disarmament came three hours after Canada's delegation leader, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, had suggested that the Security Council's peace enforcement units should be set up without delay so that there could be a general reduction of national armaments.

It was noticeable that Mr. Molotov's disarmament proposals occupied the last minute of a speech lasting more than an hour and were not elaborated.

The bulk of his speech had been an unprecedentedly bitter attack upon Russia's wartime Allies and the chief contributors to her success at arms.

Manoeuvring With Selfishness

He charged that the United States was manoeuvring with "selfishness" to maintain a monopoly on atomic energy, but warned that other countries also might have atomic bombs.

He charged that those numerous U. N. members who were opposing the Security Council veto provision which Russia alone had used extensively were attempting to "shake the foundations" of the United Nations.

Mr. Molotov had bitter words for Winston Churchill and his friends in Britain and North America as enemies of the United Nations and of peace.

There was widely varying reaction to the Russian speech but all agreed that it was powerful and aggressive.

Newmarket, Suffolk, England, Oct. 30 (Reuters)) — Sayani, an outsider, today won the Cambridgeshire Handicap—England's autumn classic, Claro was second and Toronto third in the 34-horse field. Sayani started at 25-1, Claro 100-9 and Toronto 28-1.

In a blanket finish, Sayani came to the end of the 1 1-8 miles a head before Claro, with Toronto the same distance behind in third place.

The finish brought disappointment to two Canadians, "Here's Hoping" and an "A. Bialous," who held tickets on Signalman and Le Bosc Giard respectively in the Irish sweepstakes on the race.

BEAULIEU STOCK BREAK ARTIFICIAL BUT NO FRAUD

Voluminous Report on Transactions in Market Given by Commission

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Big gyrations of Beaulieu Yellowknife Gold Mines Ltd. stock last spring resulted today in a voluminous report from the Ontario Securities Commission which declared "an artificial market" had been created, that one operator was debited with $828,378 before the market crashed, but that there was no clear evidence of fraudulent operations.

An independent legal opinion is being sought by the commission, however, as to whether any further action should be taken.

President J. B. White of the Toronto Stock Exchange said the report would be carefully considered by the exchange governing committee "with a view to ascertaining if any steps can be taken to prevent a recurrence of such an incident."

Shares when first offered to the public sold readily at 30 cents on promising drilling reports. Last March the market rose from 78 cents to $1.44. In April it reached a top of $2.65 and then cracked on general selling following market rumors.

The securities commission report gave the entire history of Beaulieu. The claims were staked in 1939, 45 mles east of Yellowknife town by Sam Hansen and associates, and the Norman Tungsten and Gold Mines Ltd., was incorporated to develop the property. A small mill was erected in 1942 but lack of finances halted operations.

Obtained Option

In March of 1945 Emil Schnee, mining engineer, obtained an option for $25,000 and 300,000 shares in a company to be formed. Schnee interested Samuel Ciglen, Toronto lawyer and the Beaulieu Company was organized. Schnee, Ciglen and Isadore Levinter each held 20 per cent, I. J. Isbell 15 per cent, and Benjamin Luxemberg and Douglas Manly each 12 1-2 per cent. This group transferred the property to the new Beaulieu Company for $50,000 and 1,000,000 shares.

Shares were sold to the public and $150,000 was turned into the Beaulieu treasury. The stock was listed on the exchange and became an active trader. The Ciglen group made a distribution of $52,250 to its members from stock markets.

CANADA FACING WORST INFLATION SINCE THE WAR

Donald Gordon Will Step Into Picture With Series of Pep Talks

By H. DENT HODGSON

Ottawa, Oct. 30 (CP)—Canada is faced with its worst inflation threat since early in the war and Donald Gordon, plain-spoken Prices Board chief, has decided to step once more into the public relations picture and give the Dominion a series of pep-talks.

In a series of five nation-wide broadcasts which will constitute the most concentrated amount of public "selling" he has undertaken since the campaign for institution of price stabilization in 1941-42, Mr. Gordon will discuss price control generally, foods, clothing and rentals, and the contentious subsidy question.

Representations and inquiries to the board show that concern and uncertainty about the future of controls in the Dominion are greater even than early in the war when ceilings were first imposed. Officials lay the reason for this anxiety to three main factors, which have developed threatening proportions in recent months:

1. The decontrol program in the United tates where prices on some commodities have soared since ceilings were removed.

2. Representations by countless groups which have urged removal of controls immediately affecting themselves but at the same time protested against removal of related controls which would affect them adversely in other ways.

3. Concern by the general public over the lifting of basic controls like rent, food and clothing, and consequent misleading rumors and speculation.

It is expected Mr .Gordon, who launched the original price control program with a succession of movie shorts, public addresses and radio talks, will clarify greatly the government's policy on the price stabilization program in his series of broadcasts starting Nov. 1.

The talks will embrace not only an explanation of the present difficulties facing the price administration but also are expected to provide a definite picture of the governments future plans for decontrol.

Each 15 minutes in length, the broadcasts will be carried on the CBC Eastern Network at 7.45 pm. E.S.T.

The U.S. decontrol program in particular has Canadians worried because Canada's economy is inevitably bound to that of her southern neighbor. Increased prices due to lifting of C.P.A. regulations mean, in many cases that Canada will have to increase subsidies on needed imports if the price of such goods is to be kept at basic levels.

BUSHMAN FOUND RESPONSIBLE FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Mrs. Noela Denommee Found Strangled To Death in Montreal Rooming House

Montreal, Oct. 30 (CP)—Raoul Bazinet, 40-year-old lumberjack who came to Montreal from Parent, Que., Sunday, today was found criminally responsible for the death of Mrs. Noela Denommee, 31, found strangled last night in a St. Denis Street rooming house.

Bazinet appeared at a coroner's inquest a few hours after giving himself up to police.

Came For Good Time

Police said the lumberjack told them he came to Montreal for a good time after two months in the Northern Quebec woods. He had known Mrs. Denommee previously and spent Monday evening with her in a night club.

Then, according to his story, he went with the woman to the St. Denis Street house.

"I don't remember much that happened," he was quoted as saying. "I was drunk and I remember seeing her in blood lying across the bed."

Police said Bazinet, dressed in lumberjack's clothes, walked into police headquarters this morning and told Constable Romeo Lalonde: "You are looking for the man of St. Denis Street."

Constable LaLonde turned him over to Lieut. Armand Rodrigue, officer in charge, and Bazinet repeated his remarks: "You are looking for the man of St. Denis Street." After a pause, he added: "The murder of St. Denis Street."

Man Detained.

Sgt. Detective Armand Picard and Russel Senecal, who were working on the case and who had a picture of the man who allegedly spent Monday night with Mrs. Denommee, walked in at that time and detained Bazinet.

A black notebook and two theatre ticket stubs had given the Montreal homicide squad a lead in the slaying of Mrs. Denommee and the search for the man who was with her in the rooming house.

A girl who went to the couple's room last night to change the linen discovered the woman's naked torso sprawled across the bed. One leg and an arm dangled to the floor. A hand towel that had strangled her was bound tightly over the woman's face.

The black notebook was the register which the woman's companion signed at 5 o'clock yester-

Cool Air Wave From West States Expected to Send Mercury Downwards

Toronto, Oct. 30 — (CP) — It was just 92 years ago — in 1854—that residents of Southern Ontario basked in an Indian Summer that could approximate the present "heat wave."

The temperature in Toronto and vicinity today was 70 degrees — the warmest since 1854 when the mercury hit the 65 mark.

However while Torontonians went coatless, Northern Ontario was less fortunate as snow and rain coated the area.

The weatherman warned today that the warm weather in Southern Ontario would be short-lived as a wave of cool air from the western states would probably centre around the area by midnight tonight, sending the mercury on the downskid.

3 British Soldiers Killed by Dynamite Blast in Palestine

Armed Bandits Rob Polish Cashiers in Street Holdup

Jerusalem, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Three British soldiers were killed and 15 wounded early this morning when a road culvert was dynamited under a military convoy, Palestine police announced today.

The blast occurred at 5:40 a.m., in the Sheikh Jarrah quarter of Jerusalem. Police said the dynamite charge apparently was electrically detonated.

The explosions came about an hour after the youths stormed the station from two taxicabs in a hail of gunfire with the explosives.

The station had been evacuated before the blasts.

A road mine which police said was set by the Jewish underground exploded under a military convoy here earlier today, wrecking two army trucks, killing two soldiers and injuring 10.

Troops and police launched a search immediately and soon announced discovery of a "fairly large" cache of illegal weapons in the Jewish settlement of Givat Shaul, just outside the city. A curfew had been clamped on the settlement Oct. 9, after a similar explosion on a nearby road.

Curfew Orders Amended

Jerusalem's curfew orders were amended to extend from 6 p. m. until 7 a.m., rather than from 6:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m. The curfew was extended to include the Nahalot Shimon quarter, a Jewish area where the attack occurred. Police first said three soldiers were killed and 12 injured, but later revised the casualty list.

Another outbreak of violence was reported from the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, where four armed men robbed two Polish cashiers of $2,000 in a daring street holdup.

The Tel Aviv robbers, who used smoke bombs to keep passersby and police at bay, missed a satchel containing $48,000 in their hurry to escape. The money was being taken from a bank to the Polish refugee committee office.

Jewish Underground

An officer in charge of police at the scene of the Jerusalem explosion attributed the blast, which was said to have been detonated electrically, to a Jewish underground organization. It occurred only a few hours after the Inner Zionist Council had denounced bloodshed "as an instrument of the Zionist political struggle."

The first truck in the convoy was destroyed, another was damaged when it crashed into the wreckage.

The military, meanwhile, said the R.A.F. and British Navy had renewed their search for a refugee ship supposed to be bearing immigrants which repeatedly has been reported near the coast but not sighted as yet.

Police reported also that a British jeep struck a road mine during the night near Raanana, 14 miles north of Jerusalem, and one soldier was slightly hurt.

ONE-HOUR PROTEST STRIKE IN ALL SYRIAN CITIES

Damascus, Oct. 30 — (AP) — The Palestine Defence Committee in Syria announced today it had called for a one-hour protest strike in all Syrian cities Nov. 2 — anniversary of the 1917 Balfour Declaration in which the British government recorded itself in favor of a National Jewish homeland in Palestine.

$130,000 LUMBER FIRE

Fort William, Oct. 30—(CP)—Loss estimated at about $130,000 was caused by fire which swept through part of the sawmill of the Great Lakes Lumber and Shipping Company last night.

The fire, believed to have been caused by an overheated bearing, broke out in the dry kiln building and firemen battled the flames until early today before bringing it under control.

Approximately 500,000 feet of lumber was lost in the fire. The main building of the saw mill was not damaged.

Court Acquits Lieut. K. Gourlay

Cairo, Oct. 30 (Reuters)—Lieut. Kenneth Gourlay, 27-year-old Royal Army Ordnance Corps officer and Oxford graduate, today was acquitted of charges of defamatory libel against the British 6th Airborne Division in Palestine and against Sir John Shaw, former chief secretary in the Palestine government.

The court's decision was announced by the President, Col. Lord Bingham of the Coldstream Guards.

Legal argument today, third day of the unusual court martial, dealt with whether Lieut. Gourlay had been given permission to write an article published in the army newspaper Citadel Courrier last Jan. 18 and which gave rise to the charges.

Defence counsel Edward Haim, Cairo barrister, contended the article was written in response to an invitation and that consequently there could be no ground for disciplinary action.

Mr. Haim further argued that the statements in the article were made without malice and were privileged.

Summing up the case, the Judge Advocate told the court that the fact that Lieut. Gourlay was invited to write the article, or his submission of the article to authorities, could not in terms of law be regarded as a defence in criminal libel, but could be considered as mitigating circumstances in the event of Gourlay being found guilty.

Dr. Bert Howard Speaks on Boys At Optimist Club

"You can't buy souls with money. Our boys are wanting in a very human way," was the theme of Dr. Bert Howard's address delivered to the Belleville Optimist Club last evening at their regular meeting at the New Queen's Hotel. The fate of humanity is in the hands of the youngsters of today and it is of terrific importance that we guide them in their ways.

Dr. Howard stressed the responsibility of assuming the slogan "Friend of the Boy," and pointed out that although money and money making projects are a necessary part of a service club's work, that if we hope to truly influence and make a lasting impression on these boys who will take our places in the future, we must consider their personal happiness and individual personality.

Dr. Howard went on to state "These are the boys who will or will not carry out the policies that that you have formulated, bring into reality the treaties you have planned, who will control our cities and towns, churches, schools and prisons. All your work will be judged, praised or condemned by their actions. The manner in which these boys conduct their future positions can be greatly influenced by the ideals which you instill in them today and this is your responsibility."

The speaker was introduced by Optimist Murray Mitchell and appreciation was expressed by Optimist Stan Wiggins.

Previous to the speaker's address, Optimist Week Chairman Murray Mitchell gave the financial report for the week's activities and Chairman of Boys' Work Perry Everett related the events of the International Boys' Work convention held in Toronto two weeks ago.

Bogus Five Dollar Bill Circulated In the City

First evidence of the bogus five dollar bills which a week ago were reported as being circulated in the western part of the province was seen in Belleville Tuesday afternoon when a teller at the Dominion Bank singled one out as he was checking the day's receipts. The teller to spot the bogus bill was Robt. Redner.

Concentrating on one outstanding defect in the counterfeit bills, Mr. Redner noted the difference in the appearance of the King's eyes as he leafed over the pile of currency. Then checking other known defects it was definitely established the bill was a bogus one.

Although sufficiently accurate to pass without detection when tendered separately, the difference between the bogus bill and a genuine one is quite apparent when the two are compared. Most notable differences are the dark lines beneath the King's eyes, the maple leaves are of a definitely lighter hue, while the serial numbers are of slightly smaller dimensions and the bill itself is slightly shorter than the genuine.

On the back of the bill the coloring is darker than on the original and there is not the same definition between the body and the staff of the figure pictured on the back.

Following its detection at the bank the bill was taken to other banks in the city for examination by employees.

The auditorium of St. Michael's Academy was filled on Sunday evening by parishioners and friends to bid farewell to Rev. A. L. O'Donnell who has been appointed to the parish of Trevelyan after serving as assistant of St. Michael's Church for almost five years.

The chairman, Monsignor Nicholson expressed the universal regret at the departure of Father O'Donnell who had won the trust and confidence of all by his constant devotion and resplendent example. Mrs. George Wilson read an address on behalf of the parish testifying to the esteem and affection in which the departing priest was held. Mr. Maurice Callaghan made the presentation of a substantial purse. Fr. O'Donnell responded feelingly referring to the unvarying kindness of which he had been the recipient from Monsignor Nicholson, the members of the parish and many friends not of his faith in Belleville.

Short addresses were given by Rev. C. E. Baker, Mr. M. Callaghan and Mr. Austin Dutton. Selections on the xylophone were given by Mr. Wm. Grant and Miss Helen, accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Grant. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Theresa Meagher, with Mrs. Chas. Meagher at the piano. The meeting concluded with singing of the National Anthem.

Dave Harding and Companions Leave On Schooner for Tropical Regions

It is a far cry from the controls of a big bomber roaring through Atlantic scud, to the wheel of a large schooner lazily nosing the blue water of tropical seas.

This dream voyage conjured by four RCAF men during the war is now close to realization.

One of them is former Group Captain Dave Harding, well-known grid star and athlete and former commanding officer of the now defunct No. 5 Initial Training School, RCAF, which was housed in the buildings of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The popular "Dave" and his three flying pals have secured a 75-foot Nova Scotia rigged schooner called the "Chimon" and in the near future will leave from Owen Sound to Detroit on the first leg of a journey that will take them to the Bahamas, and the Gulf of Mexico. There she will be disposed of and a smaller vessel secured which, it is hoped, will take the intrepid adventurers to the Virgin Islands Barbadoes, and hence to Brazil and the Amazon River. The quartet expects to be gone a year.

The "Chimon" will proceed to Oswego, N.Y., where her 75-foot masts will be removed prior to tackling the 300-mile jaunt through the Erie Canal to New York City. Then for the open sea, and stops at Newport News, Miami and Pensacola. She carries 3,000 square feet of sail and ships a diesel engine which will send the schooner through the water at 7.5 knots.

Members of the expedition besides Harding are, Flight Lieut Jack Cunningham, Clinton, Ont., Squadron Leader Glenn Wannacott, London, Ont., and Flight Lieut. Bus Gorbett, of Owen Sound. Three crew members have been added.

Junior Farmers Of Thurlow Now Total 81 Members

The Thurlow Junior Farmers held their regular monthly meeting on October 28th in Cannifton town hall with over fifty members present. The president, John Huffman, was in the chair and opened the meeting. The minutes of the September meeting were read by the secretary, Carl Thompson, and adopted. Three new members paid their dues, raising the total membership of the club to eighty-one.

Douglas Wannamaker of Belleville played several pieces on his accordion to the delight of the audience while two other Junior Farmers had their violin and guitar to round off the social part of the meeting.

The provincial public speaking and amateur entertainment contest as well as the Hastings County Junior Farmers get-together in the Madoc armouries on November 8th were announced by H. W. Burns, Assistant Agricultural Representative. At this Junior Farmer gathering in Madoc all of the prizes and awards won during the year at various club competitions and achievement days will be presented. Both the members and their parents are invited to attend.

Mr. R. W. Phillips and Mr. Smith of the Belleville Collegiate Institute were present to outline the courses of study in the night classes being held at that institution this winter. The classes this year will be divided into four sections, namely: Farm mechanics; woodworking; motor and tractor mechanics and general agriculture. The night classes will be held every Wednesday evening during the months of November, December, January and February.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Howard Clarke of the Citizens' Dairy, Belleville.

Mr. Clarke outlined the purpose of the Ontario Cream Producers' Association and the need for such an organization. He also stressed ways and means of maintaining proper sanitary and cooling systems for milk and cream and emphasized the fact that our farms are lacking in milk storage facilities.

The Junior Farmers very fittingly thanked the guests, after which refreshments were served.

Chicago Pastor Guest Speaker At United Church

Rev. Dr. W. J. Hyde, of Chicago, who is visiting friends and relatives here, was guest speaker at the Kingston Road United Church Sunday morning.

It was an unique occasion when the pastor of the church, Rev. E. Farnsworth, who was associated with Mr. Hyde some 55 years ago in evangelistic work, holding meetings together in many of the surrounding rural churches in this district when many were brought into the church, joined hands in fellowship with his friend of many years ago. They recalled many happy experiences which was a real inspiration to the congregation, some of whom had attended and taken part in these meetings.

Mr. Hyde took his text from Rev. 2:17, "The order of the white stone." In the Isle of Patmos where John was banished God used him as His private secretary and revealed to him many truths and visions that he recorded and which have become a treasure house of marvellous inspiration and study.

God gives to man, as the approval of his acceptance into the kingdom, the white stone, which is in modern society known as the white ball, and He opens to all mankind the arms of love.

The Church of God is the greatest fraternal society. It is the body of Christ on earth.

Continuing Rains May Have Serious Effect on Crops

Salt Lake City, Oct. 30 (AP) — Continuing rains and snows of the last few days may have a serious effect on the west's sugar beet crop, W. Y. Cannon, general superintendent of a large sugar beet company indicated today.

Even as the record rains in Utah turned to snow and further hampered harvesting efforts, Cannon returned from an inspection of company leased fields in Montana and the Dakotas.

"The storm has upset all calculations as to the size of the fall sugar beet crop," said Cannon. "Since the storm has been general over the west states, it will be several days before estimates of damage can be made."

His firm is one of the largest sugar processors in the country, with interests ranging from the plains states to the Pacific northwest.

The snow and rain which drenched Utah and Nevada for three days moved northeast today leaving in their wake washed out railroad tracks, stranded hunters and stockmen, damaged crops and broken telephone and power lines.

Workmen for the Union Pacific Railroad rushed repairs on two points of the main line between here and Los Angeles after washouts followed what was described as the worst flood conditions in 25 years near Caliente, Nev.

With deer hunting in Utah at its height, separate parties totalling 17 persons were lost or isolated in mountainous areas by heavy snows but eight of them managed to walk to town or were rescued.

A committee of D. P. Pyke, Donald Baxter, L. B. Calnan and L. Nethery was named to prepare a budget to cover the cost of the Chamber's proposed activities.

The case came to light when the body of a newly born male child was dug up in the garden at the rear of her home Oct. 19. The child had been born sometime in August and police said Mrs. McEachren tried to conceal its birth from her husband to whom she was married last March.

Finance, Control, Ownership And Management of the British Press to be Probed by Govt.

London, Oct. 30 (CP)—An early start was predicted today for a government investigation of the "finance, control, ownership and management" of the British press, ordered by the House of Commons last night after six hours of bitter debate.

British newspapers greeted the probe authorization today with such words as "sinister," "fearful," and "intolerable" and the Daily Mail declared the inquiry constituted "the first stroke in the murder of freedom."

Dividing generally along party lines, the House voted 270-to-157 to establish a royal commission empowered to inquire into all phases of newspaper operation. Many British papers have been outspoken in their criticism of the labor government's domestic policies—criticism strongly resented by the government.

Well-informed sources said a six-or-seven-man commission to be named soon would include no members of parliament and no working newspapermen, although it might include some prominent former editors. It will have, with power of subpoena, the right to investigate news agencies and periodicals as well as London and Provincial dailies and weeklies.

Against Monopolies

The British Press Association said it understood the commission would be directed to:

1. Inquire into monopolistic tendencies of the press.
2. Investigate finance, management and ownership of the press.
3. Assess the influence of advertising on the presentation of news.

Herbert J. Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, closed debate on the proposal with a strong hint that the inquiry would concern itself mainly with the group of more than 20 papers owned by Viscount Kemsley.

"I am bound to say," he declared, "I don't like this acquirement of these newspapers and their conversion into a great chain of newspapers."

Press Comments

Press comments today included:

The Sketch: "The press has been described as an indispensable weapon against political tyranny. Is that weapon to be confined in a political scabbard?" The paper said the House of Commons action was "sinister."

Daily Worker: "The House of Commons did its manifest duty."

Daily Mail: "The only action which can be taken against the press is some measure of control of regulation—and therein lies a fearful danger to British democracy.... it can happen here."

Times: "An investigation can do no harm." If the purpose is to undo a "steady trend toward concentration" there could be no remedy without introducing a degree of state control "which would be intolerable."

No decision was announced as to when the commission would be named. Mr. Morrison said the government would not commit itself in advance to adoption of any recommendations made by the commission and added:

"I believe that at the end of it, journalism will not be hurt and freedom of the press will not be damaged. That is the last thing this government wants to do."

Corporation Asks For Detailed Needs Of Priority Holders

Further action on the part of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ottawa, regarding the completion of veterans' houses here which are at least roofed and sheeted, is noted in a communication to the Chamber of Commerce.

The objective of the corporation is to get as many partially completed houses as possible finished this year by ascertaining the detailed needs of priority holders.

Letters have been sent to individual veterans holding priorities and those to whom V. L. A. has issued priorities, whose houses are 50 per cent completed enclosing a form on which the priority holder is requested to fill in his needs and names of his normal suppliers.

Items listed on the forms will be collected by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and an effort will be made to have materials channeled to the suppliers concerned so that the needs of the priority holders may be filled.

The Corporation points out, however, that it will not be possible to ensure that each priority holder's requirements are met. It urged each individual to maintain his personal efforts to obtain materials.

It has, however, every hope that the overall result will make a noticeable difference in the present housing situation.

VALUABLE PRIZE

Wellington, N.Z. —(CP)— The former Finnish four-masted barque Pamir which was seized by the New Zealand government in Dominion waters as a prize when war was declared on Finland, is not proving decided asset. Since being taken over she has made six voyages, mostly to the Pacific coast of the United States. The first three yielded profits, though the last three have been made at a loss owing to small cargoes and high stevedoring costs. The government, however, intends to keep her in commission while the shipping shortage lasts.

COMPLAIN OF SERVICE

Sarnia, Oct. 30 (CP)— Homer Lockhart, President of the Chamber of Commerce said Tuesday a letter had been sent to the Postmaster-General of Canada complaining of the irregularity of morning mail service to this city and requesting steps be taken to remedy the situation.

Scott Benning Given Five Years For Espionage

Ottawa, Oct. 30 — (CP) — A month-long series of espionage trials will roll into its fourth phase in Ontario Supreme Court today with a record of two convictions and one acquittal behind it.

Matt Simons Nightingale, 40-year-old native of Mobile, Alabama, will go on trial for alleged activities in behalf of a Russian fifth column network in Canada while he was a communications officer with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

His case follows that of James Scotland Benning, 33-year-old former Munitions Department official who was found guilty by a 12-man jury yesterday and sentenced to Kingston penitentiary for five years by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer. An appeal is anticipated.

Previously, other juries had convicted Harold Samuel Gerson, another Munitions Department official and husband of the sister of Benning's wife, and had acquitted Eric George Adams, former official of several financial branches of the Dominion government. Adams, however, still faces two other charges under the Official Secrets Act. Gerson is appealing.

The Benning sentence equalled that of Gerson and was second in the seven so far meted out to convicted or admittedly guilty persons only to that of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of parliament who has appealed a six-year term. Of the 18 Canadians so far charged as a result of the espionage probe, two have been acquitted. Trials of the others are in varying stages of progress.

Addressing Benning after his conviction, Chief Justice McRuer said he had been found guilty "of a very, very serious crime . . . one designed to do great injury to the national existence," that the jury found that "you have betrayed your trust in a disgraceful manner," that "you were party to a scheme which, if carried to its logical conclusion, would destroy our existence as a nation."

On the evidence and on the finding of the jury, Benning had been marked as the Russian agent Foster, a "most active agent."

Nightingale's parents came from Quebec City. He was educated in the University Military School in Mobile and graduated from McGill University as an engineer in 1928. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1942.

Woman Declared Hostile Witness By the Crown

Winnipeg, Oct. 30 (CP)— The trial of Lawrence Deacon, 31-year-old veteran charged with the slaying March 31 of taxi driver Johann Johnson, today moved into its third day amidst a welter of charges and counter-charges by crown and defence attorneys.

Mrs. Helen Berard, 8, at whose home Deacon attended an anniversary party on the night of the slaying, has been declared a hostile witness by the crown because, prosecutor A. A. Moffat alleges, her testimony during the trial does not coincide with statements made to police when she was first detained April 9.

Confusion caused by repeated police interrogation and fear of what might happen to her if she did not change her story from the one she first gave impelled her to implicate Deacon in subsequent statements and at a coroner's inquest, Mrs. Berard testified yesterday.

It was not true, she told defence counsel E. J. McMurray, that she had seen Deacon in the death car with one hand raised in the air. She had stated this at the coroner's inquest because she feared the consequences if she did not change her original story. Detective Inspector David Nicholson, she said, had told her to 'start remembering or I'll lock you up."

Another detective had suggested "you know, Helen, you helped Lorne (Deacon) pull that man out of the taxi."

Mr. Moffat, outlining his case, described how Johnson's body was found near his abandoned taxi in suburban Tuxedo, following a slaying which for a time panicked Winnipeg cab drivers into talking about driving in pairs at night and installing partitions in their cars.

Johnson's head had been battered in by what police allege to be the bloodstained railway bolt which they found in the bush nearby.

The slaying recalled an unsolved case less than a year earlier when taxi driver Arthur Badger was slugged in suburban St. James in September, 1944.

SAYS FORMER COP HUSBAND PRACTISED JUDO HOLDS

Los Angeles, Oct. 30 (AP) — Married life with Finthrop Lowell 37, former policeman, ceased to be worth while when he started practicing judo holds on her, Marguerite Elayne Lowell, 30, testified yesterday. "He would walk up behind me and press me behind the ears," she explained. "There is nothing you can do then. It leaves you numb." Mrs. Lowell, who won her divorce, added that Lowell also beat her frequently in the old fashioned way.

Special Deputies Guarding Plant Of Allis Chalmers

Milwaukee, Oct. 30 (AP)— Police Chief John W. Polcyn ordered 120 city policemen to report today to be sworn in as special deputies for duty at the big West Allis, Wis., plant of the Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co., strike-bound for the last 183 days.

Polcyn also said he would hold the entire day shift of 120 officers in reserve for emergency duty at the plant, where picket line violence has flared out of control the past two days.

Fighting broke out for the second time yesterday as day shift workers left the plant. Windows in the company's engineering building and in nearby parked cars were smashed.

Last night's violence followed a similar incident yesterday morning which resulted in the arrest of five men on charges of "preventing the pursuit of work."

Officials of the striking Local 248 C.I.O. United Automobile Workers have declined to comment on any of the recent developments, the first serious trouble since the strike started six months ago.

County sheriff George Hanley last night telegraphed Governor Walter S. Goodland for help because of the "gravity of the situation."

Hanley's report said that "the presence at the Allis Chalmers strike of approximately 80 per cent of my personnel jeopardizes the maintenance of law and order throughout the rest of the county."

Brigadier Graham's Appointment

News of the appointment of Brigadier Howard Douglas Graham, D.S.O. and Bar, of Trenton, a former Officer Commanding the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, to the post of liaison chief in London, England, as head of the army section of the Canadian Joint Liaison Staff, has come with a great deal of pleasure to his many friends in the Bay of Quinte section, including those who served with him in the H. and P. E. Regiment overseas in the Second World War.

Brigadier Graham is a fine example of the typical Canadian adaptability to the rigors of military life from the comparative uneventful existence of the civilian. The war, which brought out many hitherto latent qualities of the Canadian civilian, gave to Canada another natural leader of men in Howard Graham, whose brilliant record in the service of his country adds a glowing chapter to the book of the exploits of Canada's sons.

Courage on the field of battle and ability to learn and absorb the intricacies of army administration earned for him a high rank in the army. His qualities were such that at the cessation of hostilities the Canadian General Staff retained his services in a similar capacity to that of the war years. His promotion to the new post is well deserved, and Canada and the Army will mark a new milestone in what promises to be an outstanding military career.

A former army officer of the H. and P. E. Regiment, he proved himself to be a man among men and he enjoys the highest esteem of his former unit from drummer boy to Officer Commanding.

His career in the service will be watched with interest by the people of Trenton and the rest of the Bay of Quinte district.

Safe and Sane Hallowe'en

Hallowe'en is at hand and spontaneous and elaborate observance is to be expected in the traditional festivity which the ages have handed down. Weather permitting, Thursday evening and night will be a thrilling time in the lives of thousands of young and middle aged and older people when playfulness and fancy have their way. Streets will be crowded with youngsters wearing false faces and strange attire. It is the time and in the spirit of make-believe and it will be marked in the homes, on the streets, in gatherings and in community celebrations.

In the light of experience authorities always advise for a sane and safe celebration. Anything else is contrary to the spirit of the time. Hallowe'en is a very human festivity which every child and even adult has a right to enjoy. As so many will celebrate Thursday night more than ordinary precautions will be expected. One point is emphasized in warnings issued just before Hallowe'en, it is that fires should play no part in the celebrating, for fire is dangerous. Everyone is expected to exercise the utmost care to prevent accidents and likewise no one should do anything to mar the pleasures of others in the entertainment of the season. There are innocent forms of fun and there are some pranks not so innocent which on occasion might result in accident. So all those who are celebrating are urged to play safe and to avoid any spirit of destructiveness because this should have no place in the events of such a time. Neither should there be pranks that might increase the hazards of others.

Hearty innocent amusement, thoughtfulness of others can serve well at the celebration. Community gatherings, held in most centres, serve a fine purpose, they lead the celebration along sensible lines, give the maximum of entertainment and amusement, provide more pleasure than no doubt individuals could make for themselves and furnish the pleasure of meeting hundreds upon hundreds of the other youngsters like themselves. These functions are under supervision, and are the best protection against any untoward event.

Observance of Hallowe'en with all the mirth possible, all the innocent fun it is possible to enjoy is the ideal. Then no one will have any untoward experiences, there will be absence of rowdyism and disorders and everyone will have a most enjoyable time.

There's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will.—Shakes-

Speed Increases

A diagram in "Flight" gives a startling picture of the increase in speeds achieved in this century by men travelling in machines.

In 1906, the fastest thing on wheels was a Stanley motorcar, which reached 127 miles an hour. A GWR train, drawn by the City of Truro, came next at 102 miles an hour, and far behind was Santos-Dumont's aircraft flying at 25 miles per hour. Four years later the car was a Benz doing 131 miles per hour. The locomotive had not improved its speed and a Matchless motorcycle was catching it up at 84 miles per hour. Bleriot had doubled air speed by reaching 65 miles per hour.

In 1920, an aircraft was in front for the first time — a Nieuport, which reached 194 miles per hour. A Dusenberg car lagged behind at 156 miles per hour and the City of Truro still rolled along at its 102 (on paper, at any rate, though its record speed was not a daily performance). An Indian motorcycle was faintly discernable down the road doing 94 miles per hour.

In 1930 only a car and an aircraft were worth mentioning. After another decade the air speed was up to 469 miles per hour, and a car had done 369 miles per hour.

In 1946 speeds, after mechanical ingenuity had been for six years devoted to more serious things than record breaking, had reached 616 miles per hour in the air (by the Gloster Meteor), 369 by a Railton car, and 126 by an anonymous LNER locomotive.

Supersonic speeds in the air do not seem far off and no doubt somebody will even reach 400 miles per hour in a car without being air borne. If any railway train can do better than 126 miles per hour it will be good news to the present day traveller as he is hurled from town to town at a death defying 40 miles per hour.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30th., 1926.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will observe its 99th. anniversary tomorrow. Who would have thought over a hundred years ago, when an acre of land was granted by the government for the purpose of erecting a church in Belleville connected with the Kirk of Scotland, that today we would see such a fine church with its beautiful brick masonry and the hundreds of eager church-goers crowding its portals every Sunday. It was in the year 1821 that the acre of land was granted by the government that there might be a place of worship connected with the Kirk of Scotland, but it was not until 1830 that the church was built. In 1831 a petition was sent from this congregation to the Edinburgh Presbytery, which responded by sending the Rev. James Ketchan to this city as minister. He returned to Scotland after faithfully serving for several years. Numerous ministers followed him, but probably the best remembered by the congregation is the Rev. M. W. Maclean, who came to Belleville from Paisley in Bruce County. It was during his incumbency that the present fine church was built, some thirty years ago. Mr. Maclean retired 28 years ago. The present minister is the Rev. R. G. Stewart, B.D.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30th., 1916.

At a meeting of the city council Mayor Ketcheson made a verbal report with regards to the collection of taxes which he stated was most satisfactory. On the 1914 roll all but $3,000 has been collected and this is available. There is about $40,000 of the 1915 roll yet uncollected, but this will be collected by Dec. 31st. next. The taxes for 1916 are also being paid in a satisfactory manner. There has been collected $25,000 more this year than at the same time last year.

The matter of the right of way through by the Tabernacle Church from Church Street to John Street has been satisfactorily arranged. The deed has been secured and the work of opening up the passage will be proceeded with at once.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30th., 1906.

A host of people in Belleville will regret to learn that Mr. and Mrs. William Hopkins are about to remove from our city. Mrs. Hopkins was born in Belleville and Mr. Hopkins has resided here for over forty years. They intend to take up residence in Anderson, Indiana, where their youngest son, Mr. Cecil Hopkins, resides. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins have been closely identified with Bridge Street Methodist Church. Recently Mr. Hopkins was presented with a gold watch by the officers and teachers of the Sunday School and also with a gold headed cane by the young ladies of his Sunday School class.

The Y.M.C.A. rooms will be opened shortly. Mr. Hess, a young married man of Midland, has been secured as secretary. He is very highly recommended. The local association's appeal for funds has been quite successful and the directors are much encouraged.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Weller, George Street, will leave here shortly to reside in Colborne, where Mr. Weller will operate a saw mill.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30th., 1896.

Mr. James McGuire is spending today in Madoc.

Mr. John Johnston, Inspector of Public Schools, is at present inspecting the Model School in Madoc.

Mr. W. J. Hambly, foreman of the Mail and Empire Composing room, Toronto, is spending his vacation here.

Mr. W. C. McCamon, barrister, went to Toronto today.

Mr. John McFee has returned home from North Hastings where he spent some time prospecting in the gold region. He reports favorably of what he found.

The members of the "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" company, who have been playing in small towns in this district, passed through the city this morning in an old fashioned band wagon en route to Deseronto.

Mr. George E. Bull has returned to the city after spending some time in the mining country in North Hastings.

Getting on Without Religion

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

A columnist in the British Weekly, who signs himself Ilico, writing under the title, "The Comforts of Atheism," says: "A practising doctor in Harley Street told me the other day that most of his patients come from well-to-do families, that a few of them, mostly women, are addicted to Anglo-Catholicism, and that for the rest hardly any show the slightest interest in religion or are conscious of any need which religion might claim to satisfy. Religion, it would seem, never crosses the threshold of thought." To which Ilico adds: "I find that staggering, for I cannot imagine how people get on without religion."

The answer to that is that people don't get on without religion—even the avowed atheists. In my youth I was curious about atheism, and I used occasionally to attend meetings of the Secularist Society, at which lectures were delivered by leading "Freethinkers," most of whom, by the way, were socialists. Bernard Shaw addressed one of these meetings, but he adroitly sidestepped committing himself as to whether or not he had any religious convictions. Shaw was fond of making fun of religious people, but he also poked fun at the Secularists. I once heard him addressing a group of Anglicans whom he amused for half an hour with wisecracks at the Church and at certain parts of the Bible. That is quite an easy thing to do if you are glib enough.

What struck me about those secularists was that they could not get on without religion. They were so much obsessed with religion that they were for ever arguing about it. They would propound such questions as "Is there a God?" and proceed to prove that there wasn't. The idea of God seemed to bother them. They could neither believe in religion nor leave it alone, and I used to wonder what they would have to argue about if they succeeded in abolishing religion altogether.

But the truth is that these professed atheists were not atheists at all; they were merely trying their best to make themselves believe they were atheists, and they were trying hard. In their reflective and sentimental moments they would give themselves away, as Robert Ingersoll did in an address at the funeral of one of his atheist friends, when he wistfully spoke of this life being a "brief span between two eternities." When I read that address some years ago I felt that Ingersoll was at heart a profoundly religious man who had been groping in the dark with his eyes shut.

• • •

Personally, I prefer the outspoken scepticism of men like Ingersoll to the dumb indifference or cynicism of so many people in these days toward religion. Those aggressive atheists and agnostics of two generations ago did more to arouse popular interest in religion than the churches themselves. They presented a challenge to the churches to stand up and defend themselves, and most of the great preachers of those days, such as Henry Ward Beecher and Talmage, were stirred to eloquent defence of the faith that was in them by that challenge. The frontal attack on religion prompted many of the Victorian poets to deeper thoughts and higher flights of imagination, as in Tennyson's "In Memorium," and many of the poems of Browning. It was Tennyson who wrote:

He fought his doubts and gathered strength;
He would not make his judgments blind;
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them; thus he came at length
To find a stronger faith his own.

Each generation must fight its own doubts, for faith is a personal matter and cannot be handed on automatically from one generation to another. We must make our own judgments, and we must not make them mentally or spiritually blind. The soul needs vigorous exercise as well as the body if we are to develop spiritual muscle. Those patients referred to by the Harley Street doctor as indifferent toward religion were suffering from spiritual flabbiness—and there are a whole lot of such people today. The churches may somehow get on without the support of these people, but they themselves cannot get on without religion and all that it means to the moral and cultural life of the civilized society in which they live.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

GARBAGE DUMP

To the Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

When our council meet again one hopes they will consider well their proposal to make a garbage dump near our water supply. A few years ago there was an exhibit by the Ontario Government at the Toronto Exhibition of an outside garbage heap, etc., showing how the seepage went into the well of the family water supply on the farm. Stress was made how serious it was for the health of the family, also how very unsanitary it was. Now our city council propose to do just that. True they propose to build a wall between the dump and our drinking water, but any faulty work or breakage in the wall later would sure make a good place for seepage. What a serious step to make a dump near a city's water supply! It would become a grand place for rats, rubbish and rotten slime on the stagnant water behind the wall to say nothing of the stench of the dump in warm weather to greet anyone coming into the city. Tourists would certainly not linger but speed right through the city.

The cost of the wall will go a long way in building an incinerator which is the only safe thing for garbage and the health of our citizens. During the recent warm dry weather the city dump smelled to high heaven and the smoke was very bad. Shall we be behind the times in putting Belleville by the dump!

Thanking you, Sir,
L. R. B.

WHAT, NO LEFT HANDED GOLF CHAMPS?

We are grateful for your article explaining the use of the manuscope by means of which oculists can determine whether a child is left or right eyed and hence whether the child is naturally dextral or sinistral. We wonder whether there is an explanation as to why there has never been a top-notch southpaw golfer, whereas in baseball several lefthand batters are near the top in batting averages each year. Also, why can right-hand batters hit the offering of left-hand or right-hand pitchers with equal ease, while left-hand-batters are generally weak against left-hand pitchers? Finally, did you ever know of a champion left-handed boxer? (R. P. D.)

To tell the truth I know very little about it.

Statistics show that one of each twenty-five persons is left-handed naturally, and more than half of them are trained to use the right hand.

It is my belief or opinion that left-handed children should not be forced to use the right hand for writing or other things they prefer to do with the left hand. I believe forced transfer to right handedness is the cause of stuttering in many instances.

I repeat this is merely my opinion and I'm no specialist or expert. It is disputed by various authors some of whom speak with a great air of authority, though they do not explain how they get that way.

I have never learned just why a child with an apparent preference for the left hand should be compelled to use only the right hand for such things as writing and drawing, either before the child is old enough to go to school or when the child enters school.

Speaking of stuttering, whether the question of handedness is involved or not, I have a pamphlet which describes vocal and breathing exercises that have proved of value in correcting the trouble—ask for it in writing (do not use a clipping) and inclose a stamped self addressed envelope.

Readers who infer from this article that my knowledge is extremely limited may tell me whatever they think I should know, but there's just one thing: If you do not tell me how you know I am not likely to remember what you tell me. Recently I had to place an embargo on remedies for ivy poisoning because it seemed that everybody who ever had ivy poisoning wished to tell me of a different remedy which had brought prompt cure after all other remedies had failed. I do hope we may be able to keep the left-handedness file open and I'm sure we can if you people will bear in mind I want to know how you know what you tell me about left-handedness is so.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Diabetes

I am taking 40 units of U-40 Prot. Zinc Insulin daily. Please tell me what quantity of vitamin B complex I should take. (L. V. P.)

Answer—A good daily ration of it. That is as nearly as I can estimate your daily requirement. I believe it is advisable for every individual who has diabetes to supplement his or her diet with a good daily ration of vitamin B complex, for the favorable influence upon carbohydrate metabolism. For further details read — "Training for Diabetes" — send 1 cents and stamped self addressed envelope for the booklet. Ask for it in writing and do not send a clipping.

Caffeine

Which contains the most caffeine, coffee or tea? (T. M. A.)

Answer—A cup of coffee contains two or three times as much caffeine or caffeine-like alkaloid as a cup of tea does. Of course pound for pound tea contains the more of the alkaloid.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When were table forks first used?

Table forks were unknown to the ancients. "Fingers were made before forks, and hands before knives," wrote Jonathan Swift in "Polite Conversation" (1738).

Both knives and spoons, in one form or other, date from prehistoric times, but even they were little used as table utensils until the Middle Ages. The Greeks and Romans had their food cut into small pieces before it was served and ate it with their fingers.

Sometimes during the late Middle Ages the upper classes in Italy began to use forks for eating purposes. In the 11th century a Venetian Lady, wife of Doge Comenico Silivio and daughter of the Byzantine Emperor Ducas, was described as "luxurious beyond belief" because she ate with a small gold fork.

Before the 17th century dining forks were nowhere in general use outside Italy. These utensils are not mentioned by Shakespeare. Queen Elizabeth, like her predecessors, ate with her fingers and used neither knife nor fork, although knives and spoons for conveying food from the plate to the mouth were then coming into use.

A satirical pamphlet of the time ridiculed certain courtiers of Henry III of France (1551-1589) for conveying bits of meat to their mouths on large pronged implements. James I was the first British sovereign to eat with a fork.

This utensil is believed to have been introduced into England from Italy in 1608 by Thomas Coryate (1577-1617), an eccentric English traveller and writer, who in 1608 began a prolonged walking tour on the continent. While in Italy he took a fancy to forks and undertook to introduce them among his countrymen. In "Coryate's Crudeties hastily goggled up in Five Months' Travels in France, Italy, etc." an account of his experiences, he wrote: "The Italians and also most strangers that are commorant in Italie doe alwaies at the meales use a little forke when they cut their meate. For while with their knife which they hold in one hand, they cut the meate out of the dishe, they fasten their forke which they holde in their other hande, upon the same dishe." He explained that the Italians "cannot by any means endure to have their flesh touched with fingers, seeing all men's fingers are not alike clean." Coryate tells us that he was called "furcifer" (fork-bearer," from Latin furcas, fork) by his acquaintances and otherwise ridiculed because he ate with those "Italian neatnesses called forks."

The use of forks spread slowly among the English because it was regarded as effeminate. Even families who had forks used them only on special occasions.

Forks are not mentioned among the utensils brought over by the first Virginia, New England and Maryland colonists. It is said that a fork was brought to Boston by Governor John Winthrop in 1630 was kept in a case and exhibited like a piece of jewelry. Americans did not use table forks generally until the 18th century. Even the English novelist James Payn (1830-1898) wrote of "the culture of the silver-fork school without their affectation."

Forced Savings Rebates In 1947, '48 and '49

Ottawa, Oct. 30 — (CP)—Canadian income taxpayers are due to get $50 million back shortly, but it was paid so long ago that probably a lot of them have forgotten about it.

In 1942 the Government introduced a compulsory savings plan as part of the income tax set-up. The plan continued until mid-1944. Altogether individual income taxpayers were compelled to lend the government about $260 million and $50 million was for the 1942 assessment.

They are scheduled to get that 1942 assessment back by March 31, 1948, with 2 per cent interest. Their compulsory savings in the 1943 assessment — which amounted to about $115 million will be repayable a year later and the 1944 assessment, which was for only half a year — $95 million—a year after that.

The plan was introduced by the government to bolster the lending scheme, necessary to finance the heavy war expenditures, and to drain off excess income which would have had an inflationary tendency during the war. Presumably by the time the money is repaid consumer goods will be in a fair supply situation and the inflationary tendency will not be as great.

Man "Relives" Native Torture

London —(CP)— A man who while in India had his arms tied tightly for several hours "relived" the experience in a hospital 10 years later with such effect that ropemarks appeared on his arms, Dr. Noel Harris told the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy.

This he said, was an example of the influence of emotional life in relation to muscular and joint disturbances.

Experiments had been made in recent years in the psychoanalysis of patients while under anaesthetic. One method known as narcoanalysis was used to induce patients to relive experiences thereby ridding them of "the emotional stress, which gives rise to muscular and joint disturbances."

Patience does the rest."

Bushmen Reach Agreement With Timber Operators

Toronto, Oct. 30 —(CP)— A statement was expected today from Ontario Labor Minister Daley announcing officially that a settlement had been reached between timber company operators and officials of the lumber and sawmill workers (AFL) to end the 19-day strike of bushworkers in the Cochrane and Thunder Bay Districts of the province.

Success of a conference yesterday by Mr. Daley for settlement of the work stoppage was indicated last night by Jack Quinn, president of local 2786 in Port Arthur, with his announcement that the operators had agreed to the workers' basic demands of union recognition and $5 a day minimum wage.

A further conference will be held today between labor department officials and representatives of the companies and union to draft the clauses of the agreement that also provides for improved working conditions, an additional but secondary union demand.

Quinn said the operators agreed to eliminate progressively double-decker bunks and replace them with single type ones.

After today's meeting union officials will leave for Port Arthur and Timmins to have the union membership vote on the terms of settlement. Quinn said he would recommend to the members of the Port Arthur local acceptance of the terms and that Bruce Magnuson, president of the Timmins local, would recommend similar action at Timmins.

Quinn said the striking bushworkers would resume pulp and lumber cutting operations Monday if they ratified the agreement The claims of the union and companies as to the number of men affected by the strike call varied, the union contending that 10,000 answered it and the operators saying the number was considerably less.

Australian Police To Investigate Story of Survivor

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 30 —(CP Cable)—Conflicting versions from New Caledonia have added an element of mystery to the story of the 1,100-mile voyage of the disabled Australian ketch Nova and her crew of four, one of whom survived and was found last week.

Australian police have decided to investigate to clarify the circumstances of the 45-foot vessel's departure from Australia, to obtain details of the death of three crew members including the 34-year-old skipper Grant West and to establish what was done with their bodies.

In New Caledonia, Australian newspapermen have heard survivor James Cush describe a crippling gale off the Australian coast and the five-month drift of the Nova northeastward to the Isle of Pines, 70 miles from Noumea, capital of New Caledonia.

Interviewers' reports have disagreed as to the length of the voyage and incidents from the time the Nova left the little Australian port of Coffs Harbor between Brisbane and Sydney in June to Cush's appearance in a weakened condition on the Isle of Pines. The island is a few miles from a smaller island where Cush said the Nova was wrecked earlier this month.

First reports indicated the three crew members died of illness and starvation before the vessel went aground on the New Caledonia reef. A New Caledonia businessman just arrived in Australia told reporters he was informed that only one of the crew died at sea and that the two others went ashore after the ketch went aground.

Police are investigating reports of weather and sea conditions off the Australian coast in June and are awaiting a report from French authorities in New Caledonia where Cush is in hospital.

Skilled Divers Fish for Shells

Brisbane, Australia —(CP)— Trochus-shell fishing is in full swing again along the 1,200-mile Great Barrier Reef, off the east coast of Queensland State.

Native divers working from small boats, before the war, gathered about $60,000 worth of trochus-shell which contains mother-of-pearl.

The cone-shaped shell is found on coral beds and among the atolls of the Barrier Reef and the diving season is suspended only from December to March when heavy seas and storms interfere.

This year trochus-shell is plentiful because the reefs were untouched during the war. The beds were becoming depleted at the outbreak of war and Japanese fishermen who had no scruples about taking quick hauls of shells of all ages and sizes were partly blamed.

Govt. Will Act To Prevent Furthur Seizures

Montreal, Oct. 30 (CP)— The squatter leadership sought today to project the veterans' versus gamblers argument in face of a warning from Premier Maurice Duplessis that the provincial government would act to prevent further seizures in Montreal.

"It is now for justice to decide who has the right to reside in our city, the veterans or the gamblers," declared Henri Gagnon, Provincial Organizer of the Labor-Progressive party and leader of the squatter occupation of two houses that allegedly were former gambling establishments.

"It will also have to be decided of Montrealers have to live like sardines when there are about 500 houses and vacant properties now padlocked."

The squatter leader apparently referred to houses closed by police for gambling or prostitution offences, rather than to Quebec's padlock law which makes illegal the use of any establishment for the spreading of Communism. This law has been in abeyance of late although still on the statute books.

Premier Duplessis in werding against further seizures said he was taking steps to maintain peace and order, through the respect of law, in Montreal. The Montreal Star said he described the squatter movement here as part of a world-wide Communist campaign to disrupt established democratic institutions.

Mr. Gagnon, together with two of his colleagues in the taking over of a house on McGill College Avenue last week, appeared before Judge Armand Cloutier yesterday on charges of forcible entry. They pleaded not guilty and were ordered for preliminary hearing Nov. 5.

London Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 30 —(CP)— If the sun shines in London, what can you do better than walk in the park? Any park will do, but the people's choice these fading autumn days is—as always—Kensington Gardens.

Saturday afternoon or Sunday crowds stream down the long streets from the underground stations or pour off the big red buses. Into the big park they plod, savoring the crisp air and enjoying the sunlight on the yellow leaves as happily as the "toffs" who canter along the dusty Rotten Row.

What is there to see? Well, there's the Round Pond for one thing, where little boys wade in the chilly water trying to catch minnows in clumsily-contrived nets. They get in the way of other little boys trying to sail tiny boats, or big boys and men with glittering three-foot models.

Around the pond on chairs and benches sit doting parents, hand-holding lovers, lonely men with their noses in books and solitary women with their knitting.

If it's sightseeing you're after, there isn't much else to see, unless it's the monumental Albert Memorial, a rugged bit of allegorical architecture which some rud persons say was spared by German air raiders to inflict additional suffering on the people of London.

But this really isn't a place for sightseers, though plenty of them come. It's a place for people to sit on benches or little green chairs under the trees or on the broad sweeps of turf, enjoying the pleasant air of melancholy that is London's and watching their dogs and children scamper from prank to prank.

JUDGE RECOGNIZES BUDDY

Chicago, Oct. 30 — (AP)—The man before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan delayed entering a plea to a disorderly conduct charge by asking: "How's your health, now, Your Honor?" Judge Hartigan recognized him as John Androvich, 61, a buddy of his First Great War army days. "Since you haven't been cooking for me," Judge Hartigan said, "my health has been fine." Then he dismissed the charge.

S.S. Convention for Thurlow, Tyendinaga Associations Held In Carmel United Church

The annual S.S. Convention of Thurlow, Tyendinaga S.S. Association was held in Carmel United Church on Wednesday, October 23.

The President, Mr. A. Clazie, opened the afternoon session at 2 o'clock with a hymn. Mr. Seldon Homans very warmly welcomed everyone to Carmel Church. The worship service was in charge of Plainfield S.S. with Mrs. Fred Hall basing the devotion on "The Angelus". Mrs. A. F. Hall and Mrs. Will Sills sang a duet.

Executive Report

Mr. Clazie gave the report of the executive year's work.

Minutes were read and adopted. The treasurer's report was given with a balance on hand of $13. Mother's Day's receipts were $44.94. Roll Call was answered by 13 schools. Rev. A. M. Laverty, of Stirling, as guest speaker, then gave a splendid address, "New Methods For an Old Message".

He said, "teachers must bring the Bible into their classes, as many children never see one opened in the home".

Reading the lesson from the Bible and not from lesson leaflets also helps. He had found in his experience that a teacher of small classes would take the stories we find in our Bibles such as "Progidal Son", "Birth of Jesus", and many more and have the children read it in dialogue form. A child is more interested because he is taking part. Thus one of the new methods presented by the speaker was "Participation" in the Sunday Schools.

Appreciate Hymns

Mrs. Grant Coulter gave a very helpful paper on "Appreciating the Hymns We Sing". She spoke of the teacher having pictures when possible to illustrate the hymn being sung. A teacher should be able to explain and visualize the picture given in the hymn. There being many hymns to choose from, makes it easy for us to pick hymns suitable to the several different needs.

Reports from the departmental superintendents were well given, six being present and the other three read by the secretary.

Rev. A. W. Lougheed speaking on "Leadership Training", suggested that everyone attend a leadership training school, which is opening in Cannifton early in November; Rev. A. L. Shorten, Rev. A. Campbell, Rev. J. R. Trumpour and Rev. A. W. Lougheed being the leaders for this school.

Must Know Bible

Rev. J. R. Trumpour addressed the gathering, speaking on "Making the Scriptures Live". In order to make the Scriptures live one must know the Bible thoroughly, and must also love one's enemies; and not be afraid to go the second mile to show one is trying to live the Christlike way. People must prepare their minds and hearts by learning the whys, and hows and wherefores of the Bible and also by knowing its geography and history. Rev. Mr. Trumpour emphasized his meaning by showing pictures. In this way one can make the Scriptures live in the homes and community.

Rev. A. W. Lougheed spoke on "Making Prayer Real". This was a very interesting address discussing ways of making prayer real between man and God. Man must have a vision of what he wishes to ask and then put heart and soul into his supplications. "What is Prayer?" was asked

"Prayer is the sou's sincere desire,
Uttered or unexpressed;
The motion of a hidden fire
That trembles in the breast."

A hymn was sung and the offering accepted.

Pictures Main Item

Rev. A. M. Laverty spoke on "Visual Aids for the Lesson Period". Again pictures were given as the main item to help children understand what is being taught to them. Religious films are very useful and many schools are using them now. Mr. Laverty demonstrated a flannelgraph by making different scenes on the "graph" with pictures that can easily be obtained from the Book Room.

During all the different papers and addresses participation of the children in the Sunday School exercises seemed to be suggested as the most beneficial way to reach the child mind.

Mrs. George Priest illustrated the S.S. secretary's report. She showed two large pieces of cardboard on which she had drawn thermometers giving the attendance for each Sundy by fastening red ribbon and white together and having a slit at each end to pull the ribbon up or down as needed. This much appreciated idea closed a very helpful afternoon session.

Hot Supper Served

A hot supper, which everyone appreciated, was then served in the dining hall by the Carmel ladies.

The evening session opened with Foxboro S.S. in charge of the devotional period.

Officers Elected

Report of the Nominating Committee was read by the secretary and the following officers elected:

President, Mr. C. Wilson, Foxboro.

1st Vice President, Mr. S. Homan, Corbyville.

2nd Vice President, Mr. John Milligan, Shannonville.

Secretary - Treasurer, Mrs. Fred Prindle, Plainfield.

Department Superintendents:

1. Children's Work, Mrs. Will McMechan, Shannonville.
2. Girls' Work, Mrs. Bruce Martin, Corbyville.
3. Boys' Work, Mr. Don Williams, Cannifton.

7. Missionary, Mrs. O. Bertrand, R. R. Corbyville, Ont.
8. Temperance, Mr. Russell Ritz, Corbyville, Ont.
9. Teacher Training, Rev. A. W. Lougheed, Shannonville, Ont.

Installation Conducted

Rev. A. Campbell then conducted the installation of these officers.

A report from the Resolution Committee was read by Mrs. Shorten.

Miss Marilyn Eggleton of Bethany S.S., then contributed an appropriate solo. The offering was received.

In the absence of Rev. Mr. Laverty at the evening session, Rev. A. L. Shorten very capably addressed the gathering, his subject being "If I Be Lifted Up". He said: "We must, by the lives we live, lift Jesus Christ up. By the way we meet our fellowmen in our everyday living is one way we either lift or hinder Jesus Christ on earth. We must demonstrate Him, or else, we throw Him overboard."

Rev. Mr. Shorten then closed an interesting and inspirational meeting with prayer.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

IVANHOE W. M. S.

The October meeting of the Ivanhoe W.M.S., was held at the home of Mesdames Arthur and George Wood. During the day a quilt was finished and at twelve o'clock noon, a delightful buffet lunch was served. The President, Mrs. S. Prest, opened the meeting with a short worship service. Business was discussed with a goodly number answering the roll call. Mrs. E. Benson, Group Leader No. 2 was in charge of the remaining part of the program and was assisted by Mrs. C. Keeble and Mrs. N. Thomilson. A most interesting paper on "Health" was given by Mrs. C. Mitz. The meeting closed with prayers by Mrs. Baldwin Reid and Mrs. H. McMillan. Proceeds of the day were $13.10.

Young Women's Guild Discusses Broadcasting

The Young Women's Guild met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, 178 Dufferin Ave. Mrs. Grant Coulter presided. Following the regular business Miss Stewart Masson presented the need of the orphaned children of France. It was decided to send a parcel of food each month to one of these children. A committee of Mrs. Wishart, Mrs. Stanton, Mrs. Harrison and Miss Joy Nicholls was formed to be responsible for the purchasing and packing of the parcel.

Miss Marjorie Lashbrook conducted the devotional period on the theme of tolerance. There is a great deal of intolerance in our land today, the intolerance of opposing racial, religious and labour groups. There can be virtue as well as vice in intolerance. Some of our greatest pioneers in thought and achievement have been men and women who were terrific believers in one thing, which they saw clearly, and who were completely intolerant of all who disagreed. This extreme is far more commendable than the opposite vice where the mind is so broad that it is shallow.

Systems Compared

The topic for discussion was "Broadcasting" and was conducted by Mrs. Wishart and Mrs. Kerr. The Canadian system was compared with that of United States and Great Britain. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was formed in 1936 by an Act of Parliament, as a result of public inquiries, namely the Aird Commission, into the deficiencies of the commercial system, which had operated until 1932. The CBC is within the control of Parliament but not of any political party. It is a service operated to see that the great public utility of radio operates in the public interest. The Canadian system is unique in that privately owned stations operate in co-operation with the CBC group. In the United States it is entirely privately owned, and in Great Britain it is nationally operated. The Canadian system allows a wider variety and greater choice of programs. There are certain regulations governing the type of program allowed, the language used, and the amount of advertising done. There is a representative board of governors in charge of the radio policy. They have made rules to the effect that during election time (1) No one can buy time; (2) No broadcasting for two days prior to the election; (3) Free time is allowed to responsible spokesmen of each group in proportions approved by the groups themselves.

Become shareholder

The licence fees paid by Canadion radio receivers is more than returned in programs provided. For $2.50 a year, you become a shareholder in a large Canadian enterprise. In 1944 the total income of the CBC was over five million dollars. The purpose of the CBC is threefold, to develop Canadian talent, to contribute to community and national life, and to give a true program service to the Canadian public.

Music provides the greatest number of radio hours and ranges from light to symphonic. Educational work is done in the school broadcasts and in the Forum series. Our educational system is supplemented by the school broadcasts, which make history, literature, art, etc., much more real to the pupils.

Apart from entertainment programs the CBC provides an accurate, dependable and impartial news service. All significant news of the day is presented without bias or distortion.

Another important service is the provision of information and guidance to Canadian people in Agriculture. The National Farm Radio Forum provides an opportunity for discussion, over 1,000 organized listening groups have been formed in Canada. A similar program is broadcast to the fishermen of the Maritimes. During the war a short wave service was set up for the entertainment of the troups overseas.

Privately-Owned

Anyone may have permission to operate a radio station. The radio division of the Dept. of Transport grants the use of an available wave length and a yearly licence. The Belleville Station CJBQ is a privately owned station of community service. It serves the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox & Addington and Frontenac. There are seventeen employees some of whom are ex-service men. News of especial interest to this community can be broadcast from the local station.

Dr. E. A. Corbett has said: "One of the greatest social problems of the future will continue to be the wise use of leisure time. A nationally controlled radio system, better than any other organization can supplement the work of existing agencies in providing for the leisure hours of the Canadian people.

Contemporary Canadian Poetry Theme of Address by Allen Crawley To Women of Canadian Club

In spite of the inclement weather of Tuesday afternoon, the hall of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church housed a representative gathering of the women of the Canadian Club, to hear Mr. Allen Crawley on the subject of "Contemporary Canadian Poetry".

Introducing Mr. Crawley, the President, Mrs. B. C. Sisler, stated "he is a lawyer who practised in Winnipeg, Man., for a number of years. During that time he was a devotee to poetic literature and made Canadian poems his hobby. He is now living on the Pacific Coast but no longer practises law, because he lost his sight thirteen years ago; however it has not dampened his interest in poetry".

Hard To Understand

Prefacing his subject, Mr. Crawley said: "Because of distress and the extra demands made on all Canadians durimg the war years, there has been progress made in many things including music, painting and literature. It is seldom, however, that we find people willing to talk about poetry; probably because they do not try to understand it, and so they refuse to include modern poets in their reading. There are three reasons for this:

First: Poetry is hard to understand because of a wrongful introduction to it when we were children, our earliest recollection being of adult verse which our teachers made no attempt to explain clearly.

Second: There is a wrong approach to poetry. Its place is not on the library table or on a shelf gathering dust. It should be read, preferably aloud to somebody else, then talked about with friends.

Third: There is some fault with the poets themselves, because in the past they have been mostly content to remain isolated. Now, they write like human beings, using the English language as heard and spoken. They have learned they must not remain aloof from their fellow citizens, but must restore contacts with men, so that the beauty of their thought is not left out of either reading or reciting.

"But," conceded the speaker, "contemporary poetry is very difficult to understand". Mr. Crawley cited the names of seven young Canadian writers of poetry, four of whom are women.

Recited Lines

Abraham M. Klein, a lawyer and professor in English at McGill University, is the author of a Jewish boy's autobiography of memories from the ghetto with Nazi intruders, to American slums and a vacation in the country and to dreams of a fabled city with Hebrew violins supplying Easter notes.

This was unique, picturesque, pathetic, appealing, as Mr. Crawley recited the lines.

From 1917 to 1934 a young Canadian, raised on a farm, wanted to write poetry. He worked in an office but found little stimulation there. In 1938 he decided to see Canada; he worked during the Summer in a Muskoka hotel, then hitch-hiked to Halifax and on Christmas Eve hid aboard a liner bound for Liverpool, Eng.

Being discovered, the captain believed his story and kindly signed him on with the crew, so he worked his passage across the Atlantic. In London he worked in a cafe kitchen, but received some encouragement from English publishers, until he enlisted in the R.A.F., during the early part of World War II; being killed at the age of 23 in a bombing mission over Germany.

His name was Bertram Warr.

Published Three Books

The name "Dorothy Livesay" is recognized because she has published three books of poems, her last being in 1944 when her book "Day and Night" received the Governor General's Award. Miss Livesay is a graduate of Toronto University; has been a Social Service worker in Toronto, Montreal, New York and Vancouver. She is married and living in New Westminster, B.C. Outstanding among her poems is "Serenade for Strings", a poem of nativity.

Another Canadian poet winning the Governor General's Award for each of two books is Earl Birney, whose description of "Dusk on English Bay" is as beautifully painted with words as could be done by an artist with brush and pallet. He also wrote, "Road to Nijmegen", a Flanders town; which road, he describes as "arriving at no future", in the year 1944.

Three other young women have gained some recognition in the field of Canadian Literature, i.e., Ann Marriott of Saskatoon, who writes of the tragedy of the dried-out areas of Saskatchewan. Miriam Waddington, another University graduate doing Social Service work in Toronto, wrote "Investigator", a very real picture of life in a city's slums, and Patricia K. Page, whose poems are very popular because of their particularly musical placing of the words. She has written "Stories of Snow" and "These Stenographers".

Imagination Forms Part

In closing Mr Crawley said in part: "Canada's greatness, as one of the nations of the world, lies not only in her natural resources of mines, soil and forests, but to a great extent in the imagination of her people, as is shown in art, music and poetry. Our duty is to encourage these young artists, so they can continue working in their homeland. And, if we do this, there may come a time when we shall be proud to have been in part responsible for their creative art."

The National Anthem dismissed the gathering, after which those present were given an opportunity of meeting Mr. Crawley during the tea hour. The social function was under th ecapable management of Mrs. F. J. McKeown, social convener, with Mrs. A. C. Cameron and Mrs. J. W. Kinnear pouring tea and Mesdames L. G. Dandeno, S. Joss and W. R. McCreary assisting.

PHILLIPSON—ZION W. I.

Mrs. Lorne Brough of Foxboro, was hostess to the ladies of the Women's Institute on Thursday when 27 ladies attended the regular meeting. The President, Mrs. R. Cranston, presided and the roll call was responded to by the following thought, "What Democracy has meant to me". It was decided that this branch enter the poster contest and that the teachers and pupils of both schools be notified and induced to make entries.

Plans were made for a donation to be sent to the Hoodless Memorial fund.

Committees were appointed for the Hallowe'en party to be held in the Phillipston School with a masquerade and pie social featuring the evening.

The convener of Citizenship, Mrs. Clifford Ray, ably dealt with the subject "Welcoming New Comers" and helping them get established in our community. A special welcome was extended Mrs. Don Bibby, Scotland and Mrs. Ray Dickey, of England, two of the war brides in the community who were attending their first Institute meeting in Canada.

The motto "Kindness is to do and say—the kindest thing in the kindest way", was discussed by Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson and included many helpful thoughts.

The song leader, Mrs. Roy Sills led in the singing of patriotic songs.

Highlights of the area convention were given by those who attended and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Brough and assistant hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Locklin Presented With Gifts

On the evening of October 24th the Cannifton-Corbyville community gathered at the school to present Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Locklin, (nee Dorothy Veal) of Omemee, with a walnut lamp table and a walnut hostess table. An address was read by Mrs. Jack Williams with Patsy Gilbert and Rose Marie Latchford presenting the tables. Suitable replies of thanks were made by Mr. and Mrs. Locklin.

A short program was given with Mr. Jack Williams as chairman. Mrs. Ralph Plumpton led the community singing. Readings were given by Miss Hilda Treverton, junior teacher of the school, Miss Jean Matthews and Mr. F. Windsor. A piano duet by Don and Vivian Williams and vocal duets by Peggy Plumpton and Betty Kellar accompanied by Miss Meribeth Holgate and Floyd and Myrna Milton accompanied by Mr. Don Milton.

Mr. Locklin is principal of the Cannifton-Corbyville school.

Honored by Pupils

On October 22nd the pupils of room 3 presented Mr. and Mrs. Locklin with a pair of crystal candle holders. An address expressing the pupils' wish for their future happiness was read by Arlie McPherson, and the presentation on behalf of the pupils was made by Margaret Plumpton.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If I Were Your Boy Friend, I'd Give You The Air!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 19 and have been going steady with a boy of 21. We have been sweethearts for almost a year now.

Another boy who lives near my home has asked me to be his girl friend. He is 20 years old. But I don't love him like I love the other boy. He keeps telling me to give the other boy the air.

Do you think it would be right to give my old boy friend the air just for this second boy? And how can I tell this other boy I don't love him?

M. E. S.

Now don't you think this is a pretty silly question, M. E. S.? And don't you think it puts you in a pretty poor light? Certainly it doesn't make you out a very loyal friend, if you could even consider throwing over one boy for no reason whatever except that another one came along and suggested it. It doesn't make much sense, either, for you to talk about loving a boy if you're thinking about treating him so shabbily. If you really love him, you'd send this other chap off about his business in double-quick time.

As for how to tell this second boy you don't love him, I can suggest one excellent and simple way. Just say: "I don't love you, and I do love the other boy and I don't want you to bother me any more." That ought to take care of him. If it doesn't, then you'll probably have done it in such a half-hearted way that he know you didn't really mean it.

But if I were your first boy friend, and discovered what was going on, I'd give you the air?

She Doesn't Seem Worth Your While, "Hopeful"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My age is 20. The girl I'm in love with is 16, and she claims she's in love with me.

I see her at least five nights a week, and the nights that I do not see her she goes out with girls who have bad reputations. Her so-called girl friends keep telling her that I'm not only giving her a line and they introduce her to other fellows who are supposed to be gentlemen. Then when I keep telling her how much I think of her, she insists I do the same with all the girls.

Now I am inclined to believe that it's only her other girl friends who are coming between us. We have talked about this, but she just won't pay any attention to me and won't believe anything I tell her. There is only one thing in my favor, and that is, her mother doesn't want her to go with these particular girls.

Can you help me on this?

Hopeful

I suppose you mean, "Hopeful", that you want me to suggest something you can say to make this girl pay atention to you and believe that you love her. But I don't think you'll be able to accomplish anything along this line by doing any more talking about it. Arguing about such things never gets anyone anywhere.

Myself, I wouldn't feel it worth-while bothering about a girl who chooses the kind of companions you say this one does. What do you see in her, anyway, and why not pick out a girl with better taste? I'm sure you'd be happier. Anyhow, I'd give the one in question a little absent treatment for awhile, and see if that doesn't bring her around.

At 14, She's in Love With Her Cousin

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 14, and in love with a cousin of mine. I had never seen him since I was a child, but now we have met again and I fell in love with him. I have only met him this once, but I am sure he is in love with me, too.

When I met him this time, he wanted to talk to me, but there was no chance. I'm sure he wanted to tell me what he felt about me.

Do you think it is right to be in love with a cousin?

Tillie C.

I don't think it will do any harm at all, Tillie, for you to be fond of this cousin, but I think you'll change your mind a number of times about whom you're in love with before you decide for good and all. Don't take it so seriously.

And I wouldn't jump at conclusions about his being deeply interested in you, either. After all, you've seen him only once in a long time, and even then you had no chance to talk to him. Do not let your imagination run away with you, or you may be disappointed.

It would be nice if the two of you could be friends and have some good times with each other. But be a sensible girl and don't start thinking about being in love with anyone for a few years yet.

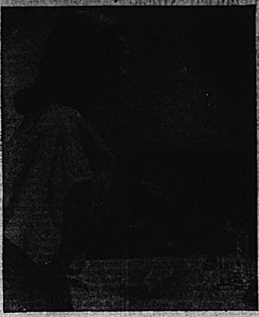
How Healthy is Your Hair



By HELEN FOLLETT

IT IS A singular thing that many individuals suffering from scalp afflictions or falling hair rarely consult a physician and only in few cases will they visit a specialist. It is silly to be resined to affliction that can be cured. There are medical men who have become expert in dealing with diseases of the skin and scalp. Advances have been made along these lines during the last decade.

Clean Hair

Many men and women never have really clean hair. Soap deposits are left on the silky shafts. Combs and brushes show a grey deposit .After a time, soap will not remove the gummy substance left on the glorious crown, in which event a beautician will use eggs. The growth cannot thrive under such conditions A touch of cologne in the water when you set your hair will help neutralize leftover soap.

One can be strong and healthy and so neglect or abuse the hair that it deteriorates early in life. One can be of delicate health yet, by massaging the scalp, brushing the hair, keeping it beautifully clean, can develop a halo that is "a thing of beauty and joy forever."

It is possible that diet has something to do with hair health. Play safe by getting all the food elements the body needs for well being.

The hair, like every cell and tissue of the body, gets its living from the blood streams. That is why scalp massage is considered necessary if it is to maintain vitality, keep the pristine coloring.

After you have creamed your complexion, as you should every night of your life if it is to remain smooth and of fine texture, spread fingers and thumbs over your scalp, give the flesh a good mauling. Five minutes of friction will bring a glow. On the night before the shampoo, dip your fingers in hot mineral oil when giving yourself this treatment.

Replying to Invitation Sent by Several Hostesses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When several hostesses are giving a party (for example, a bridge party or a tea) and the invitation does not designate to whom the reply is to be sent, to whom should one address the reply?

T. T. R.

If you know all the hostesses, you may address your reply to the one at whose home the party is to be given. If not, you may send your reply to the hostess you know best, who, the chances are, was the one who suggested you be invited.

Reception Directly After Ceremony Most Convenient

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be married soon, and although we haven't much money to be used for the reception, we would like to have some kind of simple reception if possible. The ceremony is to be at five o'clock, and we are wondering if it would be proper for the bride, bridegroom, maid of honor and best man to go to a restaurant to dinner, and then come back to the house for a reception, say from seven to ten o'clock, at which we would serve sandwiches, punch, and the wedding cake. What do you think about this plan? Could you suggest something different?

A. D.

I am never enthusiastic about the plan that means there is to be a considerable number of hours between the marriage ceremony and the wedding reception. This usually causes a good deal of inconvenience to a majority of the guests; that is, to the guests who are invited to both the ceremony and reception. Why, in your sister's case, wouldn't it be possible to have the informal reception follow immediately the five o'clock ceremony (or a four or four-thirty ceremony if the church is some distance from the bride's house)? This is the customary plan, and generally speaking the wisest and most convenient. Why should the guests at the ceremony be made to wait while the bride, bridegroom and their attendants dine, and then return for the reception? The menu for the reception directly after the ceremony or in the evening may be only punch (for the toasts) and the bridal cake; with, if you wish, the addition of simple sandwiches and coffee.

Signing a Guest Book

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one signs a Guest Book at a wedding reception, should the formal or informal name be written? That is, should a married woman sign "Mrs. John Smith" or "Mary Smith"?

D. H.

The informal name should be written. . . . "Mary Smith" or "Mary Robinson Smith".

A Tip For a "Paging" Bellhop

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening I had an engagement with my cousin to dine with him at one of the largest hotels in this city. I arrived at the time appointed, and several minutes afterward I was paged to come to the telephone to speak with my cousin, who explained that he was detained. I didn't tip the boy who paged me. Should I have tipped him, and if so, how much?

Bill

Yes, it is customary to give a tip to the bellhop for this service. A dime is adequate.

Bermuda Elections Preceded By No Meetings, No Speeches

By FORD BAXTER
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 30—(CP)—When Lord Burghley, noted British athlete and international sports figure, was governor of Bermuda he said it was wrong to claim that the colony had no party politics — on the contrary, he maintained in several speeches, it had 36 members in the House of Assembly and as many parties.

Canadians on holiday in the Island last week had the opportunity of seeing something of Bermuda's parliamentary election machinery in operation during a by-election in the biggest parish—Pembroke. They probably went home completely befuddled.

The election was preceded by no meetings, no speeches, no campaign promises and no organized canvassing. Dignified notices were inserted in the local newspapers by the four candidates—one banker, H. D. Butterfield, and three merchants, A. E. Nicholl, Gilbert Cooper and Archie Mercer.

Mr. Butterfield was the most reserved. All he stated was: "I shall be honored to serve in the House of Assembly again, if re-elected as a member for Pembroke." He won the seat. He polled 166 votes against the 164 ballots for Mr. Nicholl, an Englishman.

Mr. Cooper, after explaining that he had been asked to run, concluded: "If I should merit your support at the polling, I shall esteem it a great honor." He got 66 votes.

Wordy Document.

Absent from Bermuda at the time, Mr. Nicholl referred to a circular he had distributed when he lost out in the 1943 general election. "We must keep in step with the times," he had stated in a wordy document. "Our political, commercial, social and moral standards must be good enough to command the respect and consideration of the delegates from other lands."

The fourth candidate, Mr. Mercer, polled only 39 votes and became the first parliamentary nominee in Bermuda history to lose his $200 deposit, because he failed to get at least one-eighth of the total vote.

Mr. Mercer served notice on the electors that he had been approached to run and had agreed to offer himself as a candidate. He submitted this generalization: "I realize fully the many complex problems which will face Bermuda during the next five years. I assure you all that I shall, if elected, endeavor to make my decisions in the best interests of the colony as a whole."

Of Pembroke's total of 5,000 residents only 884 were eligible voters, a voter having to own real estate valued at $240. Of these only 448 dropped ballots in the box. This was considered significant in view of the current controversy here over the universal franchise.

As they did before the election, candidates confined themselves to a few words. It was "Thank You" by Mr. Butterfield and "I hope to warrant your confidence another time" by the other candidates who were present.

The winning candidate, therefore, enters the 300-year-old assembly, the oldest in the Empire with the exception of Westminster, without commitments. He will vote as he thinks best like the other 35 assemblymen, including the speaker who shares in debates during the committee stages.

Merchants' Plant, Dominion Rubber, Accepts Terms

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 30—(CP)—The last of the strikes which tied up 10 Ontario rubber-manufacturing plants employing more than 8,000 workers for most of the summer was settled here with announcement that workers have ratified agreement between the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO) and the Merchants' Plant of the Dominion Rubber Company.

At the Merchants Plant here approximately 1,200 had been on strike for 128 days. Unionists walked out June 23 at all the Ontario rubber plants in a general demand for a 20 cents an hour wage increase and a 40-hour week. Most of the settlements, which came in a rush during the past two weeks, were on the basis of a 13 cent increase.

The Merchants Plant settlement announced last night was on the basis of a 13 cent increase, but off-shift bonuses of three and five cents were granted, with a night shift bonus of four cents where workers are on a two-shift basis. Pay increases are retroactive to May 19 and Alfred Mustin, president of Union Local 67 said that with overtime pay premiums granted just prior to the strike the total benefits to the workers were 17 ecnts an hour.

The local strike was one of the largest in the province. The biggest rubber tie-up was at the Goodyear Tire Company in New Toronto, where 2,500 walked out. There were 1,400 out at the Gutta Percha in Toronto, 1,300 at Firestone in Hamilton and 1,000 at the Goodrich Company in Kitchener.

Other plants hit by the June walk-out were the Seiberling Company in Toronto, Barringham Company at Oakville, Dominion Rubber's two other plants in Kitchener, and Goodyear at Bowmanville.

Engaged to Conduct Market

Then the commission's report showed, A. H. Jobson of New York entered the picture after being engaged by Ciglen to conduct the market. Jobson traded heavily with Toronto brokers in the shares. "The primary purpose for which Jobson was placed in control of the market was to cause the public to purchase Beaulieu stock," the report said.

During March, 1946, while the market rose from 78 cents to $1.44, sales of 467,800 shares were made against purchases of 348,700 shares through an account listed under the name of C. Silverman, a girl employed in Ciglen's office.

Supported Market

When rumors started last April there was heavy selling and Jobson took 330,3000 shares in two days to support the market. He soon found himself long 154,000 shares with a debit balance of $340,598. The Ciglen group came to his aid with cash.

The report said that about this time Ciglen arranged with John Van Allen of New York to help the Beaulieu market. Van Allen purchased a total of 298,500 shares and, the report says, sold them immediately while Jobson was trying to keep the market up. The report said Van Allen made a profit of $195,000.

After the stock had hit a top of $ 2.65 the break came following an editorial in a Toronto Mining publication criticizing the company's publicity methods. The break was aided by heavy short sales in which Toronto operators had a hand, the report naming as among these Lee Brooks, G. A. McTeigue and B. W. Newkirk. Jobson abandoned his market support and Ciglen bought stock until his finances were exhausted.

The "Silverman" account at one stage was long 624,6000 shares with a debit balance of $828,378. The stock exchange auditor visited the brokerage office which handled the account and instructed no more stock was to be bought for that account until the debit was paid. The Beaulieu market cracked in the next session, May 20.

No Fraud Found

"We find that the Ciglen group through the intermediary of Jobson undertook to affect the public market price of the shares of Beaulieu," said the commission report, "but we cannot find that they used deceit, falsehood or other fraudulent means."

The report said further that the commission had no complaint against short selling practice but recommends to the exchange that regulations covering placing of short sale orders be enforced strictly. It also contained recommendations that delivery of "lieu slips" instead of certificates in short sales be discontinued, that brokerage accounts be better audited and that closer check be kept on brokers' stock positions.

MOLOTOV SPEECH

Impressive Speech

Mr. St. Laurent said it was "a very impressive speech dealing with matters with which many countries are concerned."

"It may be that more than is suggested in his resolution will be required to enable us safely to reduce our armaments. The objective is one everyone shares."

L. D. Wilgress, Canadian Ambassador to Moscow and an alternate delegate from Canada, said "it was the cleverest speech Molotov ever made — and very aggressive."

Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, leader of the South African delegation, said he was 'not surprised' on the disarmament proposal because "Canada's St. Laurent made a suggestion probably more effective than Mr. Molotov's resolution for disarming with safety."

British diplomats said it was disappointing "just when we were about to enter a new phase of cooperation," but Polish Foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski described it as "clear and impressive."

Contrast to Attitude

A member of The Netherlands delegation reported that he found it "in contrast to the benevolent atmosphere" which he considered the Russians had been building up during the opening days of the week-old session.

Mr. Molotov assailed Winston Churchill as a "prophet" of "aggressive, imperialist circles" and blasted Bernard Baruch, United States member of the U. N. Atomic Commission, for allegedly holding a "militant philosophy" leading toward a "new aggression."

He demanded a U. N. report on United States and British troops in foreign lands.

Mr. Molotov had spoken in Russian. When he finished he had to wait through two long translations of his 7,000-word speech, one into English, the other into French. When the interpreters finished, Assembly president Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium asked if there was any more business before he adjourned the session. The hall already was largely empty.

Wants Expression of View

Molotov sprang suddenly to his feet and said: "The Soviet delegation calls on the other delegations to express their views on disarmament."

The other delegations were caught off-guard, but Philip Noel Baker, Britain's graying, slightly stooped chief delegate, promptly rose and objected that there was neither time nor preparation for such a debate. Mr. Molotov insisted but was overruled by Spaak.

His insistence on the point, however, left no doubt that pushing the disarmament plan almost certainly would be Russia's primary concern during the remainder of this session. The four points of his plan are:

1. The general assembly should declare that it considers a "general reduction of armaments necessary."

2. It should particularly call for "banking the manufacture and use of atomic energy for military purposes." This would put the United Nations on record as demanding that the United States stop making atomic bombs.

3. The Assembly should call on the Security Council to carry out those two objectives.

4. The Assembly should also call on all member governments to cooperate in the arms reduction and atomic bomb ban projects.

Three Major Points

But the armaments plan occupied only a small portion of Mr. Molotov's 7,000-word text and in the rest he made these major points bearing Russia's attitude toward the United Nations, its past work and its current debates:

Veto—Success of the campaign to abolish it "would mean in practice the liquidation of the United Nations organization because this principle (that the great powers must be unanimous in the Security Council) is the cornerstone of the organization."

Atomic Control—The United plan by which the United States would give up the bomb only after international safeguards are established has a "certain degree of selfishness" and is "based on the desire to secure for the United States monopolist possession of the atomic bomb."

Criticised for Not Acting

Split Between Russia and the Western Powers—The "imperialists" in the western countries "see the greatest obstacle to the realization of their expansionist plans in the Soviet Union against which they, in their impotent race, would be prepared to unchain all dogs."

Troops Abroad—The presence of troops in other than former enemy countries (as in China and Greece) "gives rise to serious uneasiness among the people and world public opinion."

Security Council—Its refusal to act against Franco Spain was a "gross error which is bound to undermine its prestige" and its refusal to dismiss finally the Iranian case against Russia displayed "an unwarranted but openly unfavorable attitude toward the USSR."

United Nations Outlook—Existing shortcomings in the U. N. should be exposed "to see to it that they do not occur in the future." United Nations action on the veto and disarmament proposals and the way in which it handles the conflict between the Soviet Union and the western "imperialists" will provide a measure of its ability to succeed.

Rules of Safe Bicycling Outlined in Booklet

Bicycle riders are being taught the rules of safe bicycling through the medium of a new booklet, "You and Your Bike," now being distributed by the Motor Vehicles Branch.

In announcing the release of this booklet, the Honorable Geo. H. Doucett, Minister of Highways, pointed out that in 1945 deaths resulting from collision between motor vehicles and bicycles increased by 56 per cent. from the total for 1944, as compared with an increase of 22 per cent. in all motor vehicle fatalities.

Illustrated with photographs of safe and unsafe bicycling practices, the booklet emphasizes the need for traffic law observance, keeping bicycles properly equipped and maintained, and the need for continued alertness to avoid actual or possible hazards.

Among the unsafe actions contributing to most accidents the booklet points out, are: riding on the wrong side of the street, zigzagging in and out of traffic, ignoring traffic lights and stop signs and riding at night without proper lights.

Because of the present paper shortage, the booklets are being distributed only to bicyclists in the schools, but additional copies may be had by writing to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Toronto, 2.

Painted for Calvert by Adam Sherriff Scott, R.C.A.

When Ruperts Land stretched from Ontario to the Pacific and north to the Arctic, one man controlled its destiny. As Governor-in-Chief, Sir George Simpson guided Canada's pioneer fur traders for nearly half a century. In uniting the Hudson's Bay and North West companies in 1821, Simpson did much to found Canada's prosperity at a time when fur was Canada's wealth.

Famous English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, Calvert founded historic colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland in the early 1600's. "Preserve the laws . . . for unity," Calvert counselled his settlers.

Calvert's ideals of unity have been shared by all men of vision since Calvert's time 300 years ago. Let each of us be a man of vision now . . . help guide Canada's destiny.

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP) — Even before its season opens, the eastern United States Hockey League is engaging in a raucous rhubarb subject of which is to play or not to play overtime in the case of ties in regulation time.

President Tom Lockhard has decreed no overtime. Mike Uline, owner of Washington Lions, says all ties should be played to a sudden-death finish.

Roger (Washington News) Treat writes that omitting overtime "is handing the public a nuts-to-you" and regulation ties are unsatisfactory, depriving the fans of a legitimate thrill.

Counters Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson: "This we doubt . . if teams can't reach a decision in 60 minutes, there isn't any reason to believe they can do it in an extra 10." Elmer says longer overtime than 10 minutes is impossible with crowded schedules necessitating immediate transportation.

From here 't appears both sides can make out a pretty fair case. Any other ideas on the subject?

Anecdote: Red (Toronto Star) Burnett tells this one on Coach Doug Monsson of Queen's University.

Seems Fred Doty, Rudy Grass and Rod Smith of the Varsity Intercollegiate football squad were in Kingston a week ago last Friday awaiting the game there with Queens. They were eating in an off-campus restaurant when in came Monsson.

Spotting the muscles of the Torontonians, the Gael's mentor proselytized: "Hey, fellows, who haven't big huskies like you reported for football practice? The team needs you and you owe it to your school."

"Well, sir," said Smith, chortling happily up his sleeve, "we're studying pretty hard."

"Don't worry about studies," said Monsson. "Look at me; I played football and managed to get through school without trouble... I'll see you boys Monday."

Monsson saw them all right—not Monday but Saturday—when Varsity poured a 21-0 can of shellac on the Tricolor.

You have spots before the eyes in the morning? Feel tired; Run down? Out of sorts? Consider the sorry awakening of Rex (Guelph Mercury) MacLeod.

That intrepid sports writer is an amateur clock-maker. When his alarm-clock ran into mechanical difficulty recently, MacLeod tore it apart, put it together, set it for 7 a.m. and went to bed beaming broadly. The clock worked, to, and went off sharp at 7.

The trouble was it didn't ring—it emitted a loud, vulgar Bronx cheer. And still does.

All Yours

TO WORRY ABOUT

Unless you shift the burden

When a relative or friend names you in his Will as executor of his estate, the time will come, (if you survive him), when everything that is his, —business, investments, debts and family problems— will be all yours—to worry about.

If you are a busy man or are not experienced in estate administration, you would find that arranging for Probate, valuing Assets, establishing Debts, paying Succession Duties, dealing with investments, setting up Trusts, making Distributions, and attending generally to the many details of Administration, would be more than you could handle, with justice to either the estate, the heirs, or your own affairs.

Should this happen to you, the thing to do is appoint The Royal Trust Company your Agent, to administer the estate, which would relieve you of all but superficial functions as executor.

Conversely, and in consideration for the friend you might yourself appoint, be sure to name The Royal Trust Company in your own Will as executor and trustee of your estate, to act alone, or with a relative or friend as co-executor or adviser.

It often pays in many ways to have the job well done.

No More "Packing" Aboard Troopships

London —(CP)— Complaints of "sardine-packing" on British troopships should be heard no more if the War Office acts on the report of a special committee and streamlines its troopships.

Seeking ways of improving upon the 27,000 ton Georgic, former Cunard White Star transatlantic liner and now its latest trooper, the War Office recently assigned a team to accompany her on a trooping mission to Bombay and back. Their reports are being studied.

The Georgic was refitted for her task after burning out at Suez in 1941 and already offers individual fold-up berths for every soldier, movie theatres, recreation rooms, large mess halls, and cafeterias. She is air-conditioned throughout and wired for public-address systems.

Here's One Player Who Gets A Big Kick Out of His Work

By WALTER L. JOHNS

Cleveland, Oct. 28 —Although he is only 22 and never played varsity football in college, Louis R. Groza already has a toe-hold on football fame.

They call this six -foot three-inch sub tackle of the Cleveland Browns professional team "The Toe." And for good reason.

What he can do with a football by place-kicking it is unbelieveable until you see him in action.

His antics on the gridiron which have made him the leading scorer in the All-American Conference despite the fact he never once carried the ball revolves around a tale of the "tape."

The "tape" is a white ribbon of canvas, two inches wide and 72 inches long which Groza carries in his football helmet as he lumbers on to the field after the Browns have scored a touchdown or when he is called upon to make a field goal try.

Originated by Don Greenwood, former Illanois star who plays left half for the Browns, the tape is quickly stretched down on the turf with Greenwood kneeling at the top of the tape, ready for the pass from centre. Groza centres the tape by moving the other end along a perpendicular line to the goal posts.

When the ball is snapped, Greenwood puts the ball down on the tab at the top of the tape, making sure the lacing is towards the front.

Groza comes charging up along the tape line and kicks the ball He makes sure he kicks along the inside edge of the tape.

The crowd knows what to expect. Groza doesn't miss.

He's so good that in six games to date he has booted 18 straight conversions and seven field goals, one of them being a 37 -yard boot in the agme against the Chicago Rockets.

And this fellow is playing his first season in the pro ranks and never had the benefit of college varsity play!

What he will do by the end of the season should make him a modern exponent of the place-kicking art, rarely used in college play but brought to national attenion in recent years by such pros as Ward Cuff and Don Hutson.

Groza, an all-round athletic star at Martins Ferry, O., in his school days, also does the Browns' kicking off. He frequently boots the ball high over the goal posts on the kickoff a performance which usually draws the "oh's and ah's of the visiting press.

The place -kicking expert has all the physical requirements for tremendous leg power but in addition he has the knack of booting the ball under fire with amazing accuracy.

Place-kicking, Groza admits, is like golfing in that basic tenet is to keep the head down and concentrate on the job.

He had some help from Ernie Godfrey, the Ohio State line coach, when he spent his freshman year at the Buckeye school. As a member of the undefeated 1942 Ohio State freshman team Groza booted five field goals, one of them a 48-yard belt.

Like most of the players on the Cleveland Browns' squad, Groza was hand-picked by coach Paul Brown. The clever little Brownie mentor knew what Groza could do with his foot from Ohio State days and when the Martins Ferry pride came out of the service last year and indicated he'd play pro football instead of college ball the Browns signed him to a contract.

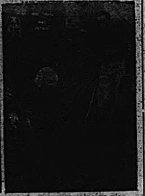
During his service tenure, which stretched over 38 months and took in most of the Pacific Islands, Groza had little chance to practice but did get some work in while on Mindoro in the Philippines.

One of four brothers to star in athletics at Martins Ferry high school Groza earned 10 letters, three each in football and basketball and four in baseball. He was the captain of each team in his senior year.

He was better known as a basketball player than a football star while in high school although he was chosen all-tackle in 1941.

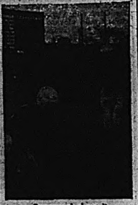
He plans to complete his education but contiue toplay pro football.

Gives tape to Greenwood.



Don puts tape on 10.

Ball is passed back.



Greenwood places it.

Groza counts his steps,

And kicks it—but good!

Ottawa, Oct. 30—(CP)—Prices Board officials are giving increasing attention to the question of a plan for Canada's butter ration this winter, but have so far come to no conclusion, and, the prospects are there will be no change in the present six-ounce ration at least during November. One Prices Board official said that it was "touch and go" whether the Dominion would have to cut back on the ration. He said it was expected a decision would not be made for a fortnight.

The determined looking Tovarich pictured above is not a member of the cast of a musical comedy, but an honest-to-goodness Cossack from the icy steppes of the Russian Ukraine, who is in this country toiling for wrestling honors. He is slated for action against the rough toughie Sandy O'Donnell, in the semi-final at the Hume Arena, Friday night. In the main bout, Natie (Nasty) Brown, latest villain to incite the wrath of the faithful here, tangles with Karl Davis. This ex-boxer with the dynamite in either hand has only been wrestling a couple of years and undoubtedly there are plenty of big matmen who could trim the tights off him if he would stick strictly to grappling. But Nasty Nate is smart. At the moment when he looks to be in serious trouble he throws one of those lethal lefts of his and then follows it up with his roundhouse right. Anything short of a bull-necked wrestler would be knocked cold and even the heavyweight grapplers wilt under the continued punishment But in meeting the Krippler, Brown will be stacking up against one of the bitterest foemen the game has produced. Davis won't hesitate to throw punches, or kicks either, himself and when the two ruffians get really going at each other it should be a regular dockwallopers Pier Six brawl. In the semi-final Kola Kwarianni, the Russian Cossack, meets a newcomer here in Sandy O'Donnell. O'Donnell is the St. Louis wrestler who is meeting Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout at Maple Leaf Gardens this Thursday, but slamming Sandy agreed to the semi-final spot here for an introduction. It is expected he will give the Russian quite an evening. Ben Sharpe and Pat Flanagan meet in the third bout.

"Goldfish Bowl" at Madison Square Garden Initiated By Game Between Rangers, Boston

Toronto Leafs Open Tough Grind Playing Three Games in Four Days

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The new "Goldfish Bowl" at Madison Squar Garden gets its first test tonight as New York Rangers come home after four games on the road to meet the bruising Boston Bruins, undefeated in four games so far in the National Hockey League race.

In the other scheduled game, Toronto Maple Leafs open a tough grind of three games in four days as they meet the Black Hawks in Chicago. Leafs then skip back to Montreal for a game against Canadiens Friday and make a home stand against Boston Saturday.

Rangers, who have been homeless so far as a rodeo occupied their home stamping grounds, give the New York customers their first N.H.L. hockey this season in a rink that has been fitted with armor plate glass, all around the boards. Its intended to protect the customers from flying sticks and pucks, but also should came in handy to guard the referees from Mayhem-Bent fans.

Leafs, the Leagues other undefeated squad, will be trying for a repeat performance against Hawks, whom they edged 2-1 in Toronto last Saturday as Turk Broda outlasted Paul Bibeault in a netminding duel.

A Return Go

The Boston-Rangers game also is a return go, as Bruins took the New Yorkers 3-1 in Boston Saturday to chalk up their first win after three successive ties.

Tonights games may provide a shuffling of the standings, since only three points separate the top and bottom teams. Leafs have six points, Bruins and Canadiens have five each, Rangers four, and Hawks and Detroit bring up the not-so-distant rear, with three each.

But whatever happens, the centre of interest remains on the Friday "grudge battle at Montreal between Canadiens and Conny Smythe's "Battling Buckaroos."

General Manager Frank Selke of Canucks, a former Leaf executive, has charged the Toronto defence with "wrestling" tactics and may film the game to show the visitors up.

That isn't likely to slow Leafs any, because Smythe has vowed to make this year's squad a fighting one—let the penalties fall where they may.

Canadiens also have an incentiva to give their all, after the weekend rumors of a shake-up in the championship squad if they didn't pull up their socks. Selke said after Canadiens' weekend showing against Detroit that the heat was off for now, but the old-timers among the Habitants won't be taking any chances of loosening that sharpened axe.

BUFFALO BISONS HAVE CHANCE TO TOP LEAGUE

Hornets and Barons Also Have Chance to Deadlock Capitals for Lead

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons, American Hockey League champions, have an opportunity to move into first place in the circuit's western division tonight, while Pittsburg Hornets and Cleveland Barons have a chance to deadlock Indianapolis Capitals for the lead.

Currently trailing the idle caps by one point, The Bisons play host to the Barons, last season's playoff finalists while the Hornets entertain the tail-end Philadelphia Rockets of the eastern division.

The Barons and the Hornets are deadlocked for third at seven points apiece, two points behind the Caps and victories for both clubs would elevate them into a deadlock with Indianapolis for first place. If the Bisons beat Cleveland, they will lead the sector by one point.

Pittsburg battled St. Louis Flyers to a 6-6 tie at St. Louis in the circuit's only game last night.

The Hornets piled up a 6-3 lead but the Flyers stormed back in the last four minutes of the game and scored three times within 80 seconds.

Morey Rimstead started the final Flyer drive by etting his second goal 46 seconds later and Bill Allum tied the count at 17.19.

Don Metz and Wallie Wilson paced the Hornet offence by scoring two goals apiece. Wilson also assisted in three other Pittsburg markers.

Pete Langelle, Armand Lemieux scored other two Pittsburg tallies while Harvey Fraser scored the remaining Flyer goal.

18 Newspapers Represented At Fall Meeting

Toronto, Oct 30 —(CP)— Representatives of some 18 Ontario newspapers attended the fall meeting of the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association yesterday, discussing editorial and business matters. The Kirkland Lake Northern News, which became a daily Oct. 1, was addmitted to membership, bringing the association's total to 28.

Editorial writers, as well as publishers, attended and took par in a discussion on editorial writing led by C. F. Sanders of the Brantford Expositor. W. C. Clark of the Dominion Meteorological service weather reports for newspapers. Fraser MacDougall, Ontario Superintendent of the Canadian Press, spoke about news coverage.

Two officials of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association—I. H. Macdonald, general manager and Duncan MacInness—took part in the business discussion.

REIGH COUNT PURSE FEATURE

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 30 (AP) — The Reigh Count Purse, named in honor of the winner of the 1928 Kentucky Derby and sire of Count Fleet, winner of the 1943 renewal, will be the feature attraction on today's eight-race card at Churchill Downs.

The $2,500, mile and 1-16th run attracted 10 performers, including the Lowenstein and Wexler entry of Porterfield and Trixie.

Others include Gueydan, Sandy Pam, Wild Advance, Lexingtonian, Wire Guest, Santa Claus, Lucky Greenock and Stut Eye.

J. W. Goodwin's Rose Bed won the $2,200 Tyster purse yesterday in a driving finish with J. A. Kinard's Bengal Boy. The winner stepped the seven furlongs in 1:26 1-5 and paid $12.60, $5 and $3.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Now that the die is cast for the operation of Belleville hockey teams under one executive, it is hoped that some action will take place immediately. For instance, the residence rule date peters out in a few days and if any outside players are to be brought into the Belleville fold, now is the time to do it.

• • •

Intermediate officials at the Monday night meeting stated that they have knowledge of three or four outstanding players who will come here providing jobs are found for them. One of them is a qualified electrician, and not a stranger to this city. Business and industry can do its share towards gathering the nucleus of a good intermediate squad in this respect. Any jobs available gentlemen?

• • •

The aged gent with the scythe and whiskers has taken a more or less heavy toll of last year's junior Bears. No less than five or six of the 1945 edition of Belleville's beardless buckaroos have now attained voting age and automatically pass from the ranks of the Juniors. Included are Bill Holway, the Meagher brothers, Doug Bush, and others. Don Barrett, starry centre of last year's team, is up in the big junior time and Dicky Fitzpatrick will do his hockeying and baseballing at Potsdam Cellitch, having been awarded a neat and nifty scholarship.

• • •

Speaking of Barrett, a wire flash this morning reveals that he will be travelling in super-junior company. The Stratford Junior "A" entry, with the veteran Dave Pinckney at its helm has garnered the services of Dunc Daniels and George Robertson, former Winnipeg Monarch stars, and Nick Mikoski, formerly of the St. James Canadians. The Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association gave the kids the green light officially yesterday to play with the Stratford entry.

The Ontario Church Basketball Association is looking forward to another banner year on the hoop courts. The association is holding an executive meeting in the James Street South Y.M.C.A., Hamilton, on November 3 at 2 pip emma, and each affiliated association, league or club is requested to have two representatives attend. For those unable to put in an appearance, but desire to affiliate, applications should be mailed immediately to the secretary, Mrs. J. Woodley, 13 Aikman Avenue, Hamilton.

SPLIT DECISION.

There are baseball fans in the Southwest who will tell you that "Oklahoma" O'Brien was the greatest umpire who ever lived. They say O'Brien had plenty of offers from the Big Leagues and turned them all down, so great was his loyalty to his Class D circuit. He had the eye of an eagle, the voice of a bull and such vast knowledge of baseball that experts from as far away as New York used to write for his opinions on ticklish decisions.

• • •

• • •

To show you how he worked under pressure, O'Brien admirers will describe the famous 16th inning of the game between Sagebrush and Tanktown for the league championship. The score was three to three. Tanktown's batting star, Lefty Martin, came up in the bottom half of the inning with two men already out, but Sagebrush hadn't scored and by the time the count on Lefty got to three balls and two strikes it looked as if the game would probably go into the 17th. Lefty took a savage cut at the next pitch, a high foul, and everybody heard his bat break with the blow.

• • •

Well, that was the fifth broken bat, the last whole bat in either dugout, but just as Umpire O'Brien was about to call the game, a little kid ran out on the field lugging an axe and said, "Here, Lefty, take a sock at it with this." O'Brien, knowing that the crowd was hungry for a decision, said the axe would do.

• • •

The pitch was fast and low and Lefty swung, aiming to clout the ball with the back of the axe, but the axe turned in his hands and he sliced the ball clean through. One half sailed out into short right, where the fielder nabbed it. The other half soared out of the park, way up into the centre-field bleachers.

• • •

O'Brien, they say proudly, never hesitated. "One-half out," he roared, "on the fielder's catch; one-half run for the bleacher fly. Tanktown wins: 3½ to 3!"

• • •

This afternoon the Belleville Collegiate senior football squad tangled with the classy Albert College gridders in their second C.O.S.S.A. football engagement. The Collegians had a one-game advantage up till today and if the Collegiate squad evens matters a play-off game will be played on Nov. 6. The winner in either case will go on and meet the winners of the northern section of the Bay of Quinte District of the C.O.S.S.A. on November 8 or 9.

• • •

Red Townsend's junior B.C.I.'ers have a two-game advantage over the junior squad from Albert and another win will put them "in." If by any chance the College kids win the next two tilts and even matters the fifth and deciding game will be played on either November 12 or 13. On Thursday afternoon the B.C.I. senior squad treks to Kingston where it will meet Regiopolis College in an exhibition tilt.

• • •

• • •

There was a fight manager named Fred Winser, a hard-bitten smart former boxer, so the story goes, who had a gold mine in his hand and didn't know it. In Denver he met a scowling, black-browed young hobo who was broke and hungry. The youngster looked mean and bitter and tough, and Winser had no difficulty persuading him that fighting was an easier living than riding the rods.

• • •

The pair of them went out to California, where the ex-hobo won a few four-round fights. But he and Winsor quarrelled continuously. about money, training routine and instructions in the ring. One night there was a real flare-up. Winsor lost his temper and left, vowing he'd "have nothing more to do with the bum."

• • •

He was correct. It was the last word he ever spoke to "the bum," who was Jack Dempsey.

Stymie Has Chance To Boost Earnings Another $25,000

Baltimore, Oct. 30 (AP) —Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Stymie, often called turfdom's biggest bargain, will have an opportunity to boost his all-time earnings another $25,000 Friday in the Pimlico special, and a victory in this mile-and-3-16ths classic would put him in reach of the record set by Whirlaway.

The Texas-bred five-year-old, claimed by Mrs. Jacob's husband, trainer Hirsch Jacobs, for a mere $1,500, arrived here by van yesterday from New York, scene of his $59,050 win in Jamaica's Gallant Fox Handicap last week.

The Gallant Fox purse brought Stymie's earnings to $516,885 — just $44,876 short of the roll banked by Whirlaway before his retirement.

But the field in the winner-take-all special will include some of the nation's top-ranking competitors, despite the recent defection of Calumet Farm's Armed, now retired for the season, and George D. Widener's Lucky Draw, kept off the entry list because of Widener's opposition to the receiving Brans Mandatory under Maryland Racing Commission regulations.

Assault, the King Ranch's up-and-down three-year-old, remains in New York, and decision on whether to ship him for the special will depend in large measure on his performance in a workout today.

Varsity May Play Toronto Argos Exhibition Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Bobby Coulter of the University of Toronto thinks the Grey Cup may end up in the wrong hands this season, no matter who wins it. He hopes to prove the point on the field by having the intercollegiate football loop play an exhibition game against Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four. He says he'd back his college boys against any senior team. The issue has been raised ever since the east's intercollegiate circuit withdrew in 1935 from the Canadian Rugby Union's Dominion playdowns.

Although one college football coach, Henry Johnson of American International College, has, on his own declaration, been "fired" between halves this season, a survey by the Associated Press indicates that the vast majority of the pigskin mentors in the United States are enjoying unusually amicable relations with the old grads. The survey showed not a single coach of any of the major football powers has been reported on the way out.

The National Boxing Association complained at Washington yesterday that the world's middleweight championship has become a "closed corporation" and added that it didn't like it. They said under the present setup Charley Burley of Pittsburgh won't get a crack at the title for a year. An elimination series was suggested to obtain an opponent for champion Tony Zale.

Whitney Stone, president of the National Horse Show which opens at New York Nov. 4, said yesterday he had received word from Canada that it would be impossible for the Dominion to send a military team for the international military jumping contests.

Third baseman Stan Hack and outfielder Bill Nicholson have signed 1947 contracts with Chicago Cubs, squelching rumors Hack was headed for a managerial job with Los Angeles and that the Bruins had soured on big Nick. Also signed, it was announced yesterday, were rookie first baseman Eddie Waitkus and catcher Clyde McCullough.

Clarence Campbell, new president of the National Hockey League, will be given a dinner by Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden tonight before the opening of the New York season of the N.H.L.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

First time you see an endplay work, it looks like luck. You get the idea that somebody was smothered in four-leaf clovers. It has all the earmarks of being an accident.

This comes from being unaware of the earlier actions leading up to it. An endplay is usually the climax to a careful advance plan. It could be an accident, of course. But seldom is it.

There are important steps to be taken in preparation of a good endplay. Even then, the planner does not return to normalcy. He must deliberately give up a trick instead of trying to win one.

Gain from an endplay comes from having an opponent lead what you desire. So, how do you get him in that mood? By bringing about a situation where he is compelled to make such a lead.

In the endplay there are two operations. The first is where you exit to the opponent; that is, throw him into the lead. The other is where he is forced to lead what you anticipated from him.

How can you work up to such an endplay? Simply by exhausting his cards in the suits you do not want him to lead. This process is known as stripping. The entire scheme is thus a strip-and-endplay.

The remainder of a deal is shown here:

These are the last four cards in each hand wih south now in the lead. At a small slam in no-trump, declarer in the south took the first nine tricks with the help of dummy.

A club trick must be lost to the west ace. To keep from also losing a diamond trick, west must be forced to lead that suit. So, south must exit to west with a club for a diamond return.

Before doing so, however, south leads heart ace to strip west of that suit. Stripped, west is end-played into returning a diamond.

Nothing to it when you know how.

Little Benny's Note Book

I opened our frunt door to peek in before I went in, and pop and ma were eating supper already, and I thought, heck, I'm late again, gosh shang the luck.

And I went back in the dining room hoping nothing would be serious, and pop said, Well, here he is again, the late young Mr. Potts. No doubt you have an excuse that would melt a heart of stone, he said.

Sure, pop, I mean G, I had to stop to help some poor guy get a kite down out of a tree, I said. It was all tangled on a high brantch, and this kid was standing there looking up at it as sad as anything, the poor guy, I said, and pop said, For once your story really strikes a simpathetic cord in my flinty nature. One time my kite, I mean my car, got stuck in a sand bank on the side of a road, and it might still be there if 2 gentlemen truck drivers hadn't given me a half hour of their valuable time. If the boy with the kite felt as desperate as I did, you performed a noble action. What did you do to help him—boost him up in the tree? he said.

No sir, he was a kind of a fat kid and looked hard to boost, I said. I just gave him different kinds of free advice how to get it down, such as getting a pair of football shoes with spikes in them to climb the tree with or coming back on a windy day and waiting for the kite to blow itself untangled, I said, and pop said, For Peet sake didn't he get it back after all?

Well G, pop, how could he? I said. I mean he never had it in the ferst place, I said, and pop said, Do you mean it wasn't his own kite in the tree?

No sir, it was just a kite he happened to see up there, I said, and pop said, Sit down and stay down.

Which I did feeling lucky.

SHAKESPEARE FIRST FOLIO IS SOLD FOR $22,000

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—A first folio edition of Shakespeare's plays, published in London in 1623, seven years after the playwright's death, was purchased at an auction for $22,000 by an anonymous private New York collector. The volume was from the collection of the late Eldridge R. Johnson, of Moorestown, N.J., founder of the Victor Talking Machine Company. It sold for $5,400 in 1900.

JOCKEY INJURED

San Mateo, Calif., Oct. 30—(AP)— Nick Wall, 36, fast, hard-riding jockey who always gave the fans a ride for their money, was near death today.

Wall went down in a flurry of horses' hooves yesterday in the fifth at Bay Meadows. He suffered 12 broken ribs and a dangerous spinal injury. The jagged edge of one broken rib crowded his heart today.

Doctors gave him a slight chance to live. And he may never ride again if he recovers.

ONE ATTEMPT SUCCESSFUL

Brampton, Oct. 30 (CP)— After thieves went to a great deal of trouble to break into the Peel County registry office—and got nothing—they were more successful on their next attempt. Entering a private house by breaking a screen window, they stole six pair of nylon hose, $400 in goods and $157 in cash.

$3,500 DIVIDED

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)— Supreme Court today divided $3,500 left on a Long Island railroad train a year ago by a "man in a grey coat," to five claimants. Largest cut, $1,500 went to Trainman Paul Hafner who turned the money over to the railroad, which, as stakeholder, was awarded $500. Ev. Welter Plank received $750, and Mary Urquhart and David J. Kappel received $375 each. The trio said they summoned Hafner to take charge of the money.

TELLS JUDGE WIFE OFTEN BEAT HIM WITH NAILED STICK

Chicago, Oct. 30 (AP)—Frank Grochel, 45, a metallurgist, yesterday was granted a divorce from his wife, Jane, 40, after he told her the judge she often had beaten him him with a nailed stick. "Then why are you willing to agree to a $40,000 property settlement?" The judge asked Grochel. "I'd rather give her anything I've got than take a daily beating," he replied.

General Duty Nurse

By Lucy Agnes Hancock

CHAPTER 1

"Apple polisher!"

The jeering voice reached the girl in the hall of the Nurses' Annex and she paused abruptly. Who was Holden panning this time? She had not long to wait for another voice indignantly refuted the accusation in no uncertain terms.

"She is not! Sally Maynard is the sweetest, most accommodating girl in Linton and you should know it. She certainly has done you plenty of favors."

That was Margaret Adams speaking and the girl outside felt an uprush of affection for her advocate. But just what did Norma Holden have against her? She turned away but before she heard Norma say, angrily:

"She's too smooth—too eager to please for my money, Adams, and just because a certain few of you fall for that sweetness and light method she has of getting what she wants is no reason why I should. She doesn't pull the wool over my eyes. I can see through her. 'Oh yes, Doctor!' 'Certainly, Miss Sanderlin!' 'I'm only too happy to help where I can.' La-de-da—blah-blah-blah. Phooey!"

The mimicry was much too good and Sally Maynard, cheeks burning, slipped down the hall to her own room. went in and closed the door.

So that's what some of her colleagues thought of her — an "apple polisher"—a term of derision no girl with self-respect could take lying down. But what could she do? As far as Sally knew she had done nothing to earn that contempt—that bitter scorn. Something must have happened. But what? She had intended asking Norma Holden and the other girls who were off duty and still in the house to come to her room for ginger ale and some of the fruit cookies Aunt Clem had brought her that afternoon when she went to Red Cross. She couldn't do it now. Instead she found the book she had started on Sunday and sat down to read. But her mind kept searching the past for an explanation—a reason for Norma's epithet, and she put the book down.

It hadn't been easy for Sally to adjust herself to the rigid discipline required by the faculty of Linton Memorial Hospital. But she had done so and now, a year after graduation, she had no regrets. Aunt Clem had opposed her becoming a nurse and Sally had spent months convincing her that nursing was what she wanted and what she intended following as a career. In the end the good lady capitulated, though not at all gracefully. She had entertained other plans for her lovely young grandniece and even yet had not entirely given them up.

Sara Elizabeth Maynard had been a rather lonely child, serious beyond her years and somewhat given to introspection. She had early developed a feeling of responsibility toward life—a self-discipline and integrity that amazed and troubled her worthy and socially minded relative. However, Sally was naturally happy though never boisterous and Miss Maynard felt certain that, given her head her charming girl would in due time come to her senses, which meant, come to her aunt's way of thinking.

But Sally completed her three difficult years of training and instead of retiring to a life of ease and social conquests had listened to the pleadings of Doctor Richards, Linton's chief of staff, to remain at the hospital as a general duty nurse. The hospital had been badly hit by the war. With so many of its doctors and nurses entering the service the sadly depleted staff was but a mere skeleton of its former rather impressive body. It was only then that Miss Maynard became reconciled to the path Sally had elected to follow. She might have done as so many members of her profession had chosen to do — gone into service to unthought-of dangers and unspeakable conditions. So Miss Maynard—Aunt Clem—held her peace.

Sally Maynard had been a general favorite with the faculty since her entrance. She had, until now, supposed that the entire staff liked her. She really hadn't given it a great deal of thought but now as she sat in her room, an open book in her lap, she tried to think back over the years and discover, if she could, just where she had failed. To be sure she had never been arbitrary —it wasn't her nature. She had been willing and docile because those traits were a part of her make-up. It was her nature to like people and to try to get along with them. She supposed she had succeeded; but apparently she had not—if what Norma Holden said was true. Of course she must never reveal to anyone what she had heard. It had not been intended for her ears. She smiled wryly. How true it was that listeners seldom heard anything good about themselves.

The ambulance left the courtyard and Sally went to the window to watch its progress down the hill to the town below. It was a wild night and traveling was hazardous. She hoped the poor soul for whom it had been sent was not suffering too much. Suddenly she felt very tired. It had been a hard day and tomorrow morning at seven she was due to go on a new case. She had heard about this Mrs. Hobbes — heard she was something of a tartar and had twice already demanded a change of nurses.

A light broke. That was it. Holden was being replaced and she didn't like it. Norma had been day nurse in room 249 and was being replaced by Sally. Why, Sally had no idea. She shrugged but felt relieved. She could cope with a thing like that and she didn't intend letting it bother her one bit. Well, it was now too late for a party. She was glad she had left the ginger ale downstairs in the refrigerator until the last minute. She buried the carton of cookies in the bottom drawer of her dresser and prepared for bed. Tomorrow was another day and from all reports it would be a trying one for her.

At chapel next morning Sally sat in her regular place. Margaret Adams was beside her. The two had visited for a moment as they stood before the bulletin board exchanging items of news. Norma Holden hurried from the elevator and paused for a glance at the board then with a bare "Hi!" went on down the hall. Jim Hallock, senior interne, came in from a rear door and Norma greeted him with laughing enthusiasm. Apparently her ardor was not shared by the young man for her passed with a casual nod and dashed into chapel ahead of her.

Margaret said nothing. Sally was sure she wouldn't. Margaret never gossiped and Sally admired her for it as well as for other traits that had made her loved and respected by the entire staff. Now as the superintendent approached from the rear, the two girls went on into the shabby chapel with its rows of chairs lately barely half-filled with nurses, doctors, internes and such of the employes as could be spared even for the brief service.

Seventeen stars studded the field of the service flag hanging on the wall behind the reading desk and unconsciously every eye seemed to focus there as the superintendent opened the psalter and read the morning lesson. It was a rather long psalm and Sally found her thoughts wandering.

This morning the chief of staff was present and Sally thought he looked very tired. No doubt he had been up and operating the greater part of the night. The resident and a visiting surgeon were beside him and on the other side of the rostrum were two strange men in Navy blue and wearing the insignia of the medical corps. Sally wondered if they were here to recruit more of the staff.

But if the staff was further depleted how was the hospital to go on? She joined in reciting the twenty-third psalm and ,at its close the older of the officers stepped forward and made an impassioned plea for recruits. Her eyes traveled around the sparsely filled room and she wondered if anyone there would sign up. They all listened attentively; but every one of those present realized the conditions existing in Linton Memorial—the only hospital within a radius of twenty miles. The hospital still maintained—in theory—its eight hour working schedule. Actually everyone was on duty ten and more often twelve hours while the doctors seemed to work straight through the twenty-four. How was it possible to lose even one member of the staff and still run the hospital? Sally didn't know and as she watched Doctor Richards' face she knew he was wondering the same thing.

• • •

The pale rays of early morning sun were filtering through the big stained glass window when Sally left the chapel and hurried along to the elevator which carried her to the third floor and her new assignment. It was barely seven.

"Good morning, Mrs. Hobbes," she greeted her patient. "It seems good to have even this pale sun after last night's storm." She picked up the chart and saw that the lady had slept well—rousing but once when she demanded a hot water bottle and an alcohol rub. The woman watched her warily.

"I hoped for an older nurse," she announced truculently. "You young girls have no patience or sympathy for what I am suffering. I'm paying good money for service and care and what do I get? Indifference, even neglect, or else a lot of platitudes fed me in a sugary voice that is simply maddening. I should have gone to Quaker City as my husband suggested, though I have a notion he wanted me far enough away so he wouldn't have to visit me so often. Men!" She spat out the word as if she hated it. Sally listened with apparent attention but began maping out her line of attack.

This patient must be handled with firmness—kindly but firmly. She saw that she had been on a very strict diet. Linton tried to satisfy everyone and usually succeeded. But in cases like this there was little to offer.

"I never eat much at breakfast," the woman said sourly. "And before I touch a mouthful I want a glass of hot water with the juice of half a lemon in it and I want it hot. Understand?"

"I understand," Sally said quietly. She brought up a thermos jug of hot water and a glass which contained the juice of half a lemon. She watched the patient sip the mixture with relish, then lowered her bed and helped her turn so that she could lie on her right side as she demanded. "And in half an hour you are to have a slice of toast and a cup of black coffee — not too strong. In the meantime I'll leave you to a nap."

"Where are you going?" Mrs. Hobbes snapped.

"Just down to the kitchen to see that your tray is right. Was there something I could do for you before I go?"

"I don't like being left alone. I think."

"I see," Sally said. "Then I'll call the kitchen and have a tray sent up to you. The speaking tube is in the corridor. If you want me just press the button. I won't be a jiffy." She wondered why the patient didn't want to think—to be alone with her thoughts. For a long moment there was quiet in the room and Sally slipped out to order Mrs. Hobbes' breakfast.

"Gallbladder congestion—calculus—" No wonder the woman was bad-tempered and viewed the world through dark glasses. Poor soul! Sally determined to do her best in making Mrs. Hobbes' stay in Linton happier.

The resident was with the patient when Sally returned from her errand.

"I was next door," Doctor Willoughby told her as he examined the patient's chart. "Definitely on the mend, Maynard,' ' he announced, his voice low. "You might give her a portion of cereal —oatmeal or wheat gruel, whichever she prefers. No cream and but little sugar. We don't want her to lose any more weight."

"Stop muttering, Doctor, and talk so I can hear. I'm not dying—or am I?". Mrs. Hobbes spoke sharply and Sally smiled at her.

"I was merely trying to give you a surprise with your breakfast, my dear lady," Doctor Willoughby said soothingly.

"UUmph! I haven't much faith in surprises, and I'm sick of dry toast and black coffee. I'll have tea this morning—tea with lemon and—"

"Oatmeal gruel flavored with a little nutmeg. There—how's that?" Doctor Willoughby asked enthusiastically.

"Probably sounds better than it tastes," Mrs. Hobbes said acidly. "However, I don't suppose it will kill me. None of the rest of the messes you've dished out to me has. But it's the tea I want — remember hot and with lemon. Better change that order, Nurse, and don't be long either. I know how you girls get to gossiping—"

Sally fixed the tray for her patient with unusual care. It was late for breakfast trays and she had the diet kitchen to herself. She made the gruel, sweeting and seasoning it until it was almost appetizing, brewed a pot of tea, sliced lemon thin, cut crisp toast into small wedges, placed the whole on a tray and snitched a daffodil from a box of flowers that had just arrived. She was humming softly as she reached the elevator with her burden and stopped quickly when from behind her a hand reached and pressed the button then took the tray from her. A sixth sense told her it was Doctor Hallock and she stiffened resentfully.

• • •

"Good morning, Blithe Spirit!" he greeted her as the car slid upward toward them and stopped to let them enter. "Who's the lucky patient? Mm'm'm. This smells good. I never cared for gruel before; but I could go for this concoction—served by you, Sally."

"It's for Mrs. Hobbes, Doctor," Sally told him coolly.

The elevator stopped and the young man stepped aside to let her precede him. Sally held out her hands for the tray; but he motioned her to go on.

"I'm going down to the end room, and will carry it for you. Why don't you use the dumbwaiter, though I'm only too happy to oblige," he said and began to laugh. "You missed a chance there, my girl. You might have retorted that you were using one —a dumb waiter, you know."

"It was too obvious," Sally said and choked as she took the tray from his hands. "But thank you, Doctor Hallock — and," she said quickly — contritely, because she would never willingly hurt anyone, "you are far from dumb."

The young man gave a startled exclamation but before he could recover from his astonishment, Sally had entered the room and shut the door behind her. Her cheeks were red and her eyes alight with mirth as she deposited the tray on a table and went to prepare her patient for her breakfast.

Dr. Willoughby had gone and Mrs. Hobbs eyed her with a mixture of malice and curiosity.

"A man, I'll wager. Probably one of those fresh doctors. You were away a long time, young lady."

C. Wellbanks, Picton, Seriously Hurt in Accident

Carman Wellbanks, well-known resident of Picton, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital early last evening suffering with what is believed to be severe injuries as a result of a motor-car accident near Mountain View.

Mr. Wellbanks was discovered in his wrecked car in an unconscious condition shortly after 6.30 and was rushed to hospital by Martin's ambulance. He had not recovered consciousnes when admitted.

According to reports from the scene of the accident, the car driven by Wellbanks, who was alone and who was proceeding towards Picton, went out of control on the rain-soaked highway near the Mountain View cheese factory, skidded across the road, crashed into a tree and rolled over on its side in the ditch on the west side of the highway. The car was badly damaged day morning when he entered the rooming establishment in the east-central downtown distict. Carmen Lavoie, 24, daughter of the proprietor—who later discovered the body—let the couple in and assigned them room No. 7.

Wellbanks is a former star athlete and is well-known in athletic circles of the district. Provincial Police are investigating.

BUSHMAN HELD

In a pocket of the suit the woman had worn on her last night out detectives found two ticket stubs. They bore the name of a theatre in Sorel, Que., a town some 50 miles down the St. Lawrence River from Montreal. The tickets were numbered 66,500 and 66,501.

Miss Lavoie, awakened early from her sleep, was hazy about the signing-in, but she remembered that the man was French-speaking, neatly dressed in a grey gabardine topcoat, a little under 40, his black hair greying slightly at the temples. She estimated he stood five feet, six inches.

Detectives refused to disclose the names under which the couple were registered. The man left the rooming house unobserved, so far as police could learn. Evidence of a struggle was seen in blood stains in the bedding.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 30 —(CP)— The market was down in the early session under the influence of a weak New York trend. Trading was in sizeable volume at 704,000 shares for the first three hours.

Industrial issues weakened about a point in the index, showing softness chiefly in the liquor, steel and utility groups.

The gold stocks took a loss of .39 in the early session. Trading in the group was quiet apart from turnover of close to 100,000 shares in Beaulieu on a gain of a cent or two. Quemont bulged about ¾ and the stocks of neighboring properties including Donalda and Osisko, firmed 10 to 12 cents. Rush Lake and Macfie were strong juniors.

NEW YORK MARKET

New York, Oct. 30 (AP) — A downward slide steadily gained momentum in the stock market today after an irregular opening. Volume picked up as prices were marked down.

Leaders in the industrial and other groups lost fractions to five points and more near the fourth hour. Steel issues did better than most others.

The market weathered news of suspension of trading in cotton futures in fairly good style. Brokers reported, however, that the suspension acted as a definite brake on demand, especially in view of the fact that cotton futures have tumbled around $50 a bale in one of the fastest break in prices on record, from the 26-year highs hit earlier this month.

The Canadian list at mid-day was mixed. McIntyre was up 3-4 with Dome Mines unchanged. Hiram Walker eased 1-4 and Distillers Seagram gained 1-8. C.P.R. was unchanged.

Canada Would Arm Council, Urges Arms Cut

New York, Oct. 30 —(CP)— Canada Tuesday urged the United Nations speedily to equip the Security Council with the power to enforce "proper decisions" to maintain world peace and in the same breath called for world-wide armaments reduction "so that the productive capacity of the world thus conserved may be used for improving the living conditions of all peoples."

Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, leader of the Canadian delegation to the U. N. General Assembly told the representatives of the 51 United Nations:

"It appears to us that it would be in the interest of all members of the United Nations to see the Security Council equipped and ready in fact to enforce proper decisions for the maintenance of world peace and also to see serious consideration given to the reduction of national armaments so that the productive capacity of the world thus conserved may be used for improving the living conditions of all peoples."

The Secretary for External Affairs, making his first speech to the General Assembly which opened its New York session last Wednesday, noted that its accomplishments had been "impressive" but added tartly: "But it is more important that this assembly take steps to remedy the shortcomings of the United Nations than derive too great satisfaction from what we have been able to accomplish."

In addition to arming the Security Council and armaments reduction, Mr. St. Laurent called, in sharp phrases, for:

1. Codification of international law with all members of the U.N. accepting the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice "with a minimum of reservations."

2. Economy in operation of the United Nations.

3. No unnecessary multiplication of internal organizations, conferences, councils and commissions.

4. Co-operation among U. N. members so that "we produce a record of accomplishment worthy of the respect of all the peoples of a united world."

Oakville, Oct. 30 —(CP)— Said to be the highest price ever paid in Canada for a single head of livestock, $40,000 changed hands Monday at the all-Canadian Holstein sale here for a five-month-old bull calf, Glennfton Killarney. The calf was bought by Waterloo County Holstein Breeders' Club from J. J. E. McCague of Alliston, Ont. The Waterloo association plans to use the animal at its artificial breeding centre. U.S. Joins Russia In Urging World Disarmament

Mutual Safeguards Against Violation Also Requested

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 31 (CP)— A full-dress debate on limitation of armaments today seemed certain to be placed on the crowded agenda of the United Nations General Assembly.

The proposal, made by Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Russian Foreign Minister, and accepted yesterday in a speech by Warren R. Austin, United States chief delegate, was being considered today by the Assembly Steering Committee.

Mr. Austin went a great deal farther than the Russian delegate, offering the fullest American co-operation to a disarmament program, but warned bluntly that it could be affected only if all complying countries would submit to effect inspection for mutual safeguards against violation.

He said the United States was not going to be caught again as it was when disarmament was effected after the First Great War.

The American demand for safeguards, supported by many other delegates, may cool Soviet enthusiasm for the project, since that country so far has presented solid opposition to any co-operative program requiring free access to information on what goes on inside Russia.

It is expected the opening presentations by delegation heads will be completed today.

Delegates and visitors crowded the Assembly auditorium on Flushing Meadows Park yesterday for the Austin speech, and sweltered in unseasonable heat when the air conditioning system failed to function.

Two Protests Received

Secretary General Trgve Lie received two protests from Gen. Enver Hoxha, Albanian Foreign Minister, asking General Assembly consideration of alleged British violation of Albanian waters, and border incidents provoked by the "Monarchist-Fascists" in Greece.

Another division came when at a brief meeting of the 11-member Security Council Poland's Dr. Oscar Lange and Mr. Molotov made a fresh drive to transfer the Franco Spanish case from the council meeting Monday.

New Wages, Hours Proposals Will Be Presented

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Truro, N.S., Oct. 31 (CP)—New wages and hours proposals were expected to be placed today before the annual convention of District 26 United Mine Workers, as the 88 union delegates moved into their tenth day of sessions.

The new demands, to be presented by the scale and policy committee,are reported to include a $2.50 increase above the present $5.84 basic datal rate and a 40-hour week in place of the current 44 hours.

C. B. Wade, Union director of research and education, told the convention yesterday that a union report suggesting expansion of the steel industry in Cape Breton now was under consideration by the Reconstruction Department at Ottawa.

The report, he said, suggested expansion of the industry to provide employment for 1,800-2,000 men in Cape Breton where there now were 4,000 unemployed.

Mr. Wade said the report had been placed with the Nova Scotia government which took no action and had been recovered and passed to Ottawa for the use of federal officials.

Among resolutions passed yesterday was one complimenting Clarence Gillis, C.C.F. member of the House of Commons for Cape Breton South, for his able work on behalf of labor in parliament and urging co-operation between the union's district board and Mr. Gillis.

RUSSIA SHOULD SHOW SINCERITY SAYS COL. DREW

Ontario Premier Declares Soviet Should Make First Move Toward Freedom

Dearborn, Mich., Oct. 31 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario told a Michigan audience that until Russia offers freedom to her satellite countries, other nations should not be asked to rely on Russia's word.

Addressing the Northern Great Lakes Area Council last night, the Premier said that since there is no assurance that the people of Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Eastern Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia and Finland will be offered their freedom, Foreign Commissar Molotov's proposal for world-wide disarmament was nothing but the same kind of cynical casuistry heard from Hitler before the war.

Stalin, the Premier said, had promised to abide by the Atlantic Charter, which assured small nations the right to determine their own course.

"But in spite of that promise, more nations have been brought under a foreign yoke by threat of armed force than ever before in history," he said.

"The first step toward general disarmament and the only real assurance of lasting peace will come when Russia fulfills her covenant to respect the freedom of other nations," he said, emphasizing that other nations should not think of disarmament while Russia proceeds with a "colossal" armament program behind a veil of secrecy and censorship.

Speaking of the relationship between Canada and the United States, Premier Drew asserted there was not the slightest possibility of union between the two countries.

"Perhaps I need hardly say we are as proud of being Canadians as you are of being Americans, but there is something else to be remembered. We are not only proud of being Canadians, but we are also proud of our place in that wide partnership of free people which we describe as the Commonwealth of Nations. I think there is a real importance to this fact. If this is kept in mind, then our own easy and friendly association has a much wider meaning."

Skunk in Window Well Refuses to Leave

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — There's a skunk in a window well outside an apartment house on Broadway Avenue in North Toronto, and four experienced skunk-hunters from the Toronto Humane Society can't get him out.

The expeditionary force led by John Leeson, veterinary surgeon, armed with full equipment, located the skunk's abode without any trouble and borrowed some strips of bacon for bait. Mr. Skunk managed to bite off a few pieces of bacon without getting his retreat cut off and the expeditionary force finally retired.

The apartment superintendent was advised to place a ladder in the well so that the skunk can leave when he gets tired.

"OVER-RIDING" RIGHTS ASKED BY DEFENCE COUNSEL

'Bill 9' Being Argued Before Privy Council Would Abolish The Right of Appeal

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 31—(CP Cable)—Declaring that "the administration of justice cannot be something that is exclusively provincial," F. P. Varcoe, K.C., of Ottawa, acting for the Attorney-General of Canada, today asked the judicial committee of the privy council for "over-riding" rights of Canadian federal authority.

Mr. Varcoe opened the Dominion government's case in defence of the Canadian parliament's right to abolish appeals from Canada to the privy council.

Mr. Varcoe spoke before seven law lords of the judicial committee after Frank Gahan, London lawyer acting for the Attorney-General of New Brunswick, and Emery Beaulieu, K.C., of Montreal, acting for the Attorney-General of Quebec, spoke against the proposed legislation.

The issue concerns the validity of the Dominion government's proposed "Bill 9" which would abolish the right of appeal.

The Dominion government, Manitoba and Saskatchewan support the measure. New Brunswick, Quebec and British Columbia are opposed. The bill was introduced in the Canadian House of Commons in 1939 but has not yet been passed pending outcome of the privy council appeal.

Quebec's argument today concluded the submission of the four provinces opposed.

Mr. Varcoe opened the case in favor of the measure immediately afterwards.

Ample Support

He said the much-debated section 101 of the British North America Act was ample support for the bill abolishing appeals to the Privy Council and that "if the provincial legislatures had any jurisdiction in relation to the Privy Council it appears that their authority to legislate would be overridden by Dominion legislation of the same question."

"Even if the provinces had such legislative power the Dominion parliament, under the Act's 'Peace, Order and Good Government' clause in relation to matters of national concern would have power to enact the bill," Mr. Varcoe added.

Earlier Mr. Gahan had submitted emphatically that only the provincial legislatures of the Dominion have the power to prohibit appeals.

Mr. Gahan emphasized that "no parliament in Canada could compel the Privy Council in London to hear appeals from any court in any sovereign state."

Mr. Beaulieu then submitted that the provincial law of Quebec permitting appeals to the Privy Council was enacted prior to Confederation.

TO HEAD OFF POSSIBLE SKUNK INVASION

Fort Erie, Oct. 31 — (CP) — Council of nearby Crystal Beach, faced with the possibility of a skunk invasion, has purchased a trapper's license for Howard Mathes and given him its official blessing in an extermination campaign. The trapper's reward will be sale of the pelts. Council's reward, no skunks.

"BLUE BABY" TAKEN TO TORONTO

Windsor, Oct. 31 —(CP)— Windsor's "blue baby," Sidney Deforest, five-year-old ward of the Children's Aid Society here, who has been in hospital for the last eight months, today was taken to Toronto. Dr. Gordon D. W. Murray, of the Toronto General Hospital who recently has shown successful results in his treatment of "blue babies," will care for the youngster.

Three Seamen Burned to Death Bomb Apparently Hurled Into House

Baltimore, Oct. 31 (AP)—Three seamen were burned to death in a fire which swept a waterfront rooming house early today and battalion fire department officials said a home-made incendiary bomb apparently was tossed into the living room.

Police said the owner had received a warning a week ago.

A fourth man was critically burned, four others were taken to hospital with burns and one other was injured when he and another man jumped from a second floor window.

A one-gallon can which apparently had contained gasoline was found in the living room.

Patrolman Bernard Thomas said he was standing at a nearby intersection when he heard the large plate glass window in the front of the building crash.

At the same time, Thomas said, he saw a man walk away from the building, get into a car, and speed away.

Jesse Rodriguez, owner of the house, told police he had been acting as an agent for a Central-American steamship line. Police quoted him as saying a monkey wrench with a note attached was hurled through the same window a week ago. The note, police said, read:

"Stop rooming pinks in your house. This is your final warning."

ROYAL COMMISSION TO PROBE BRITISH PRESS

LORD CAMROSE

LORD KEMSLEY

LORD BEAVERBROOK

LORD ROTHERMERE

A royal commission inquiry into Britain's newspapers and press associations — particularly their alleged monopolistic tendencies — was ordered by the House of Commons after a bitter debate which saw the powerful press lords pictured here attacked by speakers urging the inquiry. Many of Britain's leading newspapers have been sharply critical of the Labor government's policies, a criticism resented by Labor party leaders. Lord President of the Council Herbert Morrison is principal government supporter of the inquiry, and wound up the debate with an indication that control of 20-odd newspapers by Lord Kemsley, leading British publisher, would be one of the main points of inquiry. The four peers shown ABOVE are leaders in what the Labor government refers to as the "Press Barons."

WORKMEN MOVE BACK TO PLANTS AS STRIKES END

At One Time During the Summer 40,000 Workers Were Idle

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)— The roar of big machines, smoke plumes from factory chimneys and the lines of workmen moving in and out of plant gates today signified the end of Ontario's wave of labor strife that at its peak left close to 40,000 workers idle in a score of industrial establishments.

Peace on the labor front opened the way for increased production to meet the back-log of orders arising from war-induced shortages of dozens of articles. It also meant the manufacture of materials badly needed by contractors whose building program bogged down for lack of nails, electrical fixtures and glass.

For this industrial strife, coming just as the reconstruction program started to hit its stride, struck the housing, automobile manufacturing and electrical equipment programs a body blow.

Stemming mainly from the drive by Canadian Congress of Labor unions most of the C. I. O. affiliates, for higher wages and shorter hours, strikes occurred in most of Ontario's major factories and put their workers off the payroll and on the picket line.

Union leaders who called the strikes argued that the workers needed more money because the cost of living, gradually freed from wartime restraints, was rising steadily. More money, coupled with shorter hours, they said, would raise the workers' standards of living. They wanted annual vacations, with pay so that they could take advantage of them without throwing the family out of whack.

In most cases, the workers won a considerable portion of what they asked for.

The strikes which affected the largest number of workers paralyzed the steel, rubber and electrical industries. Others stopped the output of chemicals, brass products and, later, wood products.

The 81-day steel strike involved 5,000 workers at the Algoma Steel Corporation plant in Sault Ste. Marie, and about 2,500 at two Hamilton plants of Steel Company of Canada, along with Dominion Steel and Coal Company's 4,000 workers at Sydney, N.S.

The steel strikes asked for a 40-hour week and wage increases ranging from 19½ cents to 24½ cents to bring the minimum weekly wage in all the basic steel plants up to $33.60 a week. They settled for an increase of 10 cents an hour retroactive to April 1 plus an additional three cents

THREATS OF WORK STOPPAGES SEEN ON LABOR FRONT

70,000 Workers at River Rouge Plant Will Soon File Strike Notice

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)— New threats of work stoppages appeared on the United States industrial front today as government officials mapped plans to confer with John L. Lewis tomorrow, hopeful of averting a strike by 400,000 soft coal miners.

In Chicago there was a threat of a shutdown of operations at the big stock yards, making idle some 25,000 workers, while in Detroit officials of Ford Local 600 of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) said they soon would file with the National Labor Relations Board a 30-day strike notice against the Ford Motor Company covering 70,000 workers at the company's Rouge plant.

After a new outbreak of fighting between pickets and police at the strike-bound Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company plant in West Allis, Wis., Mayor Arnold Klentz appealed to Labor Secretary Schwellenbach to have the company and United Auto Workers resume negotiations in an effort to settle the six-month-old dispute.

In the 11-day old strike by 1,400 AFL pilots against the Trans World Airline in a wage dispute, federal mediator Frank P. Douglas expressed hopes of bringing the disputants together.

Two strikes scheduled to start today were delayed. In New York the threatened walkout by 7,000 Western Union Telegraph Company employees was averted a few hours before the 12:01 a.m. deadline today, by an agreement to extend the present contract to April 1, 1947, and for employees to receive wage hikes. These included 16 1-2 cents an hour to all non-messenger employtes and 10 cents for messengers. The American Communications Association (C.I.O.) had asked 30 cents and other changes.

A work stoppage by members of American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) units at the Philadelphia Record and the Camden, N.J., Courier-Post, scheduled to start at noon today, was postponed for one week. The two Guild units voted to accept an offer by top C.I.O. leaders to negotiate with the newspapers' management in an effort to settle the wage dispute.

The Maritime strike, already settled on the Gulf and Atlantic coasts, appeared scheduled for long duration on the west coast. Harry Bridges, co-chairman of the committee for Maritime unity said that west coast maritime unions, already out for a month, had prepared for a "long drawn out strike."

ENTIRE WING OF BRITISH EMBASSY IN ROME WRECKED

Bomb Blast Shakes City and Wounds An Italian Passerby, Perhaps Mortally

Rome, Oct. 31 (AP)—A thundering bomb explosion which shook the city wrecked an entire wing of the British Embassy early today and wounded an Italian passerby, perhaps mortally. Police and Embassy officials confessed themselves without a clue as to the identity of the perpetrators.

A gaping hole reaching back for a depth of two rooms was torn into the building by the blast, resulting from two suitcases full of explosives detonated by clockwork. The heavy masonry of the block-long, three-storey structure was cracked so deeply that police said part of it might have to be pulled down.

Embassy personnel escaped injury, but two Italian passersby were wounded. One of them, Nocolino Plitta, was hurt so badly that he may die. Four Embassy guards were thrown from their beds but were not hurt.

J. G. Ward, the British Charge D'affaires, said the blast sounded to him like "a 500-pounder." Windows throughout the building, on Venti Settembro Street in uptown Rome, and in buildings across the street were shattered. The apartment of Ambassador Sir Noel Charles, who is away on leave, was damaged heavily.

Italian investigators, Mr. Ward and Michael Stewart, British press attache, all said they were mystified by the bombing.

"It would be useless to speculate," said Mr. Stewart. "There are, of course, many irresponsibles who might have done it—Palestine Jews, Egyptian Nationalists and so on, But I couldn't give a guess."

A detective on duty at the scene hazarded the theory that diehard Fascists who strewed explosives around a half dozen Italian cities Monday on the 24th anniversary of Mussolini's march on Rome might have been responsible.

Appeal Court Hears Argument

Toronto, Oct. 31—(CP)—Argument continued today before the Ontario Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall on an appeal of Hiram Walker, Limited, and Gooderham Worts, Limited, against a ruling of the Ontario Municipal Board holding them liable for more than $1,000,000 in income taxes to the city of Windsor for 1940-41-42. Previously a county court judge had ruled in favor of the companies.

G. W. Mason, who opened argument on behalf of the city yesterday, told the court that "taxation is not equitable if a company has escaped it, and according to the Assessment Act, errors and omissions may be remedied and municipalities may re-open the whole question if necessary."

Mr. Mason quoted from the Assessment Act: "All real property in Ontario and all income derived, whether within or out of Ontario, by a corporation, or received in Ontario on behalf of a corporation, shall be liable to taxation."

He said Windsor adopted a "special income tax roll" in 1936 when its administration was under supervision of the department of municipal affairs. This special roll was instituted at the direction of the department and "I ask you to assume that it had a right to do what it did."

The hearing opened Monday and argument on behalf of the company was presented by C. F. H. Carson.

Houdini's Ghost to be Asked to Prove Presence at Hallowe'en Seance

By ARTHUR W. EVERETT

Detroit, Oct. 30 (AP) The ghost of Harry Houdini, master magician, will have to prove its presence to skeptics if it comes back from the grave after 20 years to take part in a Hallowe'en seance.

A group of 13 occultists who will attempt to communicate with the departed wizard at midnight tonight, today called in some guests with arched eyebrows.

The hosts acted in defence to Houdini's earthly reputation as a foe of fraudulent mediums. The magician, who died in Detroit Oct. 31, 1926, was a tireless exposer of fake mediums during the last years of his life.

At midnight Thursday, the group will ask the magician to speak to them, or to signify his presence by knocking a book of magic from a table in a dimly-lighted basement of a magic supply shop.

As a conclusive test, Houdini will be asked to open a locked pair of handcuffs, the same pair he is supposed to have worn in an underwater escape in Detroit many years ago.

Keeper of the keys of the handcuffs will be Detective Sergeant Delbert Raymond, a member of Detroit's Homicide Squad.

Houdini reportedly promised to communicate from beyond the grave if it was possible. However, his widow died three years ago after making five unsuccessful attempts to break the silence of death.

Rumors of Arab Uprising Spread Through Jerusalem

Leaders of Futuwah Call For Parade, Mass Meeting

Jerusalem, Oct. 31 (CP) — Leaders of Futuwah, a Palestine Arab army, called for parade and mass meeting tomorrow in the Arab city of Nablus as rumors of an Arab uprising spread through Jerusalem in the wake of bombing attacks attributed by police to the Jewish underground.

Four British soldiers were killed and at least 12 Britons and six Arabs were wounded in yesterday's incidents.

Simultaneously, a spokesman for the Jewish agency said "the Jewish agency and other Jewish authorities will combat with all the resources at their own disposal the criminal activities of gangs which not only terrorize British authorities, but Palestine Jews as well."

The bombings were an "attempt to coerce the Jewish community into an acceptance of policies and methods which it has always opposed," he added.

Police said Palestine was quiet today as searches continued for the participants in yesterday's incidents—the bombing of the central railway station and the mining of a troop convoy.

The Futuwah parade at Nablus was expected to include a review of some 5,000 uniformed troops by their commander, Kemal Effendi Arikat, and speeches by Arab leaders.

Patience Wears Thin

One source close to Arab political leaders said "the Arabs in Palestine now are beginning to feel that nothing will stop these Jewish terrorists except force."

"The British won't do it and Arab patience wears thin," he added. "Everywhere there is talk of revolting against these marauding Jews, and what now appears to us to be their British protectors."

The possibility was mentioned in some quarters that the normally moderate Arab executive might even give the go signal for such a revolt because of yesterday's attacks which followed by less than 24 hours the inner Zionist council's call on Palestine Jews to deny support to "groups of terrorists who defy national discipline" and cause bloodshed by their tactics.

Police held 15 suspects today in connection with the bombing of Jerusalem's central railway station, which , was damaged by bombs planted by a girl and a gang of quick-shooting youths. Two British soldiers were killed in the blast and an Arab porter was missing.

No arrests were reported in the earlier blasting of a military convoy by a road mine in which two British soldiers were killed and at least 10 Britons and six Arabs wounded.

Ceilings off Hides And Leather in U.S.

Washington, Oct. 31 — (AP)— Price ceilings came off shoes, hides, skins and leather last night, and the other requiring production of certain minimum amounts of essential cotton textile goods was revoked. The two actions put the government back on the decontrol track which it had left temporarily earlier in the day with an order extending rent controls to additional areas with a population of 3,500,000. The Office of Prime Administration explained that move by saying that the housing shortage is growing "more acute."

STRANGE EVIDENCE CREEPS INTO TAXI SLAYING TRIAL

Winnipeg, Oct. 31 (CP) — A Man's handkerchief with the initial "J" and a piece of paper bearing the address of a Winipeg tutorial school took their place today in the crown's web of circumstantial evidence at the trial of Lawrence Deacon, charged with the iron bolt murder last March of taxi driver Johan Johnson.

Just where these crown exhibits fit was obscure, still to be brought out in this case which grew from the finding of Johnson's body crumpled in the front seat of his taxi on a road in suburban Tuxedo last March 31.

Three days of testimony in this trial of Deacon, a 32-fear-old former Canadian Armored Corpsman, have yet to show a motive for the killing which struck fear into Winnipeg cab drivers until the accused was arrested April 9. Beside the body police found an 18-inch iron railway bolt and today the Crown planned to fit this into its case.

That bolt, police have contended, was the murder weapon.

And the crown will attempt to prove that a 4 1-2-inch piece of cord police say they took from Deacon's room matched a piece bound around a newspaper containing the bolt found 90 feet from the 42-year-old cabbie's body.

The handkerchief and the piece of paper were introduced yesterday as Deacon, pale from six months' imprisonment, gave keen attention to evidence. Already the crown has called 40 witnesses.

The crown also got into its exhibits a statement given police April 9 by Mrs. Helen Berard, 28-year-old friend of the accused and a key crown witness. The conflict in her statement and in her oral testimony under cross examination took up much of the court's time the last two days and her statement was only ruled admissible when Mr. Justice W. J. Major reversed an earlier decision.

Will Seek to Have Law Amended On Manslaughter

Kingston, Oct. 31 — (CP)—W. F. and W. M. Nickle, counsel defending Gerald Smith, sentenced yesterday to three years for manslaughter, today said they will make representations to "the proper authorities" seeking amendment to the law governing manslaughter.

Smith was held responsible by a Supreme Court jury for the fatal shooting of Richard Morgan, both of Kingston, last July 8. Defence counsel told Justice F. H. Barlow, after the jury had retired that his charge suggested Smith was guilty of criminal negligence but the Justice had ruled earlier that the manslaughter count could not be reduced to a criminal negligence charge.

Justice Barlow, however, cited the case of Rex versus Bower in which the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled manslaughter can be reduced to criminal negligence when the case deals with one involving the use of vehicles.

CARPENTER TOOLS TAKEN AS GARAGES ARE BROKEN INTO

That carpenter tools are in short supply as result of the recent strike in the steel industry might well be indicated as result of reports of tools being stolen in two different sections of the city Tuesday night. Roger Rose, employee of Bill Deline, Coleman Street, reported to police that garages on Burton Street and on Hillside Street had been broken into during the night with carpenters' tools being taken in each instance. The garages were on premises where new residences are being constructed by Mr. Deline and carpenters locked their tools in the buildings overnight.

TEN BIKES IN POLICE STATION AWAIT OWNERS

There may be a shortage of bicycles in local retail stores, but such is not the case at the Belleville police station where this morning there was a total of ten "wheels" awaiting their rightful owners. The bicycles have been picked up by members of the local police force during recent weeks but thus far their owners have not thought to call around and claim their property. Police Chief Walter Probert suggests that persons having missed their bicycles call around at the police station.

Distinct Shortage Of False Faces For Hallowe'en

There may be all kinds of weird noises and goings on on Hallowe'en night, but there won't be the grotesque faces of witches, hobgoblins, gremlins and the like that ordinarily scare the wits out of a fellow, according to merchants who dispense Hallowe'en paraphernalia.

There is a distinct shortage of the gnomes, gargoyles, animal heads, old hag head-dresses that formerly masked the faces of Hallowe'en celebrants. This is due, it is stated, to the acute shortage of paper and paper goods.

So the young and old who celebrate masquerade parties on the memorable evening, and those who parade the streets in all kinds of make-believe get-up will have to be satisfied with grease-paint, lamp-black, burnt cork and lipstick if they want to disguise their facial beauty into something in keeping with Hallowe'en traditions.

However, there should be plenty of noise, as racket-making paraphernalia is plentiful.

Accompanying the bell will be a scroll of appreciation of the efforts and money of the residents of this city towards supplying comforts and supplies for the ship's company, signed by the Minister of National Defence for Navy.

Mayor Follwell today called a special meeting of the Corvette Committee for Friday at 4 p.m. when arrangements will be made for suitable presentation ceremonies to be held here. A high ranking naval officer, it is expected, will make the presentation on behalf of the government while the Mayor and city council will accept the bell for the residents of Belleville. Efforts will be made to make the ceremony a public one.

SMITH GIVEN 3 YEARS

Kingston, Oct. 31 — (CP) — Gerald Smith, 23, of Kingston, yesterday was convicted of manslaughter by a Supreme Court jury and sentenced to three years by Justice F. H. Barlow. Smith admitted firing a shot which killed Richard Morgan, 27, also of Kingston as Morgan sat in his truck outside Smith's house. A Grand Jury Monday refused to return a true bill for murder against Smith but did find that he should be tried for manslaughter.

He Stood in Semi-Naked Joy?? It Could Have Been this Guy Kilroy

The truck driver, slowly tooling his vehicle along an East Hill residential street suddenly jerked it to a halt. He stared unbelievingly at a strange apparition that stood in a Statue of Liberty pose atop a stepladder close to a window of a house.

Stranger yet, in cool October weather, the apparition was clad, it appeared, only in a shirt and underwear trunks. It nodded its head and emitted occasional yells for help.

The driver rubbed his eyes. "Haven't had a drink in two years," he muttered, "and this happens to me."

Then he smiled. "Mebbe I'm a hero after all, I'll bet this is that guy Kilroy they've been looking for."

But it wasn't that elusive gentleman. It was a luckless householder to whom befell a strange accident.

Putting on Storm Windows

It seemed he was putting up his winter storm windows. One was a bit difficult so he struck it a resounding blow. It snapped into position, but as it did it imprisoned part of the house holders hand—and there he was.

Helpless, hand held high above his head, he shouted for help. But the wife and neighbors were downtown.

Then he got an idea. Remembering a jack-knife he had in his pocket, he endeavored to extact it, but it was in a hip pocket of his trousers and just out of reach.

Being a man of resource, he looked about him. No one was in sight. So he loosened his trousers and endeavored to swing them around sufficiently to get that knife.

Then it happened. As he struggled with his pantaloons, they suddenly decided to give up the ghost and they settled slowly but surely to his boottops.

Luckily, the incident took place at the side of the house. Ladies and children passed by, but our hero, being the modest type, refrained from calling in feminine assistance.

For the fifteen minutes he enjoyed the cool October breezes, while stray Autumn leaves nestled against his underwear. Perspiration trickled down his face and he began to wear a strained look.

Then succor arrived in the form of a grinning truckdriver. The victim was released and he scudded into the house, pants in hand, a bit mortified at the forced posing of a picture no artist would care to paint. The gentleman's name is mercifully withheld.

One Charge Against Turner Dismissed For Lack of Sufficient Evidence

Maintaining that the Crown had not presented sufficient evidence to prove its case, Judge J. E. Madden of Napanee, dismissed one charge of gross indecency against Ralph Turner, former Coe Hill school principal, when he appeared for trial in county court here on Wednesday.

Turner still faces several other charges of gross indecency alleged to have been committed against male school children. He is out on bail awaiting trial following preliminary hearings before Magistrate T. Y. Wills late in the summer.

In the charge which was dismissed by Judge Madden on Wednesday, the Crown alleged that Mr. Turner had committed an act of gross indecency with one Gordon Card, a former pupil, "on or about Oct. 15th, 1941."

Date of Offence Not Proved

In summing up the evidence Judge Madden admitted that acts of indecency had been committed by the accused, but he held that the evidence had not been sufficient to prove that any act of indecency had been practised at the time alleged in the charge.

Six witnesses were called by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, including Mr. Thomas Hanthorne of Coe Hill, in whose house the offence was alleged to have been committed; Mr. H. Loucks, public school inspector, who testified as to the accuracy of school registration records; Provincial Constable Ernest Keays of Belleville and P. C. Stan Palmateer of Belleville; Gordon Card and his father, Frank Card of Bronson, Ontario.

As the last witness presented by the Crown, Gordon Card, age 21, told of coming to Coe Hill at the opening of the school term in the fall of 1941 to attend continuation classes at the Wollaston school. He stated he had boarded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hanthorne and had occupied the same room and bed with Mr. Turner.

Was Party to Acts

He admitted that he had been a party to acts of indecency with Mr. Turner but could not remember whether it was "two, three or four months" after coming to live at the Hanthorne home.

Under cross examination by Mr. Robb, Gordon Card was asked if evidence given by him at the preliminary hearing in August was correct and he replied in the affirmative.

In evidence given at the time of the preliminary hearing Card admitted of the act of indecency with Mr. Turner and stated that in giving evidence he realized he was incriminating himself. He had had the assurance of police constable that he would not be prosecuted, he said. He stated the acts took place "around Christmas time in 1941."

Constable Keays told of beginning his investigation into the Turner case in July, 1946, following information given to him by Constable Palmateer of Bancroft. He told of the arrest of the accused in Toronto on July 10th and of his obtaining a statement from Mr. Turner the following day. In the statement given to police Mr. Turner had admitted acts of indecency with Gordon Card and said that "it was a regrettable past."

Counsel Over-Ruled

Admissibility of the statement given to police was objected to by defence counsel Robb on the grounds of lack of proof that the accused had been duly warned. Judge Madden ruled however that the statement was admissible.

Constable Palmateer in giving evidence told of a conversation with Mr. Turner following the taking of the statement during which the accused had admitted the act with Card. "I had more confidence in Gordon Card. I did not think he would say anything," the accused was quoted as saying.

In summing up his case defence counsel Robb declared that the onus was on the Crown to prove the acts of gross indecency which were charged to have taken place "on or about Oct. 15th, 1941". He asserted that neither the exact time nor place of the alleged offence had been proven.

"To admit the Crown's evidence would be to show that the accused was evil-minded and likely to commit such an act of indecency," contended Mr. Robb.

Not Exact Date Fixed

Crown Attorney Donnan maintained however that the evidence showed there had been an act of indecency, but he admitted the Crown could not fix the exact date. He claimed the Crown had fixed the place of the offence and referred to the accused's statement to police in which he had admitted the offence and expressed a desire to plead guilty in connection with the Gordon Card case.

In dismissing the case against Mr. Turner, Judge Madden stated that the time and place of the alleged offence had not been sufficiently identified by the Crown evidence.

"Undoubtedly there were acts of indecency practised by Mr. Turner with Gordon Card, but the evidence is not sufficient to prove that the acts were practised at the time alleged in the charge. The case is dismissed."

Police to Patrol Streets on Watch For Unruly Hallowe'en Pranksters

Although goblins and witches will be permitted to prowl with all liberty this evening, the local police department will be on the lookout for Hallowe'en pranksters whose aim is to destroy property.

Just this was the warning issued today by Police Chief Walter Probert who stated that extra patrol cars will constantly patrol all sections of the city with members of the police force keeping a sharp lookout for any destruction of property. The entire city police force, assisted by members of the Ontario Provincial Police will be on duty during the night, it was stated.

Just a word of warning to householders who ordinarily place their garbage cans on the street Thursday evening. The police department suggests that temptation not be placed directly in the path of Hallowe'en pranksters, and that householders refrain from placing out their garbage cans until the next morning in time for the regular garbage collection.

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—Ruth Landi, brunette entertainer, says Toronto is noted in show business for its "paralyzed pleasure-seekers."

Druggists Advised to Pay Particular Attention to Merchandising Methods

Members of the Quinte District Druggists' Association numbering about 35 persons gathered at the Quinte Hotel Wednesday evening to hear reports of their recent provincial convention and to discuss matters concerning the retail drug business. Chairman of the meeting was Mr. Lorne Pickering of Picton, with branch representatives being present from Napanee, Trenton, Brighton, Bloomfield, Picton, Stirling, Madoc, Campbellford, Brockville and Belleville.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Mr. R. Carey, assistant general manager of the Drug Trading Co., Toronto, and former Prices Board administrator during the war years, who spoke on the prospects which Canadian business may look forward to during the next few days.

Two Viewpoints

Business men in Canada can take two different viewpoints of business prospects, according to the speaker. One is an optimistic viewpoint, looking for a continuation of large business volume and "easy" times, and the other a pessimistic viewpoint, looking for rapid deterioration with prospects of depressed conditions. Adoption of the latter attitude can cause depression by shrinking credits, thus lowering business volume. Depressions are caused by fear.

Mr. Carey believed that good times can be had in Canada for a considerable number of years and pointed to several reasons for this viewpoint. These were Canada's sound monetary policy during the war; the amount of savings in the hands of the public, and the tremendous amount of work which would follow as result of the large housing program which must be undertaken.

The present commercial expansion now underway was a sign of confidence in the future, while the government policy of sharing wealth such as family allowances and unemployment insurance would also assist in maintaining good conditions.

Not All Smooth Sailing

Not all would be smooth sailing for the retailer, however, according to the speaker who warned that competition would be keen. He advised better merchandising and pointed out the advantages of proper advertising. Retailers must also realize the role which present day women are taking in buying the family needs and should cater to their wishes. A high volume of sales can do much to keep up the national income.

During the war years smaller stores were protected by the allocation system, but they must now do better merchandising or they will lose this advantage, according to Mr. Carey.

Also speaking at the meeting was Mr. George Pauley of Belleville, who as district representative of the Ontario Retail Druggists' Association, pointed out that this was a voluntary organization. Meetings were held to get the opinion of the individual druggist on the needs of drug retailing.

Col. F. C. Currie, O.C.P. counsel, spoke on matters pertaining to the pharmicists' counsel referring to the number of veterans presently taking accelerated courses. Out of a total registration of 364, there were 252 veterans, he said.

Truant Officers Need Specialized Training—Dunbar

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — School truant officers stand in as much need of specialized training as teachers, says Hon. George Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Reform Institutions.

In an address last night, Mr. Dunbar said the tendency is to engage anyone who is out of a job as a school attendance officer yet the truant officer may be the one who will "make or break" a child entering the first stages of delinquency by playing hookey.

"I believe that there should be just as much care in the employing of a truant officer as is taken in the engaging of a school teacher," said the minister.

Hallowe'en Has Long Been Associated With Pagan Beliefs

This is the night the hobgoblins howl. For 'tis Hallowe'en and prospects point to another joyous celebration of witchery, grotesquery and all the colorful atmosphere that is associated with the occasion.

And, according to certain mysterious goings-on that have taken place lately especially in the children's realm, the night will have a decided "Kilroy" motif.

Childish imaginations have conjured up ideas of what the elusive man-made mythical menace looks like, and tonight will no doubt be productive of a number of caricatured versions of the physical proportions of the now famous Kilroy.

But, Kilroy and all, the city tonight will be invaded by an army of make-believe. From dark corners, from side-streets, from secluded places and brilliantly lighted thoroughfares, the small shock troops, intent upon candy and apple loot from a more or less prepared citizenry, will converge upon householders with a modern version of "stand and deliver."

Strange Noises

Doorbells will jangle. Strange noises will emanate from dark corners. The rataplan of staccato machine-gun-like sounds will jar on lower floor windows.

On the street, youthful pirates, Negro mammies, brides, period dandies and other versions of childish masquerade will parade in organized groups intent upon exacting the toll of sweets and apples from a willing populace.

It is the children's night to "howl" as mythical witches swish through the air astride broomsticks, and hobgoblins with eerie calls beckon to other imaginary supernatural spirits on their annual night "out."

Hallowe'en or Hallow Even, the evening of October 31 is so-called because it falls on the eve or vigil of All Hallows or festival of Saints which falls on November 1. It is associated in the popular imagination with the prevalence of supernatural influences, and is clearly a relic of pagan times.

In the north of England, Hallowe'en is known as Nutcrack Night. In Scotland the ceremonies of the eve were formerly regarded in a highly superstitious light. and Burns' Hallowe'en gives a humorous and richly imaginative presentment of the usual ceremonies as practised in Scottish rural districts in his day.

The principal of curiosity in consulting the future was to discover who would be the future partner in life. Popular belief ascribed to children born on Hallowe'en the faculty of perceiving and holding converse with supernatural spirits. And Kilroy was not know in those days.

Last Vacancy To be Filled On December 23

Ottawa, Oct. 31 (CP)—The last vacancy in the House of Commons is expected to be filled Dec. 23 with a Federal by-election in Richelieu-Vercheres to fill the seat left empty Oct. 20 by the death of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Independent member. The date was announced last night by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

While the government has lost out in the last three by-elections held in Pontiac, Toronto Parkdale and Portage La Prairie, the Richelieu-Vercheres seat holds a strong record as a Liberal constituency—a record paralleled by that of Mr. Cardin, who had held the seat since 1911.

A member of three Liberal governments, Mr. Cardin ran as a Independent Liberal in the last general election after resigning from the cabinet over the conscription question when he opposed sending home defence troops overseas. However, he was later listed in the parliamentary guide as a straight Independent.

Date on which nominations for the by-election close was not announced, but it was expected this would fall on Dec. 16—one week before the voters cast their ballots.

Mr. Cardin's death, coming on the eve of the Toronto Parkdale and Portage La Prairie by-elections, left a vacancy at a time when it appeared the 245-seat Commons would be filled for the first time since last spring, when W. R. McDonald, Liberal member for Pontiac, died.

Liberal Since 1896

In the by-elections of the last two months, Real Caouette, Union Des Electeurs De Pontiac, was victor in that seat, and Progressive Conservatives won the other two, Harold Timmins winning in Toronto and C. C. Miller in Portage.

The Richelieu-Vercheres constituency, Liberal since 1896, stretches along the southeast side of the St. Lawrence from Montreal to Sorel, 50 miles north, in Quebec's eastern townships.

A line-up of possible contestants has not yet appeared, but the Liberals are certain to contest the seat, and Progressive Conservative headquarters at their Quebec Provincial office in Montreal last night said a candidate from their party would be chosen and that "we will campaign as arduously in Richelieu-Vercheres as we did in Pontiac. Parkdale and Portage La Paririe."

Observers of the Quebec political scene attach special interest to the fact a provincial by-election will be held in the adjoining constituency of Bagot a week before the Federal contest. The by-election there was necessitated through the death of Cyrille Dumaine, Liberal.

Standing at present in the House of Commons is: Liberals, 125; Progressive Conservatives, 67; C.C.F., 28; Social Credit, 13; Independent. four; Bloc Populaire, two; Independent Liberal, one; Independent Progressive Conservative. one; Independent C. C. F., one; Union Des Electeurs De Pontiac, one; Labor-Progressive, one; vacant, One; total: 245.

Two Vessels Hard Aground on Reefs Near Vancouver

Vancouver, Oct. 31 (CP)— The treacherous, rock-bound coasts of Vancouver Island held two vessels aground today and one, a 90-foot packer with six men aboard reported she was pounding on a reef, might break up and sent a radio call that was being answered by at least two ships.

The other was the veteran 2,731-ton coastwise steamer Princess Norah which went aground on a sandbar off Comox harbor on the island's east coast with an unknown number of passengers inbound for Vancouver. But she reported she was in "no danger" and expected to refloat herself on high tide today.

Captain Axel Anderson of the packer San Jose radioed last night to Western Chemical Industries, Ltd., here, the vessel's owners, that he was hard aground on Fulford Reef between Cadboro Point and Discovery Island and almost within sight of Victoria.

He said at the time of radioing that the San Jose still was "apparently sound" but added she was being pounded on the reef and did not know if he and his five-man crew would have to abandon her. His radio message expressed concern lest a shift of the wind might endanger the vessel.

GIVEN OPERATIONAL WINGS

Dobie, Ont., Oct. 31 —(CP)— FO. Charles Booth of this Timiskaming county town has been posthumously awarded the R. C. A. F.'s gold operational wings, it was learned today. He was reported missing Sept. 27, 1943, while on patrol duty over the Bay of Biscay.

Hobgoblins Abroad

Witches, ghosts and goblins, sadly ignored 364 days of the year by a practical world, have their traditional night out as Canada's younger set hold clamorous gatherings to do them honor.

The grotesque masks, gaudy fancy-dress, grinning jack-o'-lanterns and noisy shelling-out expeditions of Hallowe'en are outcroppings of ancient Druid and Christian ceremonies doing homage to evil spirits, Harassed police officers will readily agree that the devil still walks abroad on Hallows' Eve and that many a Canadian youngster gives him temporary allegiance, but it's all in fun.

While the end of wartime shortages has assured the young folk a larger evening through the return to the market of such precious commodities as candy, fruit, papier mache masks and other trimmings, the "devil" will find less advocates among the older generation than in former years.

Snake dances by college students, the hoisting of cows to belfry towers and the moving of small frame houses to the other end of town, once commonplace Hallowe'en pranks, will probably be a rarity this year. Sedate dances and fancy-dress balls have become the usual substitutes.

By the church calendar, the evening of Oct. 31st is regarded as the vigil of All Saints' Day, but nowadays it is more often regarded as an occasion when discredited gods of bygone religions, reduced to pagan status, show their resentment by plaguing God-fearing citizens.

The Irish Druids antedated the Christians with a similar festival, the Vigil of Saman, lord of death, who called together all wicked souls who had been condemned within the previous year to inhabit the bodies of animals.

This festival is the means of a great deal of fun. It puts inspiration into those who celebrate, developing the imagination of these twentieth century lads and lasses on the touchstone of the heritage which Hallowe'en has cherished and handed down from one generation to another.

Lurking Dangers

The time of year is here when it especially pays to drive and to walk carefully. Fallen leaves sodden with rain add to the hazards of motoring and to the risks that the pedestrian undergoes. This was noticeable on Tuesday when conditions were about as bad as might be expected. The driver and the person who walks were more careful than usual, knowing that a skid or a slip might mean an accident to car or the walker.

Children have been known to play in the leaves, sometimes even on streets so that it behooves anyone using the roadways to keep watch for children at play among the leaves lest one be beneath. There have been accidents in other years in other places in which children unseen among the piles of leaves have been injured.

Not far off is the time when frost will add to the hazard of the roads. That is a time when the driver on the highways and streets of cities as well as on the rural roads proceeds with every caution.

Co-operation Counts

How the Junior Red Cross with the co-operation of Kinsmen Clubs, Women's Institutes, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, churches, newspapers, radio stations of the province co-operated with the Junior Red Cross in a nation-wide appeal to assist in experimental investigation into cancer causes, is told in the News Bulletin for October of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross. The request came from the Banting Institute to have as many "walking stick insects" collected as possible to be used in cancer research. In Ontario in the Lake Huron and Lake Erie areas a special drive was put on and as a result 60,000 of these insects had been received at the institute up to the time the Bulletin went to press. Kinsmen Club of London in an expedition shook down from the trees 25,000 of these "walking sticks." The Kinsmen had special interest in any efforts to aid in cancer research by reason of their own national $50,000 scholarship in Canadian universities for medical students wishing to pursue cancer study.

Such co-operation with the great work of investigation into the causes of the dread malady which claims so many lives every year in every part of the world is an encouraging fact. The success of the organized efforts in the response to the appeal of the Institute is one of the finest evidences of public interest and help. Every person everywhere cannot but have the deepest interest in everything that is done to get at the secret of the disease. In all civilized parts of the world science is pushing the war against cancer with an intensity and with all its resources that is encouraging, so that there are hopeful signs that ultimate success will crown the effort. It is offering the best advice and skill to cut down the incidence of cancer and to help those who may have developed the disease. Many lives are being saved because people have investigated in time. Meanwhile in the laboratories of the world science carries on the effort to expose the origin of the disease.

This work in cancer research is a matter in which everyone can have and should take a part and it is a matter of great satisfaction to find so many individuals, men and women, boys and girls, and organisations contributing towards this worldwide effort for humanity's sake.

Fall for Thoughts

There's a deep scuffling of leaves underfoot, and Taurus and the Pleiades can be seen in the eastern sky at evening. Apples are in, somehow symbolic of the whole summer's yield, and the pressure is relaxed. One can now mend walls and tidy up the fields and garden and snug the place for winter.

The pace changes. It's not exactly a time for leisure, but there is occasion now to look at the far hills and to think longer thoughts, thoughts not bounded by a cornstalk's height or a pasture's breadth. The big rhythms seep into the soul, the rhythms of the seasons and the years rather than the rhythm of the long days and short, hot nights.

One can look at a white oak now and see the beauty of a stout tree in late October. One can watch an early flight of teal and marvel at the instinct that compasses a duck north or south. One can watch a squirrel at his hoarding and hear the sweet whisperings of the chickadees in the orchard. One can feel the world about him and see it and somewhat understand.

Autumn is for understanding, for the longer thoughts and the deeper comprehensions. How well it is that each year should bring such a time, to rest the muscles, yes, from the long summer tensions, but even more important, to relax the mind and give it time and room to span the valleys of belief. Now a man's mind can reach beyond himself.

October is fallen leaves, but it is also a wider horizon more clearly seen. It is the distant hills once more in sight, and the enduring constellations above them once again.

The "Old Country"

The other day we came across the once familiar term "Old Country" in a Canadian reference to Britain.

We greeted it as a long-lost acquaintance, for it is seldom met with today. Under pressure of recent developments, it has lost significance even for recent immigrants.

The Britain of today is in many ways a new country. A political party to whom power is still a new experience is interpreting economic theories new to Britons in terms of domestic policy. A new generation, conditioned by war, is facing difficulties never before confronted.

But we hope there is still much of the old mixed with the new — enough to justify at least occasional use of the designation.

HALLOWE'EN

Little ghosts will come tonight,
Masked and robed in garments white,
Wailing out a dismal: "Boo!"
Just to frighten me and you.

Little beggars at the door
Will be saying: "Feed the poor!"
Lest their pleas you must deny,
Have some sweetmeats handy by.

Get a pumpkin; whet the blade—
Jack-o'-lantern must be made.
Happiest task the whole year through
Grandpas all are asked to do.

What a dreary world 'twould be
Were it always mischief free,
Children neither heard nor seen,
Having fun on Hallowe'en!

Canadian Soldier Given Two Years And Discharged

Thursley, Surrey, England, Oct. 31 (CP Cable)—Gunner James Earl Dodds, alias Richard Walton, 42, of Lethbridge, Alta., described in court as having a record "unmatched in the Canadian army," Wednesday was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and discharge with ignominy after conviction on four charges.

Dodds was convicted on two charges of fraudulent enlistment, one of absence without leave and one involving illegal wearing of service badges.

He enlisted originally in the Royal Canadian Engineers in March, 1940, deserted in May the same year and enlisted fraudulently as Richard Walton in the Royal Edmonton Regiment. He was discharged with disgrace and sentenced to nine months' hard labor for an offence in Regina.

In May, 1944, he fraudulently re-enlisted at Calgary and went A.W.L. in April, 1945. When arrested July 1, 1945, he was wearing two wound stripes and chevrons indicating six years' service.

Newspaper Strikes Continue With No End in Sight

New York, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Strikes which have shut down 4 newspapers in Springfield, Mass., and another in Los Angeles continued today with no settlement in sight.

Springfield's 150,000 population has been without a daily newspaper of general circulation since Sept. 26 when 162 American Federation of Labor printers struck for a contract which would establish pay scales and working hours and conditions.

Affected by the dispute are the morning and evening Union, morning Republican and evening Daily News. The strike has made idle 500 employees, but Sherman H. Bowler, who claims to represent the owners of all 4 papers, said the salaries of all, except the strikers, are being paid.

The unionists have declined to sign contracts with two of the struck papers, insisting on contracts covering all four.

At the Los Angeles Herald and Express, a member of the Hearst organization, 525 striking members of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) and 375 other employees have been idle since Sept. 4th.

Seek $100 Minimum

The Guild has rejected management's offer of a 12½-per-cent or $5, weekly raise, holding out for a weekly minimum of $100 for top reporters and district circulation managers now paid a minimum of $70.

The Trenton, N.J., Evening Times has been involved in a dispute with the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) since last Jan. 11 but the paper is continuing to publish through employment of non-union printers.

Two Beaumont, Tex., newspapers — the Enterprise and Journal — are being picketed by union printers objecting to use of teletypesetters. The strike is about a month old.

In Canada, I.T.U. president Woodruff Randolph and two Canadian representatives of the printers' union have been sued for $250,000 damages by the Vancouver (B.C.) Province.

The three unionists have entered denials to accusations of calling an illegal strike and attempting to prevent distribution of the Province.

Trial of the suit, which resulted from a strike which has made 100 employees idle since June 5, is not expected to begin until early next year. The Province, after shutting down early in the dispute, resumed daily publication in July with union workers not affiliated with the I.T.U. manning the composing room.

Predicts Govt. Will Jam Brakes On Falling Prices

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP)—Rep. J. J. Sparkman (Dem.-Ala.) predicted today that the government will try quickly—possibly by nightfall—to jam the brakes on tumbling cotton prices.

As major cotton exchanges made ready to resume trading after an emergency shutdown yesterday, Rep. Sparkman told a reporter he expects Stabilization Director John R. Steelman to wipe out a 120-day limitation on advance pricing by mills of finished cotton goods.

The cotton state representative also said, after conferring with Mr. Steelman, that price controls on cotton textiles may be abolished. But he added:

"I don't consider decontrol as important as removal of the 120-day limitation."

Cotton exchanges in New York, New Orleans and Chicago announced last night that they would reopen for business today. They halted trading suddenly and unexpectedly yesterday—for the third time in two weeks—in an effort to check the price skid that has sent the staple down as much as $50 a bale.

In the wake of these developments, chairman Elmer Thomas (Dem.-Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee announced in Oklahoma City that he had asked President Truman to eliminate immediately all Office of Price Administration controls over cotton mills and the textile trade "in order to restore confidence in the cotton industry and to stabilize cotton prices."

WILL OPEN BUILDING

OXYGEN ON THE HOOF

On the off chance that a reader may want to know whether I recommend bars, weights or other apparatus for exercising, let me say no, although a punching bag, boxing gloves, golf clubs, tennis rackets, bowls, skates, webs, or skis may be desirable equipment to have.

If you have confined your athletic activity to long-distance sitting for many years, perhaps the best way to come back is to learn first how to somersault. When you acquire enough self-control to do half a dozen on the bedroom floor first thing every morning you'll be ready to begin physical training. Instructions are given in the pamphlet "The Somersaultauqua," mailed on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. Do not use a clipping—ask for it in writing.

Probably this suggestion to roll somersaults will seem downright absurd to some people. But it is one of the few medicines I take—I'd as leave go without coffee for breakfast or, what would be as dreadful, without sugar and cream in it, as omit my half dozen rolls first thing every morning. These rolls are hardly exercise, but I take 'em because I believe they counteract some of the evils we suffer from the hours we spend every day sitting or standing relaxed or slumped—a state which favors sagging or ptosis of various internal structures and congestion in the dependent or lower veins. It is too bad that so many adults quit indulging in such undignified activities as somersaults before they are quite grown up. That is one reason why they feel and look like sixty when they are still in their forties.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Modern Florence Nightingale

While I have not yet been able to obtain the book "Navy Nurse" I believe the photograph you found on p. 168 must be one of Navy Flight Nurse Ensign Jane Kendeigh—Jane was the first nurse in Iwo Jima. Jane is a native daughter of Oberlin, Ohio. Last February she married Lt. Cmdr. (W. H. S.)

Answer—Thank you. Anyway it is a beautiful picture and might well be adopted as the symbol of modern nursing and an inspiration for girls who elect to study nursing. "Navy Nurse" is published by McGraw-Hill, New York. Perhaps your Public Library has it. It kept me from my mystery stories two or three evenings.

Trainer

Trainer of fighters puts 10 per cent argyrol in eyes of his boxers after each sparring period, to prevent infection from diet or rosin that might get in the eyes. What is your opinion of the practice? (M. J. C.)

Answer — Unnecessary, perhaps harmful. Unless there is evident eye irritation nothing should be put in the eyes. If there is any such irritation, it is better to irrigate the eyes with a pint or so of agreeably warm boiled water containing a rounded teaspoonful of salt to the pint. This washes out any dust, dirt, rosin or other foreign matter nearly as well as the tears ordinarily do.

Soap is Soap

A Dr. ——— writing in ——— magazine claims that plain toilet soap is all right for shampooing the hair. (E. M.)

Answer—Soap is soap, and I know of nothing better for the purpose. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask, in writing, for booklet "The Hair and Scalp."

Ear Plugs

Live on noisy street, constant din of traffic, radios, other city noises. Find I can insert ear plugs such as you suggested for swimmers and so shut out most of the noise and sleep with comparative comfort. Is there any harm in this? (Miss M. F.)

Answer—No harm. Many people use such ear plugs for that purpose, with advantage. The plugs are of pliant waxy material, commonly sold by druggists and sports goods dealers for the use of swimmers.

Shortening

Ben Told vegetable shortenings are prepared with an injurious chemical. (P.S.)

Answer—As usual Ben is talking through his hat. Shortenings made of vegetable oils are as wholesome in every way as any other shortening you can use.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What part of Illinois is west of the Mississippi?

A small part of Illinois, consisting of Kaskaskia Township of Randolph County, lies west of the Mississippi River and adjoins Ste. Genevieve and Perry counties in Missouri.

The State of Illinois originally lay entirely east of the Mississippi; but in April, 1881, that river, flowed as the result of heavy snows to the north, cut through a narrow strip of land into the Kaskaskia River and formed a new channel four miles east of its old course, thereby leaving about 27 square miles of territory on the west side of the Mississippi.

Much good farm land was destroyed and the site of historic Kaskaskia, captured by George Rogers Clark during the Revolution, was first transferred from the left to the right bank of the Mississippi and then almost completely swept away.

At first the old channel continued to carry a small stream, but that gradually disappeared and what was once the bed of the Mississippi at this point soon became a mere thread of sand covered with a growth of willows and cottonwoods. The inhabitants of Kaskaskia, whose homes were swept away, removed to New Kaspaskia farther west or went elsewhere. Those who remained on the Illinois territory west of the river did not change their allegiance.

When land is suddenly divided by the change in the course of a river the title to both parts remains in the original owner. Sooner or later, no doubt, a commission will have to determine the exact location of the boundary between Illinois and Missouri at the point where the Mississippi abandoned its ancient course.

The Mississippi also left several acres of Louisiana land on the east bank adjoining Mississippi near Vicksburg when it shifted its course in that region.

But the Mississippi is not the only river that plays these pranks on land-owners. Several hundred acres of Henderson County, Kentucky, near Evansville, Indiana, lies on the north side of the Ohio River. When the boundaries were determined the southern Indiana line was placed at the north edge of the river as it then flowed, but later the river receded and left a plot of Kentucky land on the north side. Motorists, approaching the river from the north near Evansville, in Indiana, often are surprised to see a sign, "Welcome to Kentucky."

Belleville Section of W.M.S. Holds 21st Annual Meeting at Cannifton

By MRS. CLARENCE HOLMES

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Belleville Section of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada convened in Cannifton United Church on Tuesday.

Mesdames C. Mills and J. D. Williams president of Cannifton W.M.S. welcomed the delegates at the church which was profusely decorated with ferns, potted plants and a basket of mums presented from Mrs. Miller in memory of her mother, Mrs. Dunning.

At noon, two hundred guests partook of a bounteous chicken dinner served in the church dining hall by the Cannifton W.M.S.

Mrs. Ralph Sills, Vice President of Belleville section presided and Mrs. Farnham, pianist, played quiet music before each session.

A worship service introduced each session, the morning service being conducted by Bayside auxiliary with Mrs. T. Irwin as leader. The opening hymn was "Lead Kindly Light" followed by prayer by Mrs. Rush.

Mrs. Irwin spoke on the text "Christ shall give ye light". She said, "God's people must be wide awake to the needs of the day. We must arise and be at work to spread the message of God's love. We can cooperate with God by and through our missionaries. Light brings clearness of sight and beauty to our soul. If we meet God's conditions then we shall have light." Prayer concluded this service.

Tabernacle Evening Auxiliary had charge of the afternoon worship service. Mrs. Stanton used the hymn "Behold a Stranger at the Door". Miss Horton read passages of Scripture after which Mrs. Stanton led in prayer.

In her address of welcome on behalf of Cannifton W.M.S. church and community, Mrs. J. R. Trumpour extended greetings to Dr. Murray, the guest speaker, the youngest Mission Band leader, the oldest W.M.S. member and to those at home holding the ropes.

Speaks on Crusader and His Armor

For her address Mrs. Sills spoke on the "Crusader and His Armor" basing her remarks on the letter of the great missionary Paul to the people of Ephesus. Paul exhorted the people to "take up the armor of God." The armor, she said was 1. the girdle of truth, 2. breast plate of righteousness, 3. shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace, 4. shield of faith, 5. helmet of salvation, 6. sword of the spirit which is the word of God.

Being equipped the people were then given their commands (a) be still and know that I am God. (b) Watch ye. The marching orders were "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." Today as Crusaders for Christ we would do well to heed Paul's message for Christian soldiers. Our marching song would be "Onward Christian Soldiers" which was sung by the delegates at the conclusion of Mrs. Sills' address.

Mrs. J. Kelley offered the dedicatory prayer in the morning while Mrs. O. Bertrand officated for the afternoon.

The meeting voted a sum of money be taken from the offerings to purchase Missionary Monthlies for prospective new auxiliaries.

Good Reading Listed

A fine display of literature was in charge of Mrs. Macklin. In speaking of the new literature available Mrs. Macklin mentioned the "Bookshelf on India" which is a valuable accompanist to the year's study book. For children she sugested "Prayers for little Children" and "Teaching a Little Child to Pray." "Toward a Friendly World" for the Baby Band and a Mission Band poster for Mission Bands. C.G.I.T. books "Let's Get Together" and "A Home of Her Own". Devotional books—"Doorways to Devotion," "Abundant Living," "Healing His Seamless Dress," "This is Our Faith," "Dawn to Dawn" and "Highways of the Heart" for W.M.S. members 'What Protestants Believe and Why," "They Found the Church There," "With Glowing Hearts," and "Healing Hands."

In presenting the story of the year, the secretary Mrs. George Priest gave a concise and informative report of the work of the 29 auxiliaries, 4 evening auxiliaries and 4 affiliated societies, answering the questionnaire which each had been sent. There are 23 mission bands, 10 baby bands, 4 mission circles and 11 C.G.I.T groups. She stressed the need for new members next year, to offset our decrease of this year. Sixty per cent of the church membership are W.M.S. members with the percentage being higher in rural churches. There has been an increase in the givings of the evening auxiliaries. Mt. Pleasant Rawdon, has the honor of the highest givings per member $12.42. The harmony of all groups with W.M.S. augurs well for the future of the Church, Mrs. Priest concluded.

Blue Book Commended

The use of the blue book was conmmended and urged by the chairman for use in all societies.

Mrs. P. MacMullen secretary of Mission Circles quoted from the Blue Book to illustrate the setup of the circle and the duties of the members. Mrs. McMullen appealed to members of the W.M.S. for leaders for circles. "This is your responsibility as well as privilege" she said.

Conducting an "Information Please" quiz, Mrs. E. G. Bailey and Mrs. Trumpour, Presbyterial and Branch Secretary of Christian Stewardship solved many problems in their department quoting the Blue Book as the authority. Such questions as duties of Christian Stewardship secretary, value of report forms, finance committees, allocations, budget systems and definition of stewardship were discussed and answered.

Condemns Social Drinking

Mrs. George Patten, Queensboro, addressed the meeting on Temperance using "Co-operation in Community Effort for Youth" for her theme. "Social drinking is No. 1 enemy to youth", declared Mrs. Patten. Youth imitate elders in this foolish indulgence of alcoholic drinking.

A survey made recently showed 85% of the boys between ages 18 and 21 were drinking occasionally with 75% of the girls. From the ages of 21-25 95% of boys and 90% girls were drinking. There is a grave responsibility resting on the hostess who offers liquor to her guests.

"How can we offset this temptation to our youth?" queried the speaker and suggested that "we must be leaders in teaching our youth the dangers of alcoholic drinks. We must educate them to refuse alcoholic stimulants. Temperance literature is available at 30 Bloor Street, W. Toronto. There should be a temperance committee in every church comprised of members from each organization within that church. Plan to have the Five Weeks Temperance Course taught in every Sunday School. Beside education, wholesome recreation is as necessary as fresh air." Mrs. Patten concluded. "Our churches should be social centres for our youth." Teach our youth to be temperate minded and they will serve our church and country to the best of their ability.

Must Be Loyal to God

The Quiet Half Hour which was conducted by Mrs. J. Alfred Crews concluded the morning session. After singing "Take up The Cross" Mrs. Little offered prayer. Mrs. Crews spoke on "Discipleship." She stated we today should be as loyal to our Heavenly Father as were those twelve apostles of old. We must constantly keep before us God's purpose for us in life. We are living in chaotic times, but God sent His son to a world controlled by sin and hate with ruthless dictators in power. He came to reveal the sacredness of human life. In choosing His disciples Jesus said "If any man come after me, let him take his cross and follow Me," which has set a standard for us for all time."

"We must be prepared to make a sacrifice—it can be in our daily living, in our community and church life but we must remember Jesus' love and sympathy for all. We must love another. Can we attain perfection in our Christian living? Religion is never static, it is always a moving world. So a Christian is a doer of the word of God. He is active and anxious to improve conditions as they exist today." Mrs. Crews closed her meditation with a poem

"His lamps are we—not for sunny places but for dark corners.
So may we shine.
Shall we not try to show the spiritual glow of His example on earth?

Speaks on Korea

Mrs. Albert Empey, President of Belleville Presbyterial introduced the guest speaker of the day, Dr. Florence Murray, a medical missionary in Korea from 1922 to 1942, home because of hostilities, but who has received permission to return again to her field of labor.

Dr. Murray appealed for used warm clothing for Korea. Government restrictions have been lifted so an eleven pound parcel, not exceeding $25 in value may be sent. The forwarding address is:

Rev. Dr. E. J. O. Fraser,
136-6 Yun Chi Chung
Chongno
4-Chung-mok
Seoul,
Via Vancouver Korea

Dr. Murray is a gifted and fluent speaker and in reviewing the conditions of Korea, threw out the challenge to Canadian women that they must acquaint themselves with international questions and with men work for a permanent peace.

The hospital at Ham-heung where Dr. Murray surpervised, was described from its early beginnings until today it is a modern 100 bed building complete with water system, electricity, operating room, X-ray, laboratory, children's ward, comfortable sanitary beds and a nurses' home with 7 full time doctors. After the first Canadian nurse went to Korea, a nurses' training school was established.

She spoke of the differences between government and Christian hospitals and the difficulty in obtaining girls to help in the Christian hospital. The missionary often had to do what others didn't know how to do, wouldn't or could not. Dr. Murray told of many cases where the girls training for nurses became Christian, returned to their home communities and started Christian churches. There are half a million people waiting for leaders to bring them into the Christian church.

The Christian hospital was responsible for establishing public health centres. They gave instruction in the schools, at open air meetings and regularly to the Bible Institute for men and women which was a five year course.

The prevalent diseases were scarlet fever, typhus, leprosy, tuberculosis and parasitic infections. Tuberculosis was always considered fatal until a patient was cured at Ham-heung. He became a Christian, got educated for a doctor, and set up his own practice. He was responsible for the founding of one of the largest Christian churches in Korea.

Although there is a strong anti-foreign campaign in Korea, when the new hospital at Ham-heung was opened Japanese officials congratulated them on their progress and thanked them for the help they had administered to their people.

Must Promote Peace

One per cent of the Japanese are Christian which are divided into seven groups. What about the next fifty years? the speaker asked. "There are two ways to rid ourselves of enemies, commented the speaker. First kill them and second make them your friends. We have tried the first but it has failed, so now we must promote brotherhood and peace between nations. Our military leaders admit that the Christian religion is the only thing that will bring about a lasting peace."

"Economic conditions are better in Canada than they have been for years yet we gave less to missions in 45 than in 34. Twenty years ago one church had 400 missionaries, now only 88. What have we sacrificed for peace and goodwill? Are we self satisfied and content with things as they are? What a responsibility rests on women today. We must strive to remove discriminating restrictions against nations and by our own example make this universe "one wide world for Jesus."

"God has given us one more opportunity" was the challenge left by Dr. Murray. "Make use of it" to save the world for Christ.

During the sessions, service in song was rendered by Mesdames W. Sills and Arthur Hall in a duet "In The Garden of the Master." Mrs. F. Jeffrey delighted with a solo "Teach me Dear Lord" with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano. Cannifton Mission Band under the leadership of Mrs. Gilbert endeared themselves to all with their rendition of "Father in Heaven is My Shepherd Divine."

Mrs. J. G. Sills was named to the Library Board, as representative from this section.

Mrs. E. K. Hubble extended courtesies on behalf of the delegates.

This very inspirational meeting was concluded with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Lougheed of Shannonville.

Electrical Workers Vote at Peterborough

Peterboro, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Local 524 of the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) has authorized a strike vote in the plant of the Canadian General Electric Company here, union officials said Wednesday.

A resolution calling Tuesday night for the strike vote said.— "The membership meeting of Local 524 authorized the negotiating committee and shop stewards to conduct a strike vote if and when they deem it necessary to impress on the C.G.E. management the temper of the employees and the re-determination to obtain a settlement comparable to other settlements in major industries in Canada."

Three months of negotiations have resulted in the company offer of a 9.1 per cent equation used to give 48 hours pay for 44 hours of work, plus six cents an hour. The union is demanding 12 cents an hour. There are also differences in pay for statutory holidays, the company offering 2, the union asking for eight.

Hallowe'en Tea Held by Auxiliary At St. Thomas'

A typically Hallowe'en atmosphere greeted all who attended the tea Wednesday afternoon, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, in the parish hall on Bridge Street East, where the rosy glow of candlelight fell indiscriminately upon witches, black cats, bats, jack o' lanterns and grinning goblins. Even Kilroy was there!

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. S. Morton, president of the W.A., and Mrs. George Gorman.

The tea table was enticingly attractive with its white cloth decorated in Hallowe'en colors, and centred with a large green plate on which was heaped colorful gourds, small pumpkins with smiling faces, rosy apples and luscious looking grapes. On either side of this stood crystal candelabra holding pairs of tall orange and black tapers.

Pouring for the first hour were Mrs. Bogle and Mrs. Harry Smith, being later relieved by Mrs. Austin Smith and Mrs. M. Clarke. Assisting in the tea room were Mesdames J. Price, Gorham, McNish, Saunders, R. Morton, Don Clark and the Misses Stella Morton and Betty Smith.

Smaller tables with beautiful white tea covers were scattered about the hall each with its own cream and sugar and a tiny pumpkin holder for its one lone black candle.

The home baking table, under the able supervision of Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Percy Geen was very well patronized. Here also the Hallowe'en color scheme was displayed.

The replenishing of plates and the making of tea was capably handled by Mrs. H. R. Gibson, Mrs. Feather, Mrs. Brunton and Mrs. Denyer, while Mrs. H. Dillnutt acted as treasurer for the afternoon, proceeds of which were gratifyingly satisfactory to the ladies of the Auxiliary.

MOUNTBATTEN WEDDING IS BRITAIN'S SOCIAL EVENT OF THE YEAR

The wedding of Hon. Patricia Mountbatten, daughter of Admiral Lord Louis and Lady Mountbatten, and Lord Brabourne, was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury at 1,000-year-old Romsey Abbey in Hants. The bride wore an exquisite gold lame gown brought from India by her mother.

WEDDINGS

LOCKLIN—VEALS

A profusion of white delphinium, white gladioli, and white chrysanthemums, banked with ferns, made a beautiful setting for the wedding of Dorothy Alice Ethel Veals, of Peterborough, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Veals, of Omemee, who became the bride of Gordon Ralph Locklin, of Cannifton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Locklin, of Brighton.

The ceremony was performed in Reaboro Baptist Church, Saturday, October 12, at 2.30 p.m., with Rev. L. S. Haverstock, minister of Reaboro Baptist and Gilmour Baptist Churches, officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in floor-length white slipper satin, round yoke of white net, fitted bodice with tiny covered buttons at the back, long pointed sleeves with rows of matching buttons and a long, full skirt. She wore a finger-tip embroidered veil and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and tiny white star flowers.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Grace Veals of Peterborough, charmingly gowned in delphinium blue shadow sheer with round neckline, tiny puffed sleeves edged with white marabou, and a long full skirt. Her halo hat was made of the same material as her gown and was edged with white marabou. She carried Talisman roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Thomas Locklin, of Peterborough, brother of the groom. Ushers were Mr. Carl Bedal, of Kingston, and Mr. William D. Weir, of Omemee.

Wedding music was played by Mr. Keith Morden, of Reaboro, and during the signing of the register Miss Lenna Locklin, sister of the groom, sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

Later, at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Veals received in flowered crepe in Autumn shades with brown accessories, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Locklin was gowned in black crepe with black accessories, and wore a corsage of bronze 'mums. The tables were decorated with pink streamers and pink tapers, with the bride's table centred by a three-tiered wedding cake.

Rev. Mr. Haverstock was toastmaster and proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

The gifts to the bridesmaid and the groomsman were fountain pens; to the soloist, a brooch; to the organist, military brushes, in a leather case, and to the ushers, ties.

For travelling Mrs. Locklin chose an olive green dressmaker suit, with pale yellow blouse and cinnamon accessories. She wore the groom's gift a pearl necklace and matching earrings. When they return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Locklin will reside in Cannifton.

Mrs. F. Van der Voort, organist of the Church, played the wedding music and during the signing of the register played "Because". Forming the background for the wedding party were settings of pink, white and yellow 'mums and the guest pews were marked with white bows

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a portrait gown of ivory satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, sheath tight basque, and full skirt sweeping into a slight train. Her long embroidered veil was crested with a Mary Queen of Scots headdress. She carried a cascade of red roses and white 'mums. The bride wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Evelyn Tole, of Trenton, sister of the groom, attended the bride, a charming figure frocked in aqua marine jersey with contrasting pink feathered headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink and white 'mums.

Cost of food and other commodities — including haircuts — moved sharply upward in Buffalo and other United States cities with the end of price control. This Buffalo youngster (left) is a bit nervous about his haircut. After all, it's costing Daddy 75 cents — except on Saturday when children pay $1, same as grownups. Jeane Huck, 19 New Southgate Rd., Buffalo (right), takes a peak inside her sandwich to see if there's any margarine in it. Most restaurants have to serve their sandwiches dry. With butter at 8 7to 93 cents a pound, most housewives are glad to use margarine at 41 cents — except that there isn't much margarine to be had.

U. S. JOINS RUSSIA

If the general speechmaking ends today, the Assembly will begin debate tomorrow on the adoption of the agenda—a debate that may last several days.

Debate on Veto Power

This will bring up th epropriety of including in the agenda a debate on the veto power, the Indian charges of South African discrimination against the Indian minority in that country, South Africa's proposal to annex the mandated territory of southwest Africa, and a number of other controversial subjects.

A clash was expected to develop, possibly in Assembly debate tomorrow, over reports on the number of troops the great powers have in foreign countries — despite the fact that Mr. Molotov and Mr. Austin both said such reports ought to be made.

The British position on armaments was reported by delegation authorities to be approximately the same as that of the United States. Britain, too, it was said, favors a system of inspection to protect peaceful states against those which might arm secretly.

Considerable Uncertainty

On the question of making reports on troops, however, there was still considerable uncertainty among British delegates because they are looking to Foreign Secretary Bevin, en route here by boat, to determine policy.

Russia has asked the Assembly to get reports from Britain and the United States on their troops in China, Greece, and elsewhere. Molotov said Tuesday that Russia was willing to give such information with respect to her forces. Mr. Austin said last night, looking directly at Molotov sitting in the front row, that he assumed this meant all Russian troops beyond Soviet frontiers (in the Balkans, Grmany, Poland, Austria).

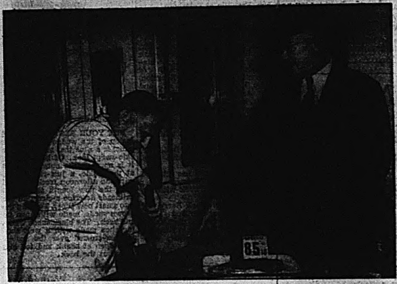
Mr. Austin deplored Molotov's Tuesday night speech as a "sad chapter" in United Nations history insofar as it involved "recriminations" against Russia's wartime allies.

Statement of Principal

In connection with the veto issue, Mr. Austin laid down a statement of principle which some authorities consider eventually may prove as important as any change in the voting structure of the Security Council would be.

"The unanimity requirement (veto) in the Security Council," he said, "does not relieve the permanent members from any of the responsibilities and obligations they have assumed under the charter. I have heard it said by critics of the unanimity formula, that it legalizes aggression by a permanent member because that member can prevent enforcement action against itself. Of course, this formula does no such thing."

That is being generally interpreted here to mean that in a case of extreme aggression by some other power the United States, even in face of a veto in the Security Council, would consider itself bound to fight or otherwise effectively oppose the aggressor.



"If I have to fork out 85 cents a pound for steak, I want it trimmed properly," Robert B. Hughes, 79 Millicent Ave., Buffalo, tells his butcher. Meat is obtainable but expensive since controls went off. Even bologna is 53 cents a pound.

Lewis May Emerge From Wage Fight A Bigger Winner

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP) — John L. Lewis appeared certain today to emerge from his fight with the government a bigger winner than ever.

With Lewis still holding the whip hand—backed by the tacit threat of another strike by his 400,000 soft coal miners—all signs point to eventual new government concessions in the negotiations scheduled to start tomorrow.

Whether a walkout will intervene remains to be seen, but here are the signposts that say the United Mine Workers' chief in the end will get at least part of what he wants.

1. Lewis apparently has won the first round—getting the government to talk higher wages with him.

The officials who are going to negotiate with him—Interior Secretary J. A. Krug and Capt. N. H. Collisson, Federal Coal Mines Administrator—still haven't agreed to reopen the present contract, but they say they are willing to discuss anything that is on Lewis' mind.

Others in the administration side with Lewis in his contention that the pact can be reopened on 10 days notice and ended in 30 days. Lewis started the ball rolling Oct. 21.

2. The government is anxious to avert a coal strike in November, with winter's chill approaching. And the administration is well aware of what would happen under the miners' historic no-contract no-work stand should Lewis cancel the agreement on schedule, Nov. 20.

Moreover, any move to invoke the jail penalties of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act against Lewis in the event of a walkout might only prolong the controversy because of the unswerving manner in which the miners always have stood behind their chief.

3. Top administration advisers acknowledge that they are searching for a satisfactory pay concession to Lewis—yet one which would not upse the labor-management apple cart and set a pattern for other union demands.

Lewis is expected to ask for a shorter work week without loss in pay for the soft-coal miners. They now work six days of nine hours each, a total of 54 hours, with overtime pay beyond 35 hours. The miner who puts in a full week gets $75.25.

There is some speculation within government agencies on a possible reduction of the work week to 40 or 45 hours—five days of eight or nine hours each — and a compromise on the difference in hourly pay.

If it is, sponge with cleaning fluid (grease solvent). Most common household stains will dissolve in one or the other of these safest stain removers.

ACCEPTS RESIGNATION

Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 30—(CP)—Town council last night accepted the resignation of Police Chief William C. Carson—internationally-known expert on fingerprinting — which he said he tendered to maintain his self-respect.

"Provincial officers came into this town and talked with two council members in making a survey with the object of provincials taking over the policing of Port Hope," said the chief. "To me, this implied there was something wrong with my administration. It hurt my pride."

Fine Feathered Fancy

By ALICE ALDEN

HATS that are striking and dramatic, yet wearable for all their touch of the bizarre, are hard to come by, since this sort of thing can only be achieved by a top-flight designer. Hattie Carnegie is the signature on this dramatic evening hat, a feathered version of her smooth-fitting capulet. This model is covered entirely with snowy white hackle feathers and a dove's head at the centre of the brow adds to the effect of the winged bird cap.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It's Courteous to Leave Your Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are having a discussion (perhaps "argument" is a truer word) about leaving a name when telephoning a man. She says that if she telephones a man and he is not at home, it isn't necessary for her to give her name when whoever answers the telephone says, "May I tell him who called?"; that all she needs to reply is "Never mind. . . . I'll call later", or "This is a friend of his". This seems to me mighty discourteous, and also gives the impression that she is, for some reason, ashamed to give her name. I see no reason why one shouldn't leave one's name, whether telephoning a man or a girl .Which of us is right about this?

Marie

You are right. As you say, such replies as "Never mind" or "This is a friend of his" or any other evasion are "mighty discourteous", not only directly to the person answering the telephone (probably a member of the family), but also, indirectly, to the man to whom the girl is telephoning. Even a child should be taught to give his or her name over the telephone when asked for the name.

Date Uncertain forHer Fiance's Return From Overseas

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to have wedding invitations, reception cards, and marriage announcements engraved, with a space left in which to write in the date by hand? My fiance is expected home from overseas, but he may not arrive in time for me to have the engraving done with the date (still uncertain) of the wedding included.

2. At my wedding, which will not be elaborate (I'm to wear a long white bridal dress, and to have only one attendant), would it be all right to have a second minister (a relative) assist in th e ceremony, or would this seem in appropriate?

E.

1. Under this circumstance it is still correct (as it was during the war) to have the wedding invitations engraved, leaving the dateline to be filled in in ink when the date can be decided on. It is, however, not necessary to use a dateline on the reception cards if you use the form "Reception immediately following the ceremony", and so forth. (Or you might use the double form of invitation and use this reception-form on the bottom of the ceremony-invitation.)

For the sending of the announcements ,all possible details may be planned (form decided on, lists made, envelopes addressed and stamped) and the date given the engraver when decided on. In this case, sending out of announcements may correctly be somewhat delaged.

2. This is a proper arrangement, but of course the minister of the church should be consulted about this plan.

She Should Wear Her Hat

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to pour during the first hour of a four-to-seven tea, a large tea to be given by a friend of mine in honor of a mutual friend of ours who is visiting her. Should I keep on my hat?

R.S.

Yes.

Fashionable Short Story

PROPER PROPORTIONS and times are necessary when designing clothes for the shorter figure, and when properly handled, any current foible or fashion fad can be part of the design, as witness this coat cut with an eye to the petite type. Fashion Flashes

Much simpler this year to choose a gift, what with such delightful accessories again appearing in the shops. A delightful gift would be a small evening bag of black lace over white satin, with tiny gleaming black beads picking up the floral pattern of the lace.

Lovely lingerie continues as a favorite gift item. Pure silk in livory white is used for a beautiful gown and slip. The slip has Alencon lace forming a border on the bodice and continuing around the bodice seams and at the scalloped hemline. Similar lace trimming on the gown, which has large silk shoulder bows with appliqued lace butterflies.

WILDCATS LEAD O.R.F.U. AFTER BEATING TROJANS

Home Game for Ottawa but Played at Hamilton Civic Stadium

Hamilton, Oct. 31. (CP)—The Hamilton Wildcats rested proudly atop the Senior Ontario Rugby Union standing today ,but their 23-7 victory over the winless Ottawa Trojans wasn't nearly so one-sided as the score and past performances would indicate.

Trojans, disappointed with Ottawa gate receipts, scheduled this game at Hamilton's Civic stadium last night, instead of at Ottawa next Saturday. They startled a crowd of nearly 5,000 by starting a finishing in a burst of glory. But in between, the Cats were in full control.

The Wildcats were ahead all the way on the scoreboard, and with the final result the powerful Toronto Indians were knocked out of the first place they have occupied since the schedule started. The Trojans began marching as the game opened. They plunged repeatedly for yards, until they finally lost the ball on a fumble and the Wildcats assumed command.

Again in the last quarter the Trojans made mincemeat of the Wildcat line, but it was too late to threaten the lead piled up by the cats, although the fourth quarter outburst yielded a major and a convert.

Four Majors Scored

Hamilton's points came on four majors and three converts. Stewart was credited with two of the touchdowns, and Dyack and Toms got the others. Moroz, Gnup and Mur Ylyk accounted for the converts.

Ottawa's points were a boot to the deadline by Robillard, a touchdown when Gilmour threw a pay-off pass over the line to Robillard, and Gilmour's convert. Gnup's deadly passing was a feature of the Hamilton attack.

Dyack's touchdown in the second period came after a 45-yard pass from Gnup was taken on Ottawa's two-yard line by Len Wright. The third period was scoreless and then the fireworks started. Stewart's touchdown and Gnup's convert stung the Trojans into a fierce ground attack tha finally paid off.

Trojans' Gilmour and Harper plunged to the Cats' five; Robillard took it to the one yard line and lost possession for failure to make yards on third down. Trojans recovered and with fine plunging and end runs came back to Cats' four. An end run set them back five, but Gilmour tossed over to Robillard for the major which Gilmour converted. Wildcats' Toms then showed some fancy running to score a major from five yards out after carrying the ball about 55 yards and Gnup converted.

THREE-WAY TIE FOR FIRST PLACE IN THE A.H.L.

Indianapolis, Cleveland and Pittsburgh All Have Nine Points Apiece

By The Canadian Press

A three way tie exists today for first place in the American Hockey League's western division among Indianapolis, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Cleveland and Pittsburgh moved into a deadlock with Indianapolis last night by defeating Buffalo and Philadelphia respectively while the Caps were idle. All three teams now have nine points apiece.

The Hornets trounced Philadelphia 10-4 and established a league record when they powdered eight goals into the Rocket goal in the second period. The previous mark of seven goals in one frame was held by six clubs.

Don Metz paced the Hornet offence, scoring three times in the record second frame while Peanuts O'Flaherty chipped in with five assists and a goal and Wally Wilson sunk two pucks and made four assists. Phil Hergensheimer, Rocket captain, tallied three goals and aided in the fourth. It was Philadelphia's seventh setback against a single win. Pete Langelle, Mel Hill with two and Sloan scored the other Hornet goals, Gaston Gauthier scored the other Rocket Tally.

The Barons blanked Buffalo, circuit champions 2-0 Johsny Hol ota tallied early in the second while Bisons were a man short due to a penalty. Hank Goldup clinched the decision for Barons late in the third by banging in a pass from Fred Thurier.

In the only other game, Springfield Indians hung up their third straight win by nosing out Hershey Bears, eastern division pacesetters 3-2. Leslie Sawyer and Bill Cupolo scored for Springfield in the first period. Bill Summerhill's second period marker proving to be the deciding goal. Paul Ronty and Armand Gaudreault scored for Bears.

HAMILTON TIGERS OPEN SEASON WITH ST. PATS

Team That Reached Senior Finals Last Year Makes Only One Change

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—The opening salvoes in the senior 'A' group of the Ontario Hockey Association will be fired Friday night by four of the circuit's teams, including Hamilton Tigers who won the group title last season and then went on to represent the east in the Allan Cup final for the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship.

The Tigers open the season against their inter-city rivals, the Pats, in Hamilton while Toronto Staffords and Stratford Indians make their debut in Stratford. The fifth club, Owen Sound Mohawks, swings into action Nov. 4 against the Staffords in Toronto.

Tigers, defeated by Calgary Stampeders in the Allan Cup final, so far have made only one change in their lineup, adding Ab Conick to replace Stan Robertson on a line with Doug Runions and Jack Liscombe. Robertson is lost for the season, having suffered a broken leg in an automobile accident.

Their other line of Dillon Brady, Clarence Shillington and Johnny Conick, brother of the team's new player, remains intact along with their four-man defence corps of Bill Sherry, Polly Miocinivoch, Bobby Laurent and Bill Dinning. Veteran Art Childs, who with the defence was the team's mainstay last season, will be back in goal.

Several New Ones Added

Staffords, piloted this season by Bill (Flash) Hollett, former National Hokey League player with Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, have added several new faces for greater offensive and defensive strength.

The first string line has Jimmy Williams at entre, Gordon Ball at left wing and Jimmy McKeown at right wing. Lloyd Roubell, who played for Providence Reds last season and prior to that with Pittsburgh Pirates, both of the professional American Hockey League centres Staffords' second line with Zip Thompson and Don Willson on the wings.

The third line consists of centre, George McGregor left winger, Bob Dixon and Frank Immonti on the right boards. Roy Hawkey and Ross Knipfel have been chosen as one defence combination and Jerry Olinski and Jack Stafford as the other. Knipfel played last year with Providence Reds of the American League and Olinski with Hull Volants of the Quebec Senior Amateur League.

The lineups of Stratford Indians has been strengthened considerably, especially the goaltending position which will be looked after this year by Jack Gibson, last season with Winnipeg Monarchs, winners of the Canadian junior title and the Memorial Cup.

Smart Forward Line

The forward lines will be chosen from the following players:—Terry Biochchi and Walter Zuka of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Ed Barber of Thorold, "Sparky" Weller of Woodstock, Frank Long, Peter Long and Nick Phillips, all of Niagara Falls, Ont., Bryan Robinson of Cobalt, Sid Lovelace of Toronto and Jim Eady of Stratford.

On defence will be Bill Walsh of Toronto, Walter Bak of Brockville, and Gil Robertson of London, Ont. Most of the players played previously in minor professional or senior amateur leagues.

Owen Sound will have seven or eight new players, including Keith Woodall who played last year with the junior Kitchener Greenshirts and defenceman Jerry McAndrew of Niagara Falls. Other defencemen are playing coach Chuck Shannon, Bruce Small, Art Mayward and Bud Morrison.

The forwards include Cec Olmstead, Cec Shears, Doug Gillespie, Elmer (Butch) Arbour, Jimmy Boddy, Jack Mason, Mac McKibbon, Nick Krawanchuk and Bill Jordan.

Hamilton Pats are still attempting to obtain Walter Coupland of St. Catharines to play goal. More than 20 players have been trying out for positions and the final choice probably won't be made until the last minute.

Fast Repair for North-South Ontario Bridge Link — When a bridge collapsed at Swan Lake Sesekenika, near Kirkland Lake, highway officials feared traffic between Northern and Southern Ontario would be cut off for at least a week. A crane was located, however, and the bridge repaired in four hours.

Here is the truck which plunged nose-down through the bridge, paralyzing highway traffic between Timmins and Kirkland Lake.

Considerable Business Transacted By Executive of the Hockey Assoc.

The executive of the Belleville Junior Hockey Club now known as the Belleville Hockey Association, which has taken junior, intermediate and possibly juvenile hockey under its administrative wing, lost no time in going into action.

Forty-eight hours after the Intermediate team decided to throw in its lot with the junior executive, the organization started the 1946 hockey ball rolling at a special meeting held last night in the arena.

Financial arrangements were discussed and these will be published later when something of a definite nature is decided on.

A committee was formed to investigate prices of insurance to cover an injured player while another committee of two will interview employers of the city with a view to seeking co-operation in the placing in jobs of players from outside points.

The keynote of the meeting was that the executive will not strive for championship teams this season, but rather lay the foundation for better teams in the future. It was felt by encouraging and administering to young players besides building up already established teams, that a good start will be made this year.

Walter Gerow Jr., was appointed coach of the junior squad for the time being. The position of coach for the Intermediate team was discussed but laid over until further investigation and advice can be obtained.

An open meeting will be held in the arena on Tuesday, Nov. 5 to which junior, and intermediates are invited as well as any hockey-minded fans of the city. This meeting will be an important one and much may hinge on what develops there. Everyone interested in the great winter pastime is urged to attend.

Messrs. "Toots" Holway and Jack Yanover, directors of the executive were named a committee of two to investigate the purchase of second-hand hockey equipment which is available in the city.

Fundy Lobsters May Find Home In Gulf of Georgia

Victoria, Oct. 31 (CP) — The famed Bay of Fundy lobster has found a new—but as yet experimental—home in Pacific waters and if he likes it British Columbia may get another important addition to her already vital fisheries.

Provincial fisheries officials said today an experimental batch of 2,000 lobsters transplanted from Fundy last June to a secret lagoon in the Gulf of Georgia are "doing fine" so far. Fisheries inspectors have just had another look at them and they seem to be getting acclimatized to Pacific waters.

Assistant Commissioner of Fisheries George Alexander said it will take a year before they know if the lobster will propagate. "They must become acclimatized to the various environmental conditions here—water temperature, salinity and food," he said.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1946

Elliott Named To Ambassador Post by Govt.

Ottawa, Oct. 31 (CP)—Another in a series of Canadian diplomatic appointments is that of C. Fraser Elliott, affable and diminutive Deputy Minister of Taxation in the Revenue Department, as Ambassador to Chile.

While Mr. Elliott's appointment was learned last night on a non-official basis, an official announcement is expected to be made within a day or two.

The 58-year-old Winnipeg native had for some time been reported anxious to leave the Revenue Department, where he has served since the end of the First Great War. In his new post he succeeds Darwick F. Chipman, now Canadian Ambassador to Argentina, who left the Chilean post open since his appointment more than a year ago.

While the appointment of other than a career diplomat to an ambassadorial post did not follow the pattern of recent government appointments, it was not surprising to observers here. A mild and approachable civil servant, Mr. Elliott has earned a reputation as a sound administrator during his years of office.

Mr. Elliott was educated in Toronto schools and is a graduate of the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall—as both civil engineer and lawyer. An officer in the 1st Division, Canadian Field Artillery, in the First Great War, he worked up to his post as Deputy Minister through long years of service in the Revenue Department.

Reports are that Mr. Elliott will be succeeded in his taxation post by Frank H. Brown of Toronto and Ottawa, financial adviser to the Munitions Department during the war.

ALL P.O.W. TO BE SENT TO GERMANY

Ottawa, Oct. 31. (CP)— The last of the 29,000 German prisoners of war in Canada are scheduled to leave Canada in December—despite hundreds of requests for permission to remain in the Dominion. About 4,000, mostly merchant seamen, still are in Canada.

Lt.-Col. R. H. Davidson, director of the prisoners of war projects of the Labor Department, said that more than 1,000 employers have asked to have certain prisoners remain. But government orders are that every last one is to be sent home.

Most of the 4,000-tanned, healthy and pleased with their stay in Canada—have worked on farms, in bush camps, at railway maintenance and in certain industrial plants.

IT'S A BIG DAY IN THE LIFE OF CHIPS AS HE ATTACKS HIS FIRST BONE

When Chips came into the world six weeks ago, the United States was completely meatless because of the complications arising from O.P.A. control. Chips was busy with his milk diet at the beginning anyhow, even though his canine instincts told him that something was missing, he was not in any particular dietary distress. His titular boss, pal and playmate, Diana Burns, eight months, was also on a diet which was of necessity (in keeping with time-old tables on baby feeding) rich in milk. Meat has been decontrolled since Chips was born and it is comparatively easier to buy. Here Chips is making a great ado about his first bone. The fact that it is bigger and heavier than he, does not in any way diminish the intensity which he attacks it, doing his best with the tiny teeth which have made a partial appearance. Diana is also attacking the bone as best she can. It was a big day in the life of Diana and Chips.

Britain May Have Reserve Army Of Nearly 1,000,000 in Few Years, Government Announcement Expected

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 31. (CP)—A Britain which doesn't want to let her military muscles get flabby hears talk today that within a few years she may have a reserve army of nearly 1,000,000 men.

The backbone of the reserve (or territorial) army would be conscripts who had completed their two years' service in the regular army. For another four or five years they might be subject to training in the reserve, along with an estimated 170,000 volunteers.

A government decision and announcement is expected shortly.

Annual Intake 150,000

The army's annual intake of 18-year-old youths is estimated at 150,000. If the new plan came into effect in January, the first compulsory reservists would return to civilian life—and territorial duties—in 1949. If they were required to serve five years in the reserve, it would have a roll of 750,000 conscripts in 1953.

This is far beyond any previous strength of the territorials. In 1938, in the midst of international crises, they had an authorized establishment of 200,000 but only 158,000 volunteers. A year later, on the verge of war, there were 204,000 volunteers for an establishment of 224,000.

For those who volunteered it meant training two or three nights a week and frequently on Sundays, and two weeks camp every summer. Enthusiasm soon waned and the task of maintaining it among post-war recruits, who must be able to hold their own with conscripts, will remain one of the big problems.

Thorough Reorganization

A thorough reorganization of the territorials' setup also is being ordered. Instead of slap-dash infantry formations, the reserve army of the future may find itself equipped with:

Twelve or less infantry divisions.

An armored division.

An airborne force.

An anti-aircraft section for home defence.

More technical units and heavy artillery.

"You are likely to see the whole thing streamlined and put on a more efficient basis," said an ex-army officer who hopes to play a big part in the new territorials.

"We are going out after volunteers of real intelligence and drive—men who have had military experience and can lead others. The territorial army will have to—and I think it will—provide much more incentive and encouragement than it did before the war."

Hardware Stores Must be Modern Says Speaker

That present-day hardware stores are long past due for a program of modernization encompassing improvement in buying practices, merchandising, advertising and in training and supervision of store personnel, was indicated to members of the Bay of Quinte branch of the Ontario Retail Hardware Merchants' Association here on Wednesday evening.

Speaking to a dinner meeting at the Queens Hotel and attended by approximately 45 Belleville and district hardware men, Mr. Robert U. Lamb, managing secretary of the association, stated that the hardware store of the future will be as modern, as attractive and well illuminated as any other type of retail outlet. Other physical improvements in hardware retailing would accompany the store modernization, it was stated.

Shades Being Lifted

"As is the case with the old "cracker barrel" type of grocery store, however, the shades of the hardware business are being lifted," stated Mr. Lamb. "The complexion of the hardware stores, and the owners and persons who work in them is rapidly undergoing a transition from darkness to light and cheery coloring."

He emphasized the need for independent hardware merchants to keep abreast of modernization programs of retailers handling associated lines of merchandise, such as tires and electrical appliances.

"But there is plenty of stiff competition ahead," he reminded. "Even the dime stores will probably be selling mantel radios before long and hardwaremen should get busy while there is still time. Merchandise is not too plentiful and many retailers not in the hardware business are attempting continuously to establish departments which have proven profitable to the hardware man."

Offer Wide Range

The speaker emphasized the need for hardware men to operate in a manner which has proven successful to the big "supers"—to offer a wide selection of merchandise with economy. "People like to come into a store and browse around," he said, "and the larger the selection of merchandise, the longer they will stay and as a result, the more merchandise will be sold."

The value of advertising was in particular emphasized by Mr. Lamb who outlined a program adopted by a large store in Toronto who sponsor frequent advertisements "We Save You Money."

"You and other hardware merchants sell goods at the same prices as these stores, and you likewise 'save the people money', but you make the mistake in not saying so."

J. T. Allen acted as chairman for the meeting, while others who attended and also addressed the meeting included Colin Carter, Picton, president of the local branch of the association, J. G. Galloway of Belleville, past president and Chas. Howard, general sales manager for Wood, Alexander and James.

Ten Directors Elected By Kiwanis Club

Dr. Reg Anderson, Norman Edwards, Taylor Franklin, Archie Harris, Albert Jones, Bert Reid, Ted Schwab, Ross Stivers, Harry Trepanier and Jack White are the new directors of the Kiwanis Club for the coming term. They were selected from the names of twenty on the second ballot that was distributed to the members. Those directors will meet before the end of the week and submit to the secretary the names of those directors who are standing for President and Vice President and these names will be placed on another ballot and be elected by the whole club at the next luncheon meeting. This is a radical departure from the method of choosing the officers of the club bust was found to be necessary due to the large membership.

At the meeting on Tuesday at the Hotel Quinte, Robert Phillips, teacher of the new course of Agriculture at the Vocational School spoke of the members on the night course that will be instituted early in November and run for fifteen weeks, two nights a week. Mr. Phillips, who was introduced by the Principal of the Collegiate Institute, George Currie, explained that the course would cover those reluctant to continue their studies at High School and the older residents of the district who wished to improve their knowledge in Agriculture. Mr. Phillips has visited many of the junior farmer meetings in the county and many of the young boys have signified their intention of joining the course.

The speaker gave an outline of the course stating there would be courses in Farm Mechanics, Woodworking, Tractor Maintenance and General Agriculture talks. He stated that it would be necessary to have 60 in the classes before any success could be obtained. Practical men will lecture to the students with Mr. Phillips supervising the whole course. There will be a demonstration of the Babcock Test, lectures on the explanation of cream grading by taste, rope splicing, repair of machinery, reforestation, binder knotter trouble, grafting, pruning and general orchard practice, insects, poultry, bee keeping, soil chemistry, field crops and hog carcass demonstration by the Dominion government. Appreciation was expressed by Claude Partridge. President Mark Vanner presided with Vic White as song leader and Len Fozard as sergeant at arms. Bill Navin presided at the piano.

A Farmer Looks at Factories

(An address by John Atkins, Bracebridge, Ont., at the convention of the Canadian Woollen & Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, Montreal, yesterday.

In speaking to you on the subject, "A Farmer Looks at Factories," I am presenting my own views as an individual. I cannot speak for any organization or authority but I can tell you, out of some experience on the farm and in the factory, what I think about the relationships of farm people and factory people, expressing views which I believe are shared by many other farm people.

We farm people are much like the rest of you, except that our efforts must be much greater than yours for much less pay. The hourly rates of pay in factories, and the short week, seem fantastic to us when compared with our own earnings and hours of work and with the pay and hours of millions of unorganized or self-employed Canadians. When we look at factories we see them often through the rose-colored glasses of classified advertisements.

A Typical Day

Let us drop in and take a look at a typical farm home today. If everyone is well, the family rose at 5.30 this morning. The day's work began at once with the milking and the care of the milk. The horses, pigs, sheep and poultry all required some immediate attention. The chores, which are the care of the livestock, occupy from 2 to 3 hours morning and evening, depending upon the kinds and numbers of livestock and the season. Chores are real work but they are always spoken of as if separate from the work of the day.

At least 8, more often 10 hours of field, bush or other work, will be done before the evening chores begin. If there are no births expected, or sick animals requiring special attention, the chores will be finished about 8 o'clock and the family will settle down to reading or other recreation.

The radio will tell them that another strike has been settled with a reduction of 4 or 8 hours in the work week, two weeks' vacation with pay, and increases of 13c to 16c per hour to maintain or increase the take-home pay. The fact that the take-home pay will be reduced when farmers and others get pay and price increases, is something to be learned and worried about in the future.

Easy Life in Cities

After the broadcast, father will read the following aloud from the newspaper: "A modern manufacturing concern requires young women for full time work, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., 5 days per week; good starting pay; regular increases; individual instruction; permanent employment; rest periods morning and afternoon; cafeteria; free uniforms and laundry; sick benefits."

Mother, who finds 12 hours of hard, active work too much at sixty, will remark: "They should make that heading read:

"'Don't go elsewhere to work. Come here and have a steady holiday with expenses paid.' Father, there is no use in our trying to keep on. We won't be able to get help when the young people can earn more in factories in 40 hours a week than they can earn on the farm in 80 hours a week."

From this background the farm people of Canada look at the factories. It is small wonder that they think that factories are pleasant places where people get sufficient light exercise to fit them for strenuous modern recreational activities.

Farm people are compelled to work hard, to manage well, to be prudent, cautious and thrifty, in order to achieve modest success. They must give more before they get more. They are good-hearted and hard-headed. They are more conscious of value than most people. When they look to a factory for their needs, they look for value measured in terms of the money, work and skill they invest in their own farmsteads.

They regard factory people as a unit of labor which produces essential goods for them. They cannot understand why factory people attempt to discount and share potential production which rarely materializes sufficiently to justify the higher wages and prices they claim in advance.

We farm people want from you an assured and adequate supply of garments and comforts which are essential in our work and to our well-being. We want them at prices consistent with our own earnings from our products which must be sold on both domestic and world markets. The reconciliation of our prices with yours, at levels which will maintain the maximum exchange of labor between us, involves all the considerations of national and international policy.

Two Hours For One

There is no essential difference between farm people and factory people. Neither of us is prepared to approve of, or pay for, anything that is inconsistent with our own interests or which provides returns for others which are out of line with our own rewards for comparable skill and effort. Farmers are now paying factories prices which yield factory people much higher returns and shorter hours than farmers can gain from the sale of their own produce. We farmers cannot continue to pay too much of our production for too little factory production, even if we wished to do a thing so foolish. It is impossible for us, over any protracted period, to exchange labor with you on the basis of 2 hours for 1, as at present. We will run out of ones and you will have the worthless twos of inflation which then will represent neither profit nor potential production.

Unless equity is restored quickly in the exchange of farm and factory labor, by unprecedented production which will lessen costs and prices, we all must prepare to undergo the surgery of depression. A prolonged convalescence, under the care of those great doctors, Supply and Demand, who must operate extensively enough to remove all major obstructions to the circulation of goods and services, may restore our economic health eventually. The illness will be painful and full of heartaches but we must suffer it, if we do not take preventive medicine now.

We farm people and factory people are motivated alike. We are devoted equally to the good of Canada and the welfare of humanity. We all rely upon peace for progress and prosperity. We are concerned with the preservation of democracy as we understood it. We are working for the elimination of war and we are prepared to go all the way with those who together can guarantee peace. But, until peace is assured and international safety is a fact, we must safeguard life in Canada by ensuring an adequate supply of necessaries in international emergencies. In this national task both farms and factories are essential.

Price Difference to Cause Trouble

We believe that our farm life compels us to conform closely to the principles which underlie economic health and national well-being. We believe that your circumstances permit you to depart temporarily from sound principles and that we all suffer when you stray into error. We know that the disparity between farm and factory returns is now so great that our young people have left and are leaving our farms for your factories, in abnormal numbers. We fear that our growing inability to exchange our labor for yours will so constrict your market that serious unemployment will occur as soon as you have caught up with deferred demand. We foresee a depression that will feed upon our inability to buy your goods and your consequent inability to buy ours.

In looking to the woollen and knitting industry for an ample and safe supply of clothing and other woollen goods which are essential to us, we are prepared to take into account your reasonable claims to consideration in the national interest. We value you highly as a market as well as a source of supply. You also provide a valuable means of employment for the normal surplus of farm young people. We are not prepared, however, to pay you prices that include wages, profits, or working conditions that are excessive in relation to ours, and which rob our farms of the minimum of young people necessary to their efficient operation and to the preservation of the agricultural industry.

Fortunately for us, and for you, competition within your industry and among all industries, obliges you to have special regard for our interests. We are your most important and your most stable market. Individually we are of more value to you as farm consumers than as urban consumers. If this is not patently true, we suggest that you make a survey of the wearers of knit goods, with particular reference to woollen underwear.

Farm Pay May be 33 Cents

How do the earnings of farm people compare with the earnings of factory people? As business men, we farmers have all of your basic problems, plus the weather. Some few of us are big business. Most of us are small business. Almost all of us are farm hands. Our wives and children do considerable farm work. The average gross cash income on Canadian farms in 1945 was approximately $2300, earned by the combined efforts of men, women and children. When the non-cash farm income is added and the many farm expenses deducted, the probable average net income per farm family, earned by at least one full-time worker, and one part-time worker, on the basis of a low 60-hour week, might be $1500, or $1000 per worker, earned at the rate of 33 1-3c per hour, with allowance for an imaginary two weeks' holiday.

The foregoing is an average income. Many incomes will be much higher and many much lower. Agriculture has no dead levels established by union regulations. The chief reason why good farmers keep on farming is that they are able to get all they can earn within prevailing prices. They get no overtime rates but they can work as many hours as they wish and they can get the benefit of all the skill they can put into their work. But they will not be satisfied until their industry and skill bring returns comparable with yours. You will not do as much business with them as you should until equity is established between your prices and theirs. Average farm incomes are the only basis on which comparison can be made between farm and factory earnings.

Farm Resistance to Higher Costs

If and when the average costs of farm products are found and made public there will be a quick and radical revision of our national thinking about farm and factory wages and the exchange of labor in Canadian and international trade. Many farmers think that factories should have pegged their wages and prices at the end of the war and that increased costs should have been met by greater production on the basis of the 48-hour week without increases in weekly pay. By this means, and increased farm production at pegged prices, factory people, farm people, and all other Canadians would have received increases in real wages and our export trade would have been greatly facilitated. Factories will find strong farm resistance to increased costs and increased prices. We farm people have entered upon a long period of decreasing net returns, per unit of product, which we can meet only with increased efficiency and lower costs. We know of nothing under heaven that can save Canadian agriculture but progressively declining costs of production.

The period of downward adjustments upon which Canadian agriculture is entering, may liquidate tens of thousands of our farms and create for factory people, and all Canadians, the most difficult economic problems we have ever faced in peacetime. Unless factory unit costs and prices are lowered commensurately with ours, we cannot continue long to buy your goods in sufficient volume to sustain your employment. We may leave our farms in even greater numbers and come into the cities and towns to compete with you for jobs and business, thus lowering your prices to the point at which your goods may again be exchanged on a fair basis with the products of those who remain on the farm.

No Faith in Miracles

The work of farm people and factory people cannot be protected or increased by rising costs and higher prices. Farm prices are too low now in relation to factory prices but they are too high in relation to potential markets. Higher prices for farm products will work harm to everyone. Factory costs and prices, in relation to farm markets of the near future, are injuriously high. Both factory people and farm people may go on for a brief period increasing costs and raising prices but we are only adding height to the fall we will take when we are pushed off the peaks by our own folly.

Miracles of increased production and greater efficiency might correct unit costs on farms and in factories but miracles are so rare that it appears we have placed too much faith in our hopes and potentialities and paid too little heed to the realities and the probabilities.

In order that we may proceed wisely to restore the exchangeability of our labor we should consider how we destroyed it. A brief review of the history of farm and urban prices and earnings is necessary to our understanding of the problem:

The following history is taken from a pamphlet published by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in 1941:

"People living on farms drawing their support from agriculture comprise just about one-third of the population of Canada. Their share of the National Income of Canada for the years 1926 to 1929 averaged just one-sixth of the total and the average total income per farm for the period was $1,007.00 per year. The average cash income for the same period was $791 per year, the difference being the value of farm produce consumed on the farm, allowance for house rent, etc.

"In the eleven years, 1930 to 1940, the average income per farm family dropped to $468 per year and the farmers' share of the National Income dropped to 9.8 per cent. In the same period the average Cash Income per farm family dropped to $332 per year. In other words the average total farm family income dropped by 53 per cent and the average cash income decreased by 58 per cent.

"If we compare these figures with those for manufacturing industry we find that the average annual wages per worker for the years 1926 to 1929 were $1,017, and for the succeeding nine years to 1937 they averaged $902, a drop of 12 per cent as contrasted with the 53 per cent in the case of the farmer. In the same period the average salaries paid in industry were $1,894 and $1,724 respectively, a drop of only 10 per cent. No one has envied the position of the worker in industry during the past decade with his short time and low income but in comparison the position of the farmer is desperate.

"According to the figures of the last census the average investment in a Canadian farm was $7,000 in round figures. In spite of this fact the average income for the good years 1926-1929 was slightly less than the average wages of a worker in industry with no personal investment whatsoever. And the drop in the income of the farmer was four or five times the drop in the income of the worker in industry."

The present gross income of the approximately one-third of Canadians who live on farms is roughly estimated at 20% of the national income.

The July "Commercial Letter" of The Canadian Bank of Commerce states: "While the Dominion Bureau of Statistics recently revised upward its earlier estimate of cash income in 1945 from the sale of farm products, to $1,685,800,000, this amount was over $140 million less than that of 1944.... While total farm income was on the decline, costs rose, though the rate of increases was the smallest since before the war. Farm living costs, all categories, advanced except food, which was practically unchanged. The net result in terms of farm purchasing power was a decline from 219.6 (1935-39 equals 100) in 1944 to 200.3 in 1945, or nearly 9%.

Total farm purchasing power is great but farm costs are rising and individual earnings of farm people are declining. The average individual earnings of farm people are probably one-half of factory workers' average earnings for comparable skill and effort; and this estimate leaves out all consideration of investment which exceeds $7000 on the average farm.

Vacant Farm Homes

During the war a survey of nine Ontario counties showed that the average age of men and women operating farms in those counties was 57 years. Those people are now over sixty. Their young people are not returning to the farms from the forces and the factories. It was never more difficult to get farm help than it is today. The number of empty farmsteads is growing steadily. Between Ridgetown and Blenheim in southwestern Ontario there are 70 empty houses on one road, 5 of them supplied with electricity. The families who left them are now part of the urban housing problem.

The first move toward restoring the exchangeability of farm and urban labor should be the lengthening of the factory work week to a minimum of 48 hours without increasing the weekly pay. That makes you smile; you say it is impossible, perhaps preposterous is your word. Because measures which will increase production and lesson cost are impossible too often, we may all weep before long. There is little, if any, factory work in which a 48-hour week is prejudicial to the workers' health. Certainly a 48-hour week allows more leisure than many are able to use constructively. We seem to have forgotten that enough work is good and too much idleness is bad. All play and no work makes Jack a bad boy; and the effect on Jill is not too good either.

Until the exchangeability of labor within Canada, and in international trade, has been restored, a work week which is too short for sufficient production to lower costs and prices is a menace to the real wages of every Canadian and threat to future employment.

Lose Two Months Per Year

Few Canadians realize that a reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours means a loss of more than two months in production in industries and business which are on one-shift operation. The enormous capital costs of buildings and equipment are all greatly increased by radical reductions in the work-week. In addition to reductions in the work week which mean the loss of one or two months of production per year, many workers get vacations with pay, thus gaining a total of from six weeks to eleven weeks' holidays with pay. Farm people cannot bear the cost of this idleness in the prices of their needs.

The hard working, thrifty people of Canada, who work long hours, have been compelled to surrender their rights and an increasing part of their earnings to relatively high-paid, short-hour people who have forced uneconomic costs and prices upon everyone in the pretense, and sometimes the belief, that they were sharing employment. What they have accomplished is to ensure future idleness that they will share as unemployment.

Creating and sharing idleness has, however, become established practice in Canada. Unemployed persons, except single men, may refuse farm work or house work, which is "unsuitable" to them, and draw unemployment insurance benefits. Both farm work and house work are regarded as suitable for farmers and housewives who are obliged, through taxes and purchases, to pay the unemployment insurance of idle people who refuse to help then. This is another of your costs that farmers bear most reluctantly. It is incredible to them that Canada, which was built by resourceful people who were able and ready to do any work anywhere, has become so unwise as to foster idleness.

When a farmer looks at factories, he looks to them for his needs produced by people who are willing to exchange their labor with him on a basis which will lower his costs and increase their real wages. He sees in Canada's factories a potential industrial production that will raise the standard of living for farm people, factory people, and all Canadians. He sees the prospect of an expanding Canadian market for his produce and greater oportunities for his children. He sees the possibilities of unprecedented progress and he is ready and eager to join with you in restoring and maintaining those principles which will ensure equity to farm people and factory people, and prosperity for all Canadians.

A Mere Pawn Takes Millinery

By PRUNELLA WOOD

AMONG THE many notions which milliners have seized upon to decorate their hats (and their patrons, too) is the chessman, long a pet for the creative artist.

Here we have mere pawns, notoriously unable to take a trick, romping away with top hat honors. The chess motifs embroidered on this black felt casque, beret are in handsome embroideries achieved with brilliant red, blue and gold beads and threads.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You Certainly Are in Trouble, Aren't You?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy of 17. A year ago I fell in love with a girl who lives near me. She is 16. I see her almost every night and we have gone out together a lot.

At a dance, a month ago, she introduced me to her cousin, who is 17. I also see her most of the time, and now I find that I'm in love with her instead of her cousin, whom I was first going with.

I can't tell the first girl that I am not in love with her any more. Would you please give me some advice as to how to go about it?

"Trouble"

You're a pretty busy boy, aren't you, going out most of the time with each of two girls? I don't quite see how you've managed to keep each one from knowing that you were taking the other one out all this time. It must take some pretty active juggling of dates and a lot of fast thinking.

Do you really have to go to the length of telling the first girl that you don't care for her as much as you did and that you like somebody else better? For all you know, you're going to meet somebody else pretty soon that you'll like even better than the second girl, and then you'll just have to go through the routine all over again.

I'd suggest that you play around a little with a lot of girls and swear off concentrating on any one for awhile. That's the best way to keep out of trouble until you're mature enough to know what you really want.

It's Personality, Not Fine Clothes That Wins People

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 14 and I like a boy very much whom I've known for nearly three years. He lives quite near me and I see him almost every day. I'm thin, and haven't got very nice clothes. I've never had a date with him. I only say hello. I've loved him since I was 12. It must be "puppy love", but I can't get over it.

"Unhappy Girl"

I don't believe the fact that you are thin and haven't the sort of clothes you'd like has anything to do with your not being better acquainted with this boy. You don't need to have fine clothes to be attractive. Any girl can keep herself neat and well groomed, and if she has a happy nature and is fun to be with, the boys like that better than any amount of smart dressing. It's personality that countss, far more than how you look or what you weigh, and personality means being friendly and kind and interested in other people. Lots of girls who have beautiful clothes haven't learned how to be any of these things, and the best of it is that you can learn them without spending a cent on new outfits.

Since you say that this boy is not very popular, it may be that he is the shy type, in which case, if you let him know, tactfully, that you feel friendly toward him, perhaps he'll come out of his shell and return your interest. Don't chase him, of course, but see if you can't make a little conversation with him some one of these days, instead of just saying hello. Try and get him to tell you something about the things in which he is interested.

But don't be discouraged if you don't succeed in becoming a good friends of his. You have quite a few years to go yet before you should be worrying about being seriously in love. I think you know that yourself, because you are sensible enough to realize that at your age these girlish enthusiasms for particular boys are just "puppy love", and that the real thing doesn't come until you are much older.

Her Boy Friend Hurt Her—She's Afraid to Trust Him Again

Dear Miss Fairfax::

I'm a girl of 18. I went with a boy at school and loved him very much. He loved me, too. Then he had to go into the service. I never stepped out on him, but wrote to him every day. Then when he came home on furlough, he stepped out on me terribly.

When he went back, he was shipped overseas. I did not write him for a while, then he wrote and asked me to write. I did, but not like before.

Now he is discharged, and wants to go with me steady. He wants to buy me a diamond. But I feel that I don't love him as I did before. His parents like me, and my parents like him. Do you think if I keep going with him, my feeling will change and I'll get to like him again in the old way?

"Worried"

It is perfectly natural that you should feel the way you do about this boy. You expected him to be just as true to you as you were to him, and when he was not, it shook your faith in him. Now you aren't sure whether you will ever trust him as completely as you did before.

I suggest that you give yourself a little time before making any decision. Tell your boy friend frankly that you're not quite certain of your own feeling and that you want to wait a bit before making up your mind. If he loves you, he'll be perfectly willing to wait, and if he isn't willing, then he doesn't love you enough, and your feeling of doubt about him is justified.

In the meantime, go out with him and have good times with him as you have always done, and you may eventually find yourself back on the old affectionate footing again. But don't try to rush yourself, and don't be in a hurry to accept his diamond. Be sure, first, that you really want it.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Make-up for Dry Complexions

Girls who try one powder after another, who experiment with rouge and are never pleased with the result, who bawl because they find nothing that seems to agree with their complexions, are chasing a beauty rainbow. They never get anywhere. The trouble isn't in the offerings of the cosmetic counters, but in the complexion itself. It is dry and scaling, in a state of riot and rebellion. When the cutaneous surface is normal, it will accept practically any high-grade product.

No make-up will appear to advantage on a skin that is rough and red, out of beauty form. It is too much to expect. Every touch of the lamb's wool pad seems to scuff up skin scales. Why condemn the powder? Why not find out what is wrong, pet the complexion, cultivate it so that it will serve as a perfect background for synthetic aids?

The dry skin is that way because sebaceous glands are on a sit-down strike. Why does that happen? Because, no doubt, the diet is low in fats. Often the condition can be corrected by putting more butter on one's bread, adding butter to vegetables, drinking milk that is rich with cream. Fatty elements will feed the glands that are starving for that kind of food. They'll revive, get into action, provide the cutaneous surface with nature's lubricant, without which the skin has suicidal tendencies.

A bland soap should be used. To combat the drying effects of lather, use a thin cream first, letting some of it remain on. Dip a washcloth in warm suds; press it close to the flesh, very gently. The dry skin can't stand rough treatment. Rinse with warm water and dry gently; apply a heavy cream, massaging it in. Keep using more cream as it disappears .Hot and cold water should be avoided; both may tend to make a dry skin drier.

Message helps to detach dead cells, strengthens the new cells that are forming. It stimulates the blood streams. Sluggish circulation is no help to any complexion. Rub with the tips of the fingers, in the smallest possible circles, being careful not to push the flesh up in folds. Wrinkles come earlier to dry skins than to oily ones.

While the reconditioning work goes on, use a foundation cosmetic; it will make the application of powder smoother. Find a powder that has an oily base, not so light and fluffy that it will blow away on the first breeze.

A cream rouge will be found more satisfactory than the compact. Put it on in dots, then blend them together. A light application of powder over the rouge will do away with distinct edges that produce an unnatural appearance.

A real treat, because it is so becoming and pretty, is the bonnet with the front-lifted brim and feather trim. Done in deep beige fur felt, with tiny ostrich feather plumes in brown shaded to rose beige, it is extremely flattering.

Look down at smart feet and you'll probably note beautiful shoes of alligator in various wine shades, as well as suede and calf in a similar color range. Shown too, are shoes and bags of honey-beige in very fine alligator. This color is suggested for wear at winter resorts.

Fashion Flashes

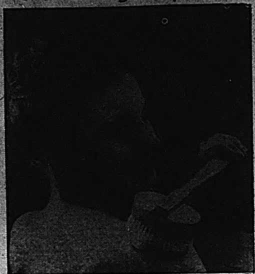
SPECIAL EVENTS, such as receptions and teas, offer the right frame for the satin frock or suit. Deep copper-brown satin makes a smart two-piece dress, the top with a mandarin neckline, two slit pockets and two jewelled amber buttons at the waist for fastening. Skirt is softly draped.

Glitter climbs atop pretty heads for evening fun. Large sequin bows and double-cupped sequin butterflies—mounted on combs—are selling like mad, as are solid or multi-colored sequin flowers. Black net mantillas have solid or multi-colored sequin borders.

No more does one sport the plain, well-cut suede or doeskin glove for dress-up wear. Now the glove has to have interesting ornamentation. A slim, black doeskin glove has a wide, flaring turnback cuff trimmed with satin rope in a scroll and knot motif.

Nice going for brown this Autumn. Made for important afternoons is a dress of light brown crepe. The short sleeves and the cascading side of the wrap-around skirt are banded with bright gold sequins in a Greek key design.

"Pinch-hitting" Treatment For a Glowing Complexion



By HELEN FOLLETT

NOTHING quite takes the place of the strong, skilled fingers of a well-trained beauty operator, yet if the good looks budget or lack of time restricts visits to the pulchritude works, much can be done at home to keep the complexion in good condition. There is what might be called the pinch-hitting treatment.

After the face washing at night, and before a cream is applied, go over your sacred countenance with little nips. Pinch, but you do not pull the flesh outward. Pinch and press. Try it. You'll see what teacher means.

Glow To Face

This movement will bring a fine glow to the flesh. Then, dip your fingers into the massage cream, start stroking upward from the collar bones. Send flattened fingers along the jaw line, finishing with dabs of cream on the ear lobes. Considering that the neck may have been speckled by the sun, or toasted to a bronze, sweep over the nape line and the shoulders. Use a brush, well-soaped on shoulders and back.

Treat the eyelids with gentleness; tissues are delicate there and fibres small. Do brisk pats on the cheeks. That motion is safer than the usual rotary one that forces the flesh up around the eyes, may cause tiny creases to appear in the settings of the soul windows.

Do circles over the forehead. Place the fingers of both hands in the centre of the forehead. When one group goes up, the other should go down. Fine for blotting out like crosswise furrows.

Don't overlook your impertinent nose, a favorite lodging place for blackheads, if one is inclined to collect them. Rub lightly with one finger. Treat the little creases at the wings of the nose.

An ice friction should follow the ten minute facial, especially if the supplicant for better appearance suspects that tissues are getting a bit soft. Impaired tissues are forerunners of wrinkles, and wrinkles are no beauty bargains.

Every morning lave the face and neck with cold water, dry with gentle pats and a soft towel.

Terms Increased By Five Years For Two Youths

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)— A crown appeal asking for life sentences for four youths convicted last May of the slaying of Meyer Tobias, North Toronto merchant, Dec. 27, 1945, Wednesday resulted in an increase of five years each in the sentences of William Mullen and Howard Urquhart. Mullen's sentence was increased to 25 years and Urquhart's to 20 years.

Edward Martin's 20-year-sentence and Donald Warner's 15-year sentence, remained unchanged by an appeal court decision today.

Evidence in the trial last May revealed how the four youths, ranging in age from 16 to 20 years, planned to rob a store, stole an automobile, obtained firearms, drove to the Mount Pleasant dress shop of Meyer Tobias and killed him.

The youths were charged with murder but a manslaughter verdict was returned. Mullen and Urquhart were the only ones who had previous records.

The judgment said that the youth of the accused and the "cool, callous deliberate preparations which all the accused made to execute the robbery" were circumstancs which overshadowed everything else in the case. The court expressed its puzzlement at the "utter callousness" with which the crime was carried out and the actions of the accused after it was learned Tobias was dead.

British House Devises System To Safeguard Rights of Parliament

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 31 (CP)— House of Commons members have accepted that it is impossible for any one member to read the mass of statutory rules and orders issued by government departments with the force of law, but they have devised a system to safeguard the rights of parliament.

This danger of "government by order-in-council" concerns members wherever the British system of government prevails, although the accumulation of modern responsibilities may make it necessary to deputize some powers of parliament. All statutory rules and orders of any importance are laid before parliament and can be annulled if, within a prescribed time, either the House of Commons or the House of Lords records an objection.

Despite this safeguard, members lack the time to read all orders and even those they do read sometimes are not understood. Speaker Douglas Clifton Brown himself spoke for House members generally when he said recently that these orders should be framed in "language which an ordinary person, like myself can understand."

In 1943-44, when the flood of statutory rules and orders was near its peak of 3,000 annually, the Commons established a select committee to consider all such documents laid before the House.

The all-party committee cannot pronounce upon the merits of orders but it can draw the attention of the house to any unusual circumstances. If it has doubts it can require the department responsible to submit a written explanation or send an official to explain or defend it verbally.

Errors have sometimes been found in orders covering prices of goods and emergency wartime regulations, and such experiences have served to make the House watchful. Senior civil servants who are authorized to sign statutory rules and orders for their ministers are aware of this.

During the labor government's first year in office some 1,800 orders were issued, a total substantially lower than during the war. In 1920, the year's total was 2,475.

WORKMEN MOVE

an hour when they went back to work.

Sets Wage Pattern

Strikers in other industries said bluntly that they expected the steel settlement to set a wage pattern to end the other strikes. To a degree, that was how it worked out, with wage increases roughly 13 cents.

Thirteen cents plus shift bonuses sent striking rubber workers back to work. At its peak the rubber strike made approximately 9,000 workers idle in 10 of Ontario's 13 rubber plants. Affected were factories in Kitchener, Toronto, Hamilton, New Toronto, Oakville, and Bowmanville. The original demand was a 20-cents-an-hour increase and a 40-hour week.

The electrical strike, for a pay boost of 25 cents an hour and a 40-hour work week, closed plants in Hamilton, Toronto, Welland and Leaside and involved 6,700 workers. Here, too, the general settlement pattern was 13 cents, but it went higher in some plants such as Canada Wire and Cable in Leaside which settled on a schedule of 14½ to 24 cents.

Rand Formula Used

Some 4,000 Chrysler Corporation of Canada strikers in Windsor and Chatham settled for a 13-16 cents wage increase and the Rand Formula of Union Security.

Striking Northern Ontario bushworkers—the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (A.F.L.) said they numbered 10,000; the camp operators said they were comparatively few—gained practically all the objectives in their 19-day walkout; union recognition, $5 a day minimum wage plus board, and single beds instead of double-deckers.

The bushmen's settlement, like the one at Canada Wire and Cable, still must be ratified by the union membership.

The most troublesome strike of all—that at the Brunner Mond Chemical plant at Amherstburg—involved only 400 workers but it cut off the supply of soda ash, essential to the manufacture of glass, soap, pulp and paper, aluminum, nickel and base metal-processing. By causing a shortage of glass bottles, this strike led to a temporary reduction in Ontario's liquor ration.

By restricting the supply of primary products for numerous manufacturing plants, it had more far-reaching effects than other small strikes: That of 400 workers at the Windsor plant of Canadian Industries, Ltd., which stopped production of caustic soda, chlorine and salt; of 800 men at the Anaconda American Brass plant in New Toronto; of 250 employees at Windsor's Truscon Steel; and of 300 at Duplate Canada, Ltd., in Oshawa.

ENTIRE WING

Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni, who rushed to the scene at once with high police officials, issued a statement saying that the explosives were left on the Embassy doorstep in two black suitcases and apparently were detonated by a clockwork mechanism.

He said a red flag, marked "danger—mines," written in Polish, was draped over the suitcases and that similar flags were draped on each side of the doorway. He said he hoped "the guilty—whoever they may be— will soon be brought to justice."

Mr. Ward told police that an Embassy driver had noticed the suitcases and had picked them up, set them down again and then walked around the building to report them. A few seconds after he left them, the blasts occurred.

TRENTON

Several Cases Heard in Court

Trenton—15 cases were heard in Trenton Police Court on Tuesday afternoon before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and B. C. Donnan, K.C. Crown Attorney.

Hugh Currie of Glen Miller appeared on a charge of common assault. After hearing the evidence he was found guilty. He was given suspended sentence for one year, placed on bond and ordered to pay costs of $7.50.

Gordon Campney of Marmora Street, Trenton, also charged with assault had a fine of $15 imposed on him and costs of $6.50. The crown read out a long list of previous assault charges against Campney. He was defended by Robert Smithrim of Trenton who asked that leniency be shown the accused as a jail sentence would be hazardous to his job.

Douglas Stinson, 171 East Avenue, Hamilton, and Gordon Edward Bonenfent, 7011 105-A Street, Edmonton, charged with vagrancy had their cases withdrawn.

James McLeod of Ferry Street charged with common assault had his case enlarged to November 5th to enable him to secure counsel.

The following persons paid fines for infractions of the Highway Traffic Act: Daniel Lawrence, William Bisset, Earl French, Earl Douglas, Charles O'Hara.

Marshall Telford, Hamilton, charged with impersonating a police officer and a second charge of assault had his case enlarged to November 5th.

Joe Miller, Trenton, paid a fine of $12.50 under the Special Fishery Act.

Publicity Brings Suspension of Fine in Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 31—(AP)—Motorist Ernest Thompson told Judge John Seabrook that after a week of dark days and heavy storms, "the sun was so bright I failed to see the traffic signal change." Said the Judge: "Your exuse shows that Oregon is not always filled with rain in the fall, and for the publicity our state will get the fine will be $5—suspended."

Little Benny's Note Book

Mary Watkins and long legged Maggie Jonsin were walking to school together and giggeling like anything the way 2 gerls do, and me and Puds Simkins were walking in back of them, Puds saying, Good night, I bet if anybody asked them what was so funny, I bet they wouldn't even know.

Meening they were probably just giggeling, which they probably were, and I said, Let's give them something really funny to laugh about, let's say all kinds of nutty things.

Sure, gosh, if they giggel like that at nothing, think what they'd do if they really got a good excuse, Puds said.

And he ran in front of them and started to walk with one foot in the street and the other one on the sidewalk, yelling, Hay Benny, I just discovered something, I just found out one of my legs is shorter than the other one.

Looking and sounding so funny it made me and Puds laugh ourselfs, and Mary Watkins said, My goodness, some people think all they have to do is open their mouths and they're funny.

Oh sure, that's what they think, but they just ought to know what other people think, Maggie Jonsin said.

Which just then I pointed up in the sky pretending to be all excited, yelling, Hay Puds, look, there's a berd flying upside down so it wont drop its eggs in case it lays any.

And I laughed like everything and so did Puds, and Maggie Jonsin said, I didn't hear anything funny, did you, Mary? and Mary Watkins said, No I didn', and what's more I don't expect to, considering the present company.

Meening me and Puds, the result being we quick walked on ahead of them looking independent as if we didn't care who laughed, especially them.

Proving the only actually easy time to laugh is when you feel like it.

Four Goals in Less Than Five Minutes Give Leafs 5-2 Win Over the Hawks

Boston Keeps Record Unbroken by Ending Up in Tie With Rangers

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Off to flying starts, both Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins rode five-game National Hockey League unbeaten streaks today but the resemblance ended with the two goose-eggs in the "lost" column.

The rookie-studded Leafs, whom Conn Smythe overhauled after they finished out of the playoffs last season, set a league-leading pace with their three victories and two ties while the Bruins, Stanley Cup finalists last spring, had only one win to go with their four deadlocks.

Each team followed the pattern last night with 17,736 paying to see the inaugural at Chicago and 15,784 at New York.

Leafs embarrassed Chicago's Black Hawks with a 5-2 victory on the strength of Toronto's four-goal rally in four minutes and 21 seconds in the second period. Boston spotted New York's Rangers a 3-1 advantage before popping in two last-period tallies to finish in a deadlock.

The split in points at New York lifted Boston out of a second-place deadlock with Montreal Canadiens, who now share third position with Rangers. Chicago by their loss remained in a last-place tie with Detroit Red Wings.

Watson Hero of Game

Harry Watson, whom Toronto obtained for Billy Taylor in a complex pre-season trade with Detroit, led the Leafs to victory with a pair of goals that opened Toronto's scoring. Gaye Stewart, Bud Poile and Gus Bodnar got one of the other three.

George Ge. and Red Hamill scored for Chicago to give the Hawks a short-lived 2-1 lead in the second period.

Rangers jumped into their 3-1 advantage later over Boston in a flurry of second-period scoring with two tallies by rookie Church Russell and one by Tony Leswick against Wody Dumart's goal.

Big Stan Pratt, the "honest brakeman" whom Boston bought from Toronto before the season opened, started Bruins on the comeback with an unassisted tally at 6:46 in the final period. Pat Egan tied it up at 17:33, also on a lone effort.

NOTED JOCKEY BATTLING LONG ODDS IN HOSPITAL

Nick Wall Sustains 12 Broken Ribs in Spill at Bay Meadows

New York, Oct. 31. (CP)—Granite-faced, laconic Nick Wall, one of the greatest money riders of them all, battled long odds today in a California hospital, victim of the hazards of hard riding he flouted through 18 successful seasons.

His slight frame crushed in a fifth-race spill at Bay Meadows Tuesday, the ash-blonde, 38-year-old booter who once steered them home for the late E. F. Seagram of Toronto and Waterloo was accorded only a slight chance to recover.

Doctors doubted that the 102-pound saddle star would ever ride again.

Twelve ribs were broken and serious spinal injuries inflicted when Wall's mount, Fluther, went down in a flurry of hooves. Wall went to hospital, one smashed rib periously near his heart.

In 1938 Wall became North America's leading stakes rider, collecting $385,161 for owners on 658 mounts, including 97 winners, 94 seconds and 82 thirds.

He tasted his sweetest success when he brought Earl (Handy Guy) Sande's Stagehand charging down the stretch for a nose victory over famed Seabiscuit in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

Wall was Seabiscuit's No. 1 Jinx, also defeating Hard Tack's great son with He Did and Jacola.

Wall got his start in racing shortly after he moved from Boston to Cleveland, where he learned to ride on his father's farm. His adeptness in controlling a horse which became frightened by a trolley car won a horseman's attention and in 1928, at Akron, O., Wall rode his first winner on a horse named Zero.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Besweatered George Faulkner, who is a busy medico between drills, barked out the first basketball coaching orders of the season the other night when the Y Intermediate squad, garnished with a few pre-war veteran faces, trotted out on the floor for the first practice of the season.

• • •

Coach Faulkner, who was one of the city's hoop stars not too long ago, has the nucleus of a good team this year. Among the boys who were working the kinks out of leg and other muscles in the prelim were such former stars as Al (Cricket) Wickerson, ex-navy skipper, Abe Tobe, Stew Woods, Gerry Hyde, Don Mason, Jack Dickens, Doug Mott, Jack Cooper, Ralph McCabe, pitching star of the Oklahoma City baseball squad in the Texas League, and others.

• • •

The lads went through a stiff workout and prospects look good for a better than average hoop squad this year. Also present with the basketeers was Johnny Hayman, of last year's Western University squad, at present coaching the Albert College basketball teams.

• • •

Jack Dickens who has taken over the coaching duties of the Y Juniors has called his initial practice for next week and expects to have such loop luminaries as Spafford, Watkins, Miller, Vaughan and Rollins from last year's squad. Included among other players in the vetaless class are Wennacott, Saunders, McBurney, Button, Beare and a number of others.

• • •

The midgets take the floor for their first practice under the keen eye of Coach Ben Ritchie on Monday afternoon at 4.15, while Coach Bill Spafford has sent out the practice call to his bantams for Tuesday at the same time. Gord Bankier, mentor of the juveniles expects to have his team out next week, too, although he needs players.

• • •

But Ed. Sherif's basketball beauties (and we ain't kiddin') both intermediate and junior have already started their pre-season practice and according to their coach are beginning to round into shape. Several of last year's intermediate squad have been lost but a number of promising juniors have moved up into the higher company.

• • •

Add to this several newcomers who show plenty of promise and you'll know the reason why the coach is smiling to himself these days. The juniors appear to be much stronger than last year's team with the greater part of the 1945 squad available and plenty of newcomers who appear to be better than average.

• • •

Don Barrett, youthful junior hockey star who will play with the Stratford Junior "A" entry this season, may have stumbled on the actual story as to what made Johnny Pesky the "goat" of the now memorable seventh game in the recent world series.

• • •

Barrett, who recently worked out with the Boston Olympics in the home of the bean and the cod, met Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Dave "Boo" Ferris and other members of the Boston Red Sox team in the Boston Arena dressing rooms one afternoon.

• • •

"I chatted with Ferriss," Barrett said, "and naturally the conversation drifted to the world series. I asked him what made Johnny Pesky allegedly 'freeze' the ball while the Cardinal's Enos Slaughter tore for the plate and the winning run."

• • •

"Well" smiled the big 'Boo' "We have a system in the infield that when a safe hit is knocked to the outer pastures and gathered in by an outfielder, the infielder receiving the throw-in is informed where to throw the ball if other runners are on base.

• • •

"In this case," Ferris told Barrett, "Walker had doubled to centre field with Slaughter on first. When Culberson threw the ball to Pesky, the infield yelled 'Home' at him designating at which point an out was possible. Pesgy got out was possibly. Pesky got dumbfounded at the instructions to throw for home for he knew that Slaughter had been on first. He turned first one way then the other, and was so surprised to see Slaughter tearing along the third-base line for the plate that he froze the ball and then threw it wide."

• • •

When he first started haunting professional hockey camps a decade ago more than one coach shook his head and said: "You're a fine player son, but it's too bad, you're too small."

• • •

The player was "Sudden Death" Mel Hill of the Pittsburgh Hornets. Even such an excellent judge of hockey talent as Lester Patrick, then manager-coach of the New York Rangers, passed him over. "He can skate, shoot, pass and check, but he's too small."

• • •

Mel Hill managed to add some poundage to his scrawny frame and he next appeared in the camp of the Boston Bruins. The Bruins had a high-powered sextet in the 1938-39 season and the little fellow holding down right wing on one of the lines was little Mel. Hill played well during the regular season. He was on a line with Bill Cowley and Roy Conacher and these two aces somewhat overshadowed him.

• • •

Then came the play-offs. Boston, in first place, met the second place New York Rangers. The score at the end of regular time in the first game was tied at 1-all. Sudden death play was in order and Hill flashed along the right alley, took a pass from the sharpshooting Cowley, and drilled the puck into the Rangers' goal to give the Bruins a victory in 59 minutes and 25 seconds of overtime play.

• • •

The coup brought great joy to little Mel, but he didn't rest on his laurels. In the very next game he again came through in the "sudden-death" overtime period to score the winning goal after 8 minutes and 24 seconds. Twice in a row! Sure! he could hope for no further smiles from Lady Luck. Boston won the third game and then Rangers came back to win the next three and tie the series.

• • •

The decisive seventh game rolled around and again the score was tied, 1 to 1, at the end of regulation time. The Rangers were keeping a close watch on Hill as the teams went into "sudden-death" but the little fellow was not to be denied. He came through after 48 minutes overtime to take passes from Cowley and Conacher and score the goal that gave the series to Boston. He had truly earned the name of "Sudden Death" by one of the most brilliant performances in hockey history.

• • •

"Sudden Death" Hill has starred for the Toronto Maple Leafs for the past few years. This season he is patrolling the right lane for the Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League and it has been predicted that while he will not win any "overtime" contests this season for the very simple reason they aren't playing overtime in regular games, he will come through with the "clutch" goal in more than one game to win the contest for the Wasps.

• • •

"Nasty" Natie Brown, who has slugged it out in the boxing ring with such leather-pushing luminaries as Joe Louis; Tony Galento, the "Beer-Barrel Poker", Maxie Baer, clown prince of boxdom, and others, will depend on his pugilistic experience to subdue Karl "Krippler" Davis at the Hume Arena tomorrow night. Brown, who can really throw a punch that would knock a mule kicking will not spare the horses tomorrow e'en and it looks as though the "Krip" might be dodging left hooks and right uppercuts all evening. But he will have something to say about that. It looks like a slugfest all round. Kola Kwarianni, the Don Cossack will throw his might against Lofty Sandy O'Donnell in the semi-go while Pat Flanagan will exhange mat pleasantries with handsome Ben Sharpe.

OSHAWA GENS OR ST. MICHAEL'S FAVORED TO WIN

Junior "A" O.H.A. Race Opens 29th League Season on Friday

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—Take 10 teams, enter them as they are entered this year in the Ontario Junior "A" Hockey Association, and in all truth things haven't changed much in the last 10 years. The power — and probably also the season's-end glory — remains with Oshawa Generals and Toronto St. Mikes.

On the threshold of the 29th league season only the optimistic can pick other than the Generals or St. Michael's College to win the group title. In the last decade the Generals have captured the crown seven successive years starting in 1938 and St. Mike's in the other three years — 1937, 1943 and 1946.

Still this is a league of greater strength all round not only in the Irish and Generals but also Barrie Flyers, Stratford Kroehlers, Windsor Spitfires, Toronto Marlboros, Toronto Young Rangers, Hamilton, St. Catharines Falcons, and Galt Red Wings.

The Flyers and Kroehlers start the season tomorrow night at Barrie.

Windsor, Marlboros and Young Rangers, will play a single schedule of 18 games — nine at home, nine away. The other clubs have a double schedule of 30 games divided between home and the road. All the single schedule games will count four points, the others two.

St. Mike's who lost to Winnipeg Monarchs last spring in the Memorial Cup final have only 6 players of last year's club.

New Goalies for St. Mike's

They are defenceman Len Kelly, left winger Fleming Mackell, Ed Sandford, who has moved up from defence to centre for this season, right winger Bob Paul, left winger Les Costello and right winger Warren Winslow. Newcomers include Howard Harvey, goalie with Montreal's junior Royals for the last two years.

Guarding the nets for Oshawa will be Louis Crowdis of Montreal and on defence will be combinations chosen from among Phil Samis of Edmonton, "Baldy" Mackay of Port Arthur, Bruce Cameron and Bob Dunn, both of Toronto. More power is up front where coach Charlie Conacher has right wingers Eric Pogue of Toronto, Ike Hildebrand of New Westminster, B.C., and Charlie Blair of South Porcupine; left wingers Ross Lowe of Oshawa, Leo Curik of Timmins and Jack Milliard of Kenora, and centres Don Bauer of Kitchener, Bud McPherson of Edmonton and Dick Gamble of Moncton.

St. Catharines, coached this year by Vic Teal, have only three of last year's players available, including goalies Max Haunn of New Hamburg, and Fred Port of Niagara Falls, defencemen are Stan Stock of St. Catharines, "Fiery" Goegan of Fort William, and Les Biddle of Toronto.

Among the forwards are Eric Unger, Bob Wood, Chick Mann, Bob Twaddle, Jim Maxwell and Bill Frick, all of St. Catharines, Bob Moy of Niagara Falls and Bud Aitken of Kingston.

Some with Stratford

Two members of last year's Winnipeg Monarchs team, forward George Robertson and defenceman Dunc Daniels, have been signed by coach Carl White of Stratford. Other defencemen besides Daniels are Len Wharron of Winnipeg, Bill Mitchell of Port Dalhousie, and Joe Turner of St. Catharines. Forwards include Arnie Kullman of Waterloo, Matt Mesich and Sam Casonato of Timmins and Wilf Arnold and Mickey Roth of New Hamburg.

Galt, with a new coach in Normie Hines and with eight players from last year's team to build around, are considered a definite threat. The players include: — goalies Terry Sawchuk of Winnipeg and Tom McGratton; defencemen Dean McBride of St. Catharines and Bob Robertson of Toronto; and forwards Jim Uniac, Stratford, Bill Wylie, Galt; Walter Natchuk, Brantford, Marty Pavelich, Sault Ste. Marie, and Bill Scott of Kirkland Lake.

The players on other teams include:

Hamilton — goalies Bob Decourcy and Bruce Philby; defencemen Jimmy Hogan, Bill Turner, Steve Birkiacich of Schumacher, and Doug Davidson, last year with St. Catharines; and forwards Morris Soulier, North Bay, Dennis Barnes, Kitchener, Johnny Heipel of Brantford, Art Gualazzi, Sault Ste. Marie, and Gordon England and Johnny Prieuer.

Barrie — Goalie Jim Strachan; defencemen Ray Gariepy, Vince Lecour, North Bay and Larry Zeidel, Verdun; forwards, Gord Heale of Copper Cliff, Joe Lafrance of North Bay, Bill St. Pierre of Timmins, Eric Ketola, last year with Hamilton, Rusty Aikins of Timmins and Bill Barrett of Kirkland Lake.

Edmonton, Oct. 31 (CP)— Although the king of sports—horse racing—has been shelved for another year as far as the Prairie circuit is concerned—the question of who will fill the boots of Alberta jockeys who have carved their names in American turf history, still crops up.

Many moons have passed since Alberta bred jocks like Johnny Longdon, of Taber, Alta., "Red" Pollard of Edmonton, and the late Georgie Wolfe of Cardston, Alta., first stepped into prominence not only on prairie tracks, but also on many American tracks.

Can the present crop of up-and-coming prairie jockeys reach the height won by their predecessors? Can they top the Preakness, Kentucky Derby or other top American turf stakes?

George Schilling, Racing Secretary for the James Speers Corporation of Winnipeg, who handles the Prairie circuit, thinks it can be done.

Included in this year's racing colony performing in the west were a group of six apprentices, rated as probable saddle stars of the future. They were J. "Tiger" Sundquist, Charlie Ulrich, Charlie Potts, J. "Coogie" Burge, R. Johnston and Charlie Warman.

They were unknown until last season when they hit their stride. Their future in the turf world looked prosperous as padlocks were placed on "tack room" doors this fall.

They may not reach the heights of Longdon who has ridden some 2,500 winners, including the American "triple" crown, but in all probability one of them someday may be up there trying.

According to Schilling, young Charlie Potts is a comer. Schilling an official in the west for many years, believes that Potts is about the finest prospect he has ever seen.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

For all I know, a strip-and-endplay is an easy stunt for you. Very likely your partner is the only one in your pair who muffs a lot of them. You can cut this out and hand it to him.

In a strip-and-end, you exhaust opponents and yourself of as many cards in as many suits as possible. Then you throw opponent into the lead for a return from him that saves you a trick.

Why strip so much of opponents? So they will have the least to choose from when they lead. Why strip so much of yourself and dummy? So, you may get a sluff and ruff if they lead that suit.

Take as a drill the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠A 5 4 3 2
♥5 4 3 2
♦3 2
♣3 2

WEST
♠8 7
♥8 7 6
♦K Q 10 9
♣K J 10 9

EAST
♠6
♥10 9
♦8 7 6 5 4
♣8 7 6 5 4

SOUTH
♠K Q J 10 9
♥A K Q J
♦A J
♣A Q

You will say this deal was deliberately fixed by me. It was. Each card was carefully selected and placed with loving care. Now concentrate on the lesson: How to proceed to reach an endplay.

You are declarer in south. The contract is a small slam in the spade suit. West leads diamond king. What does that tell you? West has the queen of diamonds. Keep it in mind.

Draw two trumps and four hearts. This strips opponents of all their cards in major suits. Now lead your diamond jack to strip your own hand and dummy of that suit.

At the same time, this forces west to win the trick with queenie. He must now return a diamond or a club. If he leads back a club, you can gobble both tricks in that suit and close your eyes.

His only alternative lead is a diamond, of which you have none in your own hand or dummy. So, you could trump it in one hand and sluff a club from the other. That will be that.

If you had tried a club finesse, you would have lost two tricks. With the strip-end you can lose only one. Better this way.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 31 — Ingrid Bergman fans (and who isn't?) won't be getting their usual ample supply of their heroine on the screen next year. If her stage play, "Joan of Lorraine," is a success—it opened in Washington, D.C., the other night—she is contracted to be in it for eight months. Then she'll probably return to toil for Alfred Hitchcock in "Under Capricorn," from the novel about 1900 Australia. Enterprise will have a virtual Bergman monopoly in 1947; "Arch of Triumph" is her only new picture.

After all these years of announcements and postponements, it looks as though Toronto-born Mary Pickford finally is getting close to beginning production on a picture. Hollywood skeptics will believe it when it happens.

Ray Milland may be tired of costume pictures, but apparently he'll do "Ivanhoe"... the Sinatras are completely domesticated again and Nancy will accompany Frank east for his singing engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Friends hear that Toronto's Bea Lillie is heading here for the holidays and may talk a picture deal... Painter Norman Rockwell is doing portraits of the "Razor's Edge" cast... Ray Evans and Jay Livingston, who clicked with the song "To Each His Own," have the lore of writing "Dear Ruth" and "My Favorite Brunette," from the pictures of the same names.

Errol Flynn is reported collecting $1,000 per day for the use of his yacht by the Orson Wells Company in Acapulco... M.G.M.'s reissure of "Rage in Heaven" was a wise move; it was a well-acted forerunner of the present "psycho" films.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

These reports current in the past few days that big right-handed Phil Marchildon from Penetanguishene, would be traded by Connie Mack to the New York Yankees of the American League, went into the discard last night with an announcement by the Philadelphia Athletics coach, that Marchildon had signed a contract to pitch for the A's next season. Marchildon is the second member of the Athletics to sign a 1947 contract.

Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. President, said at New York last night he and Maurice Podoloff, President of the American Hockey League ,had conferred regarding status of Harry Taylor, much travelled Winnipeg forward, claimed by teams in both the N.H.L. and A.H.L. Campbell said the talks were only in the "negotiation" stage at present.

Knocked down in the fifth round of a boxing bout at Providence, R.I., last night, Robert (Bobby) Burton 24-year-old welterweight negro fighter from Pittsburgh, and father of two children, died despite attempts to revive him. He was floored by a right hand punch to the body. His opponent was also named Burton.

British golfers Dai Rees and Charley Ward and Craig Wood, former United States open champion, wound up all even with par 72s in an informal warmup over the championship Winged Foot coure of Mamoroneck, N.Y. yesterday.

The Britons in the U.S. to participate in this professional golfers' winter tour, will make their first tournament appearance in the north-south open at Pinehurst, N.C., 5-7.

At Ostend, Belgium, yesterday Col. Geldie Gardne, British motor racing driver, established what he claimed to be a world speed record for cars of 750 cubic centimetere. He attained a speed of 159.098 miles an hour over a distance of one kilometre.

AT THE McCARTHY — Dusty Anderson, Chester Morris and George E. Stone hold a tense conference, as Chet, in the guise of Boston Blackie, picks up the trail of an eerie murderer in Columbia Pictures' "The Phantom Thief," starting tomorrow along with George Formby in his newest laugh hit "I Didn't Do It."

General Duty Nurse

By Lucy Agnes Hancock

CHAPTER 2.

"It only seemed so," Sally replied unperturbed. "The tea is hot—the gruel delicious and the toast crisp. There! Comfortable?"

"Where did that flower come from?" the patient demanded truculently. "I suppose it will be on my bill. 'One daffodil—twenty-five cents!'"

"This time it won't appear on your bill, Mrs. Hobbes," Sally promised. "You see, I snitched it from a box of flowers that just arrived. I didn't look to see where they were going; but I'm sure whoever it is won't miss this one. Isn't it lovely? Smell. Spring!"

A smile touched the thin lips of the patient and for a moment the dark, sunken eyes sparkled with mischief. "Good!" she excalmed. "It's the first time I ever put one over on the hospital Did you make this gruel, Nurse?" and, at Sally's nod, she went on with the first show of appreciation, "Good—really good! I shall eat it all and the toast too."

Mrs. Hobbs savored every mouthful of the gruel—eating it slowly to make it last as long as possible. The teapot sent off a tiny whiff of steam and every few minutes the thin hand crept to feel the brown pot. The bright yellow daffodil came in for its share of attention and Sally felt that her first meal had been a huge success.

The fact that upon leaving the hospital two weeks later the lady was loud in her praises of her nurse detracted nothing from Sally's popularity with the faculty even if it did nothing to soothe Norma Holden's wounded feelings

Sally Maynard hurried along the corridor toward the stairs. As she passed the two nurses waiting for the elevator to come up, she greeted them with a smile and a gay wave of the hand. Margaret Adams, her arms full of clean linen, smiled and nodded in return while the eyes of Norma Holden narrowed as she watched Sally mount the stairs and her lip curled as she turned to her companion.

"Apple polisher!" she muttered her tone a mixture of dislike and jealously.

Margaret Adams shook her dark head. "Why do you keep saying that? Listen," she went on with conviction, "Sally's perfectly sincere. I will swear to that."

"Oh you!" the other cried in exasperation. "You make me sick! What did Sally Maynard ever do for you that you should defend her? I say she's to slick—always managing to get the special jobs—teacher's pet—Johnny - on - the-spot. Know what Jim Hallock calls her?" And as Margaret shook her head. "'Blithe Spirit.' Bah!"

A ripple of laughter came from Margaret as she eyed the speaker's flushed face. "You are in a bad way, Holden," she said "Tell me what especially, ails you. Try the button once more. I wonder if it's stuck again. Now just what has 'Blithe Spirit' done that you should want to boil her in oil?"

"Oh—nothing—much, except that she's got 214 just when I had it practically sewed up. Sunderlin virtually promised it to me. 214 isn't really ill—just tired from her many social duties. She's going to be a cinch to take care of. I got this new hair-do on the strength of it. She's wonderful, Margaret! Has her picture in the Sunday papers—with those two handsome sons of hers—her lovely home and gorgeous clothes. Think of associating with a woman like that every night—or day! Gosh! it would certainly be a change from what I've had handed to me lately. There was no explanation, mind you. Just a brief notice on the bulletin board that Maynard was to report for duty in 214 at 7 to-night. I have half a mind to quit right now—get out and do private nursing. I'm sick and tired of this place."

Margaret gazed at the disgruntled girl, a look of real concern in her usually calm blue eyes. She wondered if there wasn't something else at the bottom of Norma's bitter dejection.

"Is it Jim Hallock, Norma?"

Although the other shook her head vigorously, color flooded her face from chin to brow and she punched the elevator button viciously. Margaret nodded understandingly.

"Don't let it get you down, darling," she soothed. "I know internes and all their little ways and let me tell you something—from my own experience. Don't trust'em. Probably he's got a girl back home or if he hasn't he'll choose a wife with money and a boost up the ladder or at least provide him with food and raiment while he's waiting for patients to drop in. Better leave the breed alone, my dear."

"Why are you telling me all this?" Norma demanded, spitefully. "Better corral Maynard. Every interne we've ever had here is her slave. She smiles at 'em—hand them one of her wide-eyed, more or less naive glances and they follow her around begging for a kind word. She makes me sick!" Tears suddenly flooded the angry eyes and she choked.

The elevator slowly mounted to the second floor and stopped. The girls got in and it moved sluggishly upward.

"Go on in to the small washroom and bawl your head off, Holden," Margaret advised as the car stopped at the top floor. "A good cry will do you a lot of good. I'll hold the fort until you come back."

"I'm a pill Maggie," Norma choked as she prepared to follow her companion's advice.

Margaret Adams said nothing—merely shook her head. She wished she could pound a bit of sense into Norma's foolish head. That she was making an idiot of herself over Jim Hallock was plain to her and she hoped with all her heart that the sperintendent of nurses wouldn't find it out. She wondered if Doctor Hallock suspected it; but of course he did—probably thought every nurse in the place was his for the asking. She sighed. How well she knew his kind! She had been in Linton seven years now and never once had an interne married one of its nurses. Oh, they had paid them attention—inveigled them into breaking rules—met them secretly in dim corridors and linen rooms; but when it came to the serious business of marrying, it was some other girl who walked up the aisle to the altar and promised to love honor and obey the big lugs. She laughed ruefully as she sorted and stored the linen.

When Norma Holden reappeared, her eyelids were still a bit pink as was the tip of her rather long nose.

"For Pete's sake, don't let anyone know how idiotic I've been, Mag," she pleaded.

"Oh, we all get our off days, Holden," Margaret assured her. "It takes various forms. Forget it—and Jim Hallock, too."

"Jim Hallock?" Norma asked, wrinkling her forehead. "Who's he? Never heard of the guy."

One o'clock on a calm spring night and the great gray pile famous throughout the County as Linton Memorial Hospital seemed to slumber. Lights were dim and except for the occasional quick step of night nurse, doctor or interne—the sudden cough of a patient or querulous demand for attention, everything was still. Sally Maynard softly closed the door of 214 and slipped into the vacant chair beside Dora Bronson the floor nurse. She sighed and brushed a stray lock of hair from her forehead.

"Tired?" the girl at the desk asked, sympathetically.

"Not more than usual, I suppose," Sally replied. "But I'm certainly glad 214 is leaving in the morning. It isn't often I'm eager see the last of a patient; but Mrs. Telford has run me ragged for three solid weeks. There have been times when I longed to inform her what she needed was a maid, not a nurse. Honestly, Dora that woman never had anything the matter with her and to think she dares take up much needed space here and the services of two of our overworked nurses!"

"Sure. But she's on the board, remember. Sunderlin's scared to death of her. That's why you got the job —the model nurse and all that." It was said quite without malice and Sally merely grinned and sighed again.

The elevator whirred to a stop and Bess Hamilton, laden with a tray containing the midnight lunch of coffee and sandwiches came toward them followed by a tall young interne who was demanding to carry it. However, Bess, the middle-aged nurse who mothered the entire staff from the chief, himself to the newest probationer, refused to listen.

"Run along, Doctor," she advised, none too cordially. "Go peddle your papers. These girls don't want you hanging around while they eat and don't you dare snitch any of their lunch either. You men are all alike—pigs—never filled up. Sram! Hear me?"

But the young man merely laughed and reached the flat-topped desk in the corridor alcove in time to clear a space for the tray. Jim Hallock was a pleasant-looking young man, wholesome rather than stricly handsome. The staff liked him and Doctor Richards predicted a brilliant future for him. Bess Hamilton even went so far as to express the wish she was twenty years younger so that he would pay more real attention to her. Now he seated himself on a corner of the desk and reached for a sandwich ignoring the older nurse's indignant stare.

"Gosh!" he muttered with a mouth full. "I can't see why you girls get all the best food," He reached for another and opened it exclaiming at the thick filling of minced ham and scrambled egg.

"Nonsense!" Hamilton cried. "Your tray is exactly like this and you know it. Some day I'm going to get really angry with you, Doctor Hallock, and—and—" She turned and walked to the elevator

"Aw, don't be mad at me, Bessy," the young man called after her. "It's company I crave. You know, darling, even the Scriptures acknowledge that it isn't good for man to be alone."

"The devil himself can quote Scripture," the nurse cried indignantly. "I have no patience with you."

A light flashed on the board. "I'll go the floor nurse offered. "Probably 196 smelled the coffee and is going to demand some. Well, he isn't going to get it—not this time he isn't."

"Good gal!" applauded Doctor Hallock and turned to Sally "Somehow I never get a chance to talk to you any more, Sally," he complained. "Are you actually avoiding me—purposely?"

Sally shook her head. "Of course not. Why should I? I'm busy and—well I'm not particularly keen about breaking rules and —Oh—use your head, Doctor Hallock. You know you shouldn't be here. You know how Miss Sunderlin feels about you internes and the nurses being on friendly terms."

"Gosh Sally!" the young man answered, I'm no wolf; but I am human and I crave female companionship occasionally. Sunderlin's an old sourpuss—a frustrated old maid."

Sally shook her head. "I don't think so doctor," she denied. "I'm sure she feels it the safest method Think what would happen if some nurse should take your attentions seriously. Not that I suppose for a minute that any of the girls would but one can never be sure and, you know, you do have a certain —well—sort of seductive way with you." Her grin was disarming and he flushed as he got to his feet.

"Nuts!" he exclaimed shortly and turned to leave just as Dora Bronson came into the corridor from room 196. "You can save your sarcasm, Miss Maynard," he went on angrily, then bent over her for a moment to whisper tensely: "You do hate me, don't you?"

Sally was startled. Dont be silly,' she said sharply. "Of course I dont!' and was vaguely troubled at his soft but triumphant chuckle as he sprinted down the dim corridor to the stairs.

Dora eyed her companion curiously as she poured herself more coffee. "What ails our lady-killer Sally?" she asked slyly.

Sally shook her head. "Lady killer?" she repeated. "I never thought of him so. But then, I never thought very much about him anyway. There's no room in my busy life for men—internes especially."

"Is that what he wanted?" A place in your life, Sally?" the other teased. "Is that why he was so pleased with himself? Apparently he doesn't believe in taking 'no' for an answer. You might do worse, you know, darling."

"Of course not. And don't be ridiculous. I merely informed him he shouldn't be up here. That, speaking for myself, I felt rules were made to be followed and that we—every one of us—had no least intention or desire to break them for him or anyone else." She spoke shaply and Dora Bronson gulped in her cup.

"Well no need to get huffy about it," she jibed. "And you can speak for yourself, my dear, and only for yourself. You may enjoy obeying Sunderlin's heathenish old rules but the rest of us aren't so keen about them. Jim Hallock's a darn nice fellow and I know any number of girls who would give their eyeteeth—even risk their caps—for a chance to break those silly old rules—with him."

Sally laid an affectionate hand on her companion's arm. "I don't mean to be stuffy, Dora," she said seriously. "But you know the average interne is merely out for a good time—no matter what the cost to his companion. I can't forget Alice Bentley. It was all so unfair.

"I know," the other said quietly, "but hers was the exceptional case. Thompson was a cad and she was a nut to take the rap for him. Whatever became of her Sally? And him, too?"

"Oh, he married the girl he was engaged to all the time and —I heard Alice did practical nursing somewhere in Ohio until she married."

"I don't see how Sunderlin can sleep nights knowing what she did to that girl, Sally," Dora muttered piling the empty dishes on the tray and carrying them to the dumb-walter.

"That's discipline, my dear," Sally reminded her and went back to her patient. As she sat in the comfortable chair before the broad window in room 214, her thoughts wandered.

Was it only two years ago that she, like all the other nurses at Linton Memorial, had become completely enamored of the handsome, beguiling Bertram Thompson? At the time she was still a mere student nurse and lovely, blonde Alice Bentley had just passed her probationary period. They had roomed across the hall from each other and Alice, who had numerous brothers and sisters, used to share the boxes of food they sent from time to time. Sally hadn't realized how deeply Alice had become involved with the attractive young interne until the night she found her white and tragic after learning of Thomson's approaching marriage. Sally never quite knew how it happened that Miss Sunderlin learned of the girl's association with him; but the irate superintendent promptly dismissed her from the hospital. If Bertram Thompson did anything to soften the blow or tried to defend her in any way, no one ever knew. But after Alice left he was made to feel the disapproval of the entire staff, not excepting the doctors, and department almost at once.

The affair had made a lasting impression on nineteen-year-old Sally Maynard and she vowed never while she was in the hospital to allow herself to become interested in men—especially internes. Perhaps that was one reason for her popularity with the staff—the superintendent in particular, although Sally's Uncle, Dr. Ferdinand Maynard, dead these many years, was the bond that Miss Sunderlin stressed.

Immigrants to Canada 33,914 In First Six Months of this Year, Mostly Families of Servicemen

Ottawa, Oct. 31 — (CP)—Immigration to Canada during the first six months of 1946 totalled 33,914, a 147.2 per cent increase over the same period last year, immigration officials said Wednesday.

Most of the new Canadians were the wives and children of service men.

Of the 33,914 immigrants 24,909 were of English, Scottish, Irish or Welsh origin, 5,227 were from the United States, 1,604 from northern European countries and 2,174 from other parts of the world.

Almost two-thirds were adult females — 20,174. There were 4,816 adult males and 8,924 children under 18.

Largest single class of immigrants, including children, was the trading class, totalling 2,141. The others: farming, 903; laboring, 720; mechanics, 1,825; mining, 28; female domestic servants, 248; other classes, 28,049.

Ontario received most of the newcomers — 14,325.

Most immigrants from the United States came from Michigan—1,047 — but "Sunny California" was fourth in line with 375.

Canadians returning from the United States in the six-month period totalled 1,737, as compared to 1,093 in January-June, 1945.

'46 Strike Idleness In U.S. Nearly Treble That in Past Year

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP) — Strike idleness during the first nine months of 1946 exceeded by nearly three times the working time similarly lost in all of 1945, the previous record year.

Government figures today placed at 98,225,000 the number of man-days lost due to management-labor disputes during the January-through-September period.

For all of last year the total was 38,025,000. Earlier peaks were 28,425,000 in 1937; 26,219,000 in 1927 and 23,048,000 in 1941.

The bureau of labor statistics which compiled the figures, said the number of strikes and lockouts for the first nine months of this year totalled 3,575, compared with 3,784 for all of 1945.

The reason for the big jump in man-days lost, officials said, is that post-war strikes have extended for longer periods. During the war walkouts generally were small, spontaneous and quickly settled.

In 1919, B.L.S. says there were 4,160,000 workers involved in strikes. The figure this year may surpass that mark because for the first nine months of 1946 the total involved was 3,805,000.

Areas of Troops By December 31

Tokyo, Oct. 30 (AP)— Gen. MacArthur's headquarters today reopened the controversial Japanese repatriation topic by announcing the Russian, British and Chinese governments had been offered sufficient shipping to clear their areas of Japanese by Dec. 31.

Gen. MacArthur said all Japanese in American-controlled areas and the Philippines would be repatriated by then.

He was reported concerned over failure of the British authorities to complete plans to evacuate Japanese from southeast Asia by Dec. 31. Statistics show that repatriation from British and Chinese-controlled areas has slowed.

Most of the 1,721,000 Japanese yet to be repatriated are in Russian zones. The Russians had offered to return 25,000 a month, a rate unsatisfactory to Gen. MacArthur. Americans at the peak brought back 300,000 a month. Approximately 500,500 have been returned from all areas.

Latest figures show 6,700 Japanese in China, 21,000 in Formosa, 74,000 in Manchuria, 94,000 in southeast Asia, 13,000 in The Netherlands East Indies, and more than 1,000,000 in Russian areas.

Will Be Given Widespread Study

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—The United States public health service announced today that new tuberculosis vaccine appears to "confer increased resistance" to the disease and will be given widespread studies in this country.

The vaccine is known as BCG and has been used on small groups of people in Chicago and New York and on Western Indian reservations, as well as Europe and South America.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, chief of the tuberculosis division of the health service, said "it is the most promising" of several vaccines that have been tried.

Increased Resistance

He said it appeared "to confer increased resistance for the limited period covered in studies but is not 100 per cent effective."

The decision to try the vaccine on a widespread study scale in the United States was reached after a conference here of outstanding tuberculosis experts from China, Denmark and the United States.

It will be used in a community of about 100,000 persons, yet to be selected. Vaccination will be on a voluntary basis.

In addition there will be extensive investigations by research groups to determine results of the vaccine when used among various population groups throughout the United States, especially among persons exposed to tuberculosis.

Not For Commerce

Surgeon-General Thomas Parran said the tuberculosis control division will establish a single laboratory to produce BCG for the program. Until more is known of the vaccine it will not be made available commercially.

BCG is named for two French scientists, Clamette and Guerin, who discovered it. It has been available since about 1920 in Europe, where studies were made quietly.

In the last seven years about 1,500 Indians on reservations at Rosebud, Mont.; Pima, Ariz.; Wind River, Wyo.; Turtle Mountain, N.D., and in Southeastern Alaska have been vaccinated. In addition it was given to small groups of citizens in New York and Chicago.

FINDS $2,504 SCATTERED IN CAR

Hollywood, Oct. 30 — (AP) — Puzzled police decline to try to explain this one: bootmaker David Posada reported theft of his car. Sadly he added that a sack in the back seat contained $1,500 in cash. A search quickly turned up the abandoned machine, but no $1,500 sack. Instead, the officials said, $2,504 was scattered on the rear floor.

A British war bride, Mrs. Albert Martin, of Bradford, Yorkshire, shown ABOVE with her two children, Allan and Frances, no sooner landed in Halifax, N.S., when two catastrophes struck. First her husband did not show up to meet her, and then her eight-month-old son, David, died in a Halifax hospital. Mrs. Martin stated that her husband had threatened to stowaway to England to see David, whom he has never seen, and it is believed that the missing father might have done just that. The Canadian army traced Martin from Montreal to Halifax where the trail ended. Meanwhile, Mrs. Martin plans to settle in Canada and go to work.

Three-way Contest Over Wills Allegedly Made by Publisher

Montreal, Oct. 30 (CP) — The third wife of Eugene Berthiaume, his 21-year-old niece by marriage and a personal friend are engaged in a three-way contest over wills allegedly made by the late Montreal publisher.

Mr. Berthiaume, who was 65 when he died last Aug. 31 from a heart attack at Spring Lake, N.J., was Chairman of the Board of the Montreal daily newspaper La Presse, which has the largest French-speaking daily circulation in Canada.

A petition presented yesterday before Mr. Justice Pierre Casgrain on behalf of the niece, Colette Berget Ketterer, asks an order for probate of a will Mr. Berthiaume is said to have made in holograph form 10 days before he died.

Mrs. Ketterer, who married George Ketterer, a New York student, claims Mr. Berthiaume bequeathed all his property to her. She further asks the court to revoke a judgment which last Sept. 4 admitted to probate a will dated March 14, 1935, purporting to leave the entire estate to J. Lucien Dansereau. Mr. Berthiaume some years ago designated Mr. Dansereau, a Montreal civil engineer and personal friend, to represent him, in his absence, on the Board of Directors of La Presse. Mr. Dansereau is about 60 years old.

The third wife of the publisher, Fanny Colin, through J. P. Charbonneau, K.C., gave notice of intervention in order to contest the niece's petition for probate and validity of the will in Mr. Dansereau's favor.

This notice was given on the ground that on Sept. 29, 1943, Mr. Berthiaume made and executed a will in notarial form revoking "all wills or other testamentary dispositions by him theretofore made."

With regard to the purported holograph will, it was submitted by Mr. Charbonneau that this was not a will but a letter written by Mr. Berthiaume on Aug. 21, addressed "my dear Colette" and signed "your affectionate uncle." In this, it was claimed, the writer stated that due to fatigue brought on by illness he had not been able to occupy himself with a will, but "in the event of anything happening, all that I have will belong to you."

On application of Edouard Masson, K.C., representing Mr. Dansereau, Mr. Justice Casgrain granted a delay of proceedings for eight days in which to contest in writing the niece's petition.

No indication was given as to the size of the estate. Mr. Berthiaume was owner of Montreal Matin, a daily tabloid, and the building and equipment where it is published.

Mr. Berthiaume's first marriage resulted in a separation. Fanny Colin was married after the death of his second wife. Both the second and third marriage took place in France.

Condemned Couple Enter Appeals

Toronto, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Popovich, sentenced to be hanged, together with her husband George, Nov. 12 for the murder of Louis Nato, claimed she gave false testimony at her trial, text of a notice of appeal released yesterday stated. She gave false testimony "both out of fear and to protect my husband," she said. The hearing is expected to come before the appeal court here next Monday.

A document filed on behalf of George Popovich also claimed he "lied to his counsel and to the court," when he gave evidence at the hearing.

Mrs. Popovich, in her statement for appeal, said she had been "in the habit of meeting Nato, by whom I was previously employed."

Popovich said in his notice that he "did not at any time have any intention of killing or robbing Nato, but merely argued with him and became incensed that he was taking his wife out." He said he missed his wife the night of June 15 when Nato was beaten, and followed a car down the road where the incident is alleged to have occurred.

The statement claims Nato offered Popovich money if he would "leave him alone." Popovich claims he knocked Nato down during an altercation and then bound him with some rope from his car and wrapped some rags that he used for washing the car around Nato's face. He claims also that Nato put his money on the ground and that he (Popovich) took it.

Evidence at the trial last September was that Nato had found his way to the store of a friend. He was badly beaten, his clothes were torn from him and part of a tow-rope was around his legs. He died four days later.

"Dad and I Both Think Syntona Is Grand Medicine"

Tells of Relief from Gas, Bloat, and Dizzy Spells. Also Heartburn and Throbbing Headaches That Had Troubled Her Several Years.

Nearly every day you can read in the paper about local men and women who have obtained relief from common health disorders after using a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Former sufferers of stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys and liver, nervousness, constipation, or rheumatic aches and pains say Syntona has brought surprising results even after everything else they tried had failed to benefit them. Here, for example, is the experience of Mrs. Mary Steinhoff, Oil Springs, Ontario, as reported only a few days ago.

"I was having a bad time with indigestion, gas and bloating after my meals," said Mrs. Steinhoff. "Food made me feel very distressed and I would get heartburn very bad at times. I was subject to throbbing headaches with dizzy feelings and dark spots floating before my eyes.

"My husband had used Syntona with such good results that I began taking it, too. Now, for the first time in years I have complete relief from the gas, indigestion and heartburn. I am keeping free of headaches and dizziness and I feel much better since I've been taking Syntona.

"Both Dad and I think it is grand medicine and we have already recommended it to many of our friends."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.
